Hayes Township Board

Simpson vies for Hayes Township Trustee position

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

Resident Jerry Simpson, 64, is a political newcomer in the Republican primary race against incumbents and six other challengers for a seat on the Hayes Township Board of Trustees.

Simpson has resided in the Hayes Township for the last 35 years spent 25 years as a salesman for Made Right Potato Chip Company and then for Frito Lay before retiring and moving to the area in 1981. Though Simpson has never run for political office he feels he is the person who will represent voters' interests best as trustee.

"I feel I will be representative of all the voters and listen to all of them and at the same time try to move the township forward in a direction that will benefit the entire township as a whole," Simpson said. "Northern Michigan is a beautiful place to live and recreation is a huge part of it. Hayes Township can be a part of this and this will benefit everyone on this side of Lake Charlevoix."

Simpson is the township Cemetery Sexton and a volunteer at Camp Sea-Guil. Simpson decided to run for a seat on the Hayes Township board because he believes that recreation development should be part of the township's focus.

Democratic incumbent hopes to keep trustee seat in November

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

Incumbent Jim Rudolph, 74, is running unopposed as a Democrat in the August state primary for Hayes Township trustee. Rudolph has been a resident for 29 years. He served four years from 1960 to 1964 in the U.S. Air Force, where he calibrated missile guidance systems used on B52 bombers.

"The work I did helped guide the missile to where it had to go," Rudolph said.

He is a retired data analyst and Rudolph also serves on the Char-Em United Way board. He served on the Hayes Township Planning Commission for 28 years before he was appointed trustee 10 years ago. Rudolph won reelection twice before being defeated four years ago, but then was reappointed to the board.

"The person who beat me in the general election resigned and I was reappointed back to the board," Rudolph said.

Rudolph is seeking reelection because he would like to see the completion of the major work being done at Camp Sea-Guil.

"We are at a critical point with Camp Sea-Guil and I would like to see the current work and plan fulfilled," he said. "Once we get the road built and the boat launch in and complete the other projects, the park will be in good shape."

Rudolph said they are working on it.

Dave Zipp, 68, is a lifelong resident of Hayes Township, who served in the U.S. Marine Corps from 1969-1971, and now wants to serve his community as a member of the Hayes Township Board of Trustees.

"I served my country and I want to serve our township and see if we can make our township a shining example in our area," Zipp said.

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The 24th annual Charlevoix Street Legends Classic Car Show cruises into town Friday, July 15, and Saturday, July 16, in downtown Charlevoix.

The event kicks off with a Downtown Cruise-In at 6 p.m. on July 17. The cruise-in includes a free concert at the pavilion at 7 p.m. in East Park with band "The Ledgerman." Car enthusiasts are encouraged to join the fun before the downtown cruise-in by meeting at 4:30 p.m. at Bethany Lutheran Church parking lot, 11906 U.S. 31 N., for a cruise around Lake Charlevoix.

Registration for the actual show begins at 8 a.m. Saturday and the show starts at 10 a.m. Categories for classic cars, trucks and motorcycles. Goody bags and dash plaques will be available for the first 150 registrants.

Awards for Best Interior,

Best Paint, Best Engineered and Best of Show and a grand prize of $500 will be awarded, also cash prizes of $250 and $100 will be awarded to registered participants. Giveaways, music, 50/50 drawings and a silent auction will take place throughout the day.

"The Charlevoix Street Legends partner with our local businesses to offer a variety of fun items for our silent auction, which plays a big part in our fundraising efforts," said member Claudia Bost. "We appreciate and value their generosity."

Local car enthusiasts of the Charlevoix area formed the Street Legends Classic Car Club in 1992. The Charlevoix Street Legends is committed to helping the community through financial support. The Street Legends distributes funds raised from its annual car show to charities and nonprofit organizations locally. The past 24 years Street Legends has returned more than $140,000 to the community, Bost said.

"Car clubs provide fun entertainment and cruise opportunities for members," Bost said. "But not all car clubs capture and incorporate the spirit of 'paying it forward' to their community. Over the last 24 years, it has become the driving mission of the Charlevoix Street Legends Classic Car Club to help promote and sponsor very worthy programs within the Charlevoix community."

"Though our membership represents a wide range of walks of life, we remain united in our vision to help others," she added. "We hope to bring more than 150 cars to the 24th annual car show and provide a day of fun for all ages, while raising funds to distribute to local community programs later in the year."

For a registration application and/or more information, visit streetlegends.net, or call Luann Keinath at (231) 547-3838, Screen Masters Inc at (231) 547-5111, or Treasure Eggers at (231) 237-4280.

Be an ambassador of Charlevoix

Summer has finally arrived in Charlevoix, bringing eager guests to its streets. Although the traffic is heavier and work days are busier, it is important to represent Charlevoix and its businesses well.

Charlevoix's year-round population of 2,500 swells to 10 times that amount during its summer months, not only bringing visitors from across our nation but from across the ocean.

In the chamber office, visitors can put a pin in our map indicating where home is for them, and how far they came to get here. At the chamber we have served visitors from South Africa, Germany, Italy, the Middle East, Asia, and Australia to name only a few. For the visitors who have never been here before, your business and our chamber are their first encounter with what Charlevoix has to offer.

Bearing this in mind, we must use a positive demeanor to accurately portray Charlevoix, sell Charlevoix to our first-timers, and ultimately keep them coming back to our wonderful town. At the Customer Service Training hosted at Charlevoix Public Library, speaker B.J. Shawn, CEO of Bearcub Outfitters in Petoskey, spoke to local staff of Charlevoix downtown businesses about their role in Charlevoix.

No matter what type of business or service you provide to the community, you are an ambassador of Charlevoix; it is not just the job of the chamber's ambassador committee to represent the town. According to Shawn, as an employee and resident of Charlevoix, we are on the front lines providing a first impression of our town and we are members of many teams: our business, Charlevoix, downtown Charlevoix, the chamber, and, on a grander scale, Northern Michigan and surrounding areas of Charlevoix.

As ambassadors of Charlevoix, we must remember to work as a team, whether that be referring customers to our local restaurants, giving visitors directions, or even researching things to do in Charlevoix to better assist visitors.

Familiarize yourself with everything our local community has to offer. As a year-round local, just by taking a tour of one of Charlevoix's attractions and researching businesses you would be surprised by how much you would learn that you thought you knew, or didn't know at all.

If you would like assistance in becoming a Charlevoix expert, there are several ways for you to learn more; visit our lobby at the chamber for brochures and guides on the area and its activities, and visit the Charlevoix Public Library and Charlevoix Historical Society for more information.

The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau would encourage you to take the Charlevoix Certified quiz. This series of quizzes will test your knowledge of demographics, history, activities, businesses, and parking all right here in Charlevoix. Visit www.charlevoixcertified.com to create an account and begin taking the quizzes to become a Charlevoix expert, and better informed ambassador of this great town.

Fathers speaking out to end violence against women

No father wants to learn his son is engaged in criminal activity. No father wants to see his son convicted and sentenced to prison. No father wants to accept the fact that his son is a rapist.

A cold, hard truth was presented to Dan Turner when his son Brock, a standout swimmer at Stanford University, was accused of sexually assaulting an unconscious woman. The jury's verdict was unanimous and unequivocal—guilty.

The woman who survived the assault, her family, advocates and others think the less than minimum sentencing of six months in jail is too easy. The perpetrator's dad feels it is too harsh for his son's "20 minutes of action."

Blogger John Pavlovich wrote a letter to the convicted man's father; his words are spot on. He succinctly sums up why the father's plea for a lesser sentence helps perpetuate a culture tolerant of sexual assault. Pavlovich writes, "Brock is not the victim here. His victim is the victim. She is the wounded one. He is the damager." He ponders why Brock and his father lack any real empathy and are also resistant to accepting responsibility.

In appealing to the judge for a lighter sentence, the father said his son's life will be 'deeply altered' by six months of jail time and registering as a sex offender. In his blog, Pavlovich urges him to consider the survivor's horribly altered life. "She will endure the unthinkable trauma of his '20 minutes of action' for the duration of her lifetime; that you seem unaware of this fact is exactly why we have a problem."

Brock's father assures the court his son will speak out on college campuses against the issues of alcohol consumption and sexual promiscuity, but he says nothing about the issue of sexual assault. Pavlovich writes, "To be clear, Mr. Turner, 'alcohol and sexual promiscuity' are not the story here. The story here is that young men have choices to make and these choices define them."

It is said that integrity is doing the right thing, even when no one is watching. So, how do parents raise boys and girls to be men and women of empathy and integrity? Author, coach and former NFL player Joe Ehrmann addresses this question in lectures he gives across the country.

He stresses the importance of establishing healthy relationships and behaviors early in life. As a high school football coach, Ehrmann asks the boys on his team to define themselves by asking them to answer these questions: what do you stand for, who do you stand with and what are you going to stand against.

Gender violence occurs with such regularity that we have become numb to it. Nationally, one in five college-age women are sexually assaulted; one in three women are victims of violence by an intimate partner; one in four girls are sexually abused in childhood.

Playwright and activist, Eve Ensler, wonders why people are not more outraged about the prevalence of this violence. In an interview, Ensler once said, "Where is the action part, which is about rising up to do something about it?"

Many people celebrated Father's Day with greeting cards and cookouts. However, it is also an opportunity time for fathers, fathers-to-be and grandfathers to take positive action by letting others know what you stand against. Take a pledge, today, to let others know you will never commit, condone or remain silent about violence against women.

Together we can create a climate where all men and boys are loving and respectful and all women and girls are valued and safe. Learn more at www.wrcnm.org/100-men-campaign.

Lower the Limit

Keeping my kids safe is an everyday responsibility, and one I take very seriously. Living in a small lakeside community, our street is not a typical subdivision—we are a rural neighborhood with many young kids, pets, and elderly residents. Kids need to be able to play outside, especially during the summer months, and we are facing a major safety issue regarding this.

We have no sidewalks, and the homes on the west side of the street are quite close to the road itself. The current posted speed limit is 40 mph. The second sign on our road is "Slow, Children at Play," the irony being that 40 mph is way too fast for anyone to be driving on our street because 40 turns into 50 very quickly, and at those speeds, the danger increases greatly.

One of the most telling statistics I have found regarding this issue is at 40 mph, there is an 80 percent chance a child would die if they got hit. At 20 mph, there is an 80 percent chance a child would survive if they were hit.

A speed limit is merely a suggestion, a guideline. If you choose to go faster, you risk getting a ticket or losing control. The posted speed limit for our small community has proven to be just that—a suggestion. Many people (especially residents) go under the posted limit—we take the dangerous speeders very seriously and personally.

But many others, especially people visiting the area and not familiar with our neighborhood, go whipping up and down our street, including delivery trucks, utility vehicles, buses, and trucks towing boats to and from the boat launch. It would be catastrophic if anyone was hit by one of these fast drivers—as a neighborhood we are not willing to sit back and wait for a tragedy to happen before we try to fix what is broken.

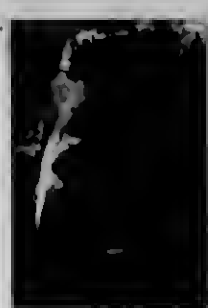

When several residents contacted the city regarding the high speed limit, we were told that a speed study would have to be done and the speed limit could go up, because of a crazy loophole in the speed limit assigning. The east side of our street 'subdivision' is called one name and the west side by another. This excludes our street from falling under the residential automatic 25 mph speed limit. The simple, quickest, and most inexpensive way to resolve this oversight and close the 'loophole' is to lower the speed to 25. Simple. Help us keep the residents of our neighborhood safe.

My incredible next door neighbors (who have no children at home), have a sign in front of their house every day that reads "Drive like your kids live here." Exactly. Let's fix a mistake that looks good on paper, but lacks common sense and practical application. Lowering the speed limit will help keep everyone (including the drivers) safer in our community—and we are working on making this happen.

Parents, neighbors, fellow Charlevoix residents: Have any of you encountered roadblocks regarding safety issues? How did you work to resolve them? What are the concerns you have in your neighborhoods to help keep our residents safer?

LOOKING BACK...

In 1897, it was reported that Charlevoix surpassed any other port on the east side of Lake Michigan in the amount of maritime tonnage that passed through its waters. Only Chicago could boast a larger amount. At a quick glance, that such a small port and harbor far away from the mainstream of Midwest commerce should be able to claim this recognition is puzzling. But at the time, Charlevoix, Lake Charlevoix, and the far northwest region of the Michigan's Lower Peninsula were contributing to the national scene far beyond what their size and location might indicate. In 1908, Charlevoix became the largest fish exporter on the Great Lakes. Millions of board feet of lumber passed through town from lumber mills here, in Boyne City, East Jordan, and other places around Lake Charlevoix, lumber that helped build the Midwest, including Chicago after the Great Fire of 1871. Boyne City's waterfront was once one long, tall pile of lumber stacks, the industrialized town itself, including a huge tannery, a major Michigan exporter. Tens of thousands of tons of ice cut from Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix were shipped by schooner all over the country before the railroad arrived in 1892, and even for several years after that. Chemical plants appeared in Boyne City and East Jordan. Huge passenger liners began to appear in the 1880s, arriving sometimes three and four a day all summer long carrying tens of thousands of tourists and resorters. And at one time, three iron smelters dotted the region, one in Ironton, which gave the settlement of Pine Lake its new name (Iron-town), one in Boyne City, and the third in East Jordan, which still exists. All of them imported the ore they needed from the Upper Peninsula, and exported the finished product as iron ingots. All of the boats that fed these industries passed either into or through Charlevoix. In 1901, on one summer Sunday alone, it was reported that the bridge across the lower channel opened and closed for this non-stop traffic 91 times. In the photo appears the lake freighter Jesse Spalding, which passed through Charlevoix scores of times, tied up at the Boyne City iron smelter dock to unload its cargo of iron ore.

This photo and nearly 200 more is part of the new exhibit "The Working World—Business & Industry in Charlevoix" at the Charlevoix Historical Society's Museum at the Harsha House, 103 State St., 12-4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Open Mondays also starting in July.

Circle of Arts celebrates en plein air experience

The Charlevoix Circle of Arts hosted a painting experience on June 18 that joined regional artists with patrons in the plein air style that is growing in popularity in Northern Michigan.

The French phrase "en plein air" means in the open air, a manner of painting where painters work outdoors with direct observation of nature. The paint-out was juried by Doug Melvin, retired head of the art department at North Central Michigan College. Doug is a seasoned plein air painter and part of the history of art that belongs to Northern Michigan.

The first place award sponsored by Bruce and Joyce Herbert was awarded to Margie Guyot for her painting, Scott Road. Second place, sponsored by Mason and Lynne Rosenthal, was awarded to Trish Morgan for her painting, Yellow Flowers, and the third place award, sponsored by Bob and Anna Rita Barron, went to Louise Pond for her pastel of Sunset Villa. Honorable mentions were awarded to Kurt Anderson, Cal Kemppainen, and Barbara Releh.

Some of the works from the paint-out will be displayed at The Chasing the Light Exhibition, representing 41 regional artists, that will open from 5-7 p.m. on Saturday, July 2. Eighty-two paintings will be on display, with the show running through Aug. 26. The juror for the Chasing the Light Exhibition will be Detroit artist Claudia Shepard whose work is in numerous private and corporate collections and who has taught and worked as a professional artist throughout her career.

For more information on this exhibition or other programming offered, please contact the Charlevoix Circle of Arts at 109 Clinton St., Charlevoix, (231) 347-3554, or go online to: www.charlevoixcircle.org

Library offers summer tech classes

Two 3-D printers were donated to the Charlevoix Public Library this past year by the Leo S. Guthman Fund. The printers offer the community a chance to design and print three dimensional objects. In an upcoming class, learn how to Make Your Own 3D Printed Keychain.

The class will use Tinkercad, a simple, free, browser based 3D design program to design keychains which will then be printed on the library's 3D printers throughout the following week. Class is from 3:30-5 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 17. Children under 13 should be accompanied by an adult and basic computer skills are required.

For patrons in need of a quick charge for their mobile devices, the library has added a charging station at the main entrance. The device will charge Apple and Android phones, as well as other mobile devices.

With the help of a grant from the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library, a new 3LCD laser video projector has been installed in the community room. This new device offers a crisper picture and the ability to connect to a wider variety of devices.

"As more people use the community rooms, we saw the need to meet a wider range of connectivity issues," Adams said. "We also wanted to display the highest resolution image to enhance programming."

The library continues to offer free downloadable eBooks, e-Audio books and music from the library website. To access this material visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org and look for the Overdrive and Freegal links. All you need is your library card to login.

Technology classes for patrons continue to be a priority for the library.

Ask the Tech Guy is a chance for patrons to ask questions and receive computer assistance from Roger Gowell, the library technology manager. The open sessions will be offered from 10:30 a.m.-noon beginning Thursday, July 7 and will continue each Thursday until Aug. 25. Sign up for a time slot at the reference desk or call (231) 237-7340.

The library will offer Cutting the (Cable) Cord at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 24. This increasingly popular option for watching television is growing every day with more services and channels. This class will go over options for streaming television over the Internet as an alternative to cable packages. It will go over different hardware options as well as streaming options. This is a chance to join the millions who have given up cable and save money every month.

For younger patrons, the library is offering a Simple Coding with Scratch class from 3-4 p.m. on Aug. 17. Tweens ages 8-12 can learn the basics of this visual programming language. Tweens will learn how to program their own interactive stories, games and animations.

The librarians at the Charlevoix Public Library also offer by appointment assistance with using the downloadable collection, using mobile devices and using new technologies. Register for all technology classes online at www.charlevoixlibrary.org/calendar or call (231) 237-7340.

Two-day book sale raises $6,500 for Charlevoix Library's children's section CHARLEVOIX — Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library were busy restocking the shelves of their second floor library on Monday. The annual summer two-day book sale was another huge success, according to Friends' board treasurer, Birute Fleck, netting approximately $6,500 on Saturday, June 25 and Sunday, June 26.

Hardcover books, paperbacks, collectables, CDs and library-related items were presented for sale, many in genre categories, on the front garden wall and upstairs in the halls and rooms dedicated to the sale. Browsers and buyers filled bags and often boxes with bargain books to keep them reading throughout the summer, and perhaps throughout the winter ahead.

The annual book sale, held in June each year, is a major fundraising event for the Friends of the Library. Coupled with the proceeds from the on-going sale on the second floor of the library, the summer event allows the Friends of the Library to make a hefty donation to the children's section of the Charlevoix Public Library each year.

The Friends' organization president, Peggy Gallant, was delighted at this year's proceeds.

"We want to say that we are grateful for the generosity of the community, for their donations of books and for the dozens of volunteers who assist organizers in setting up, working, and taking down the displays after the sale," she said.

Mary Ann Chew and Barb Holmes of Charlevoix organized and executed the details of the event and were also pleased with the results of their hard work. "The ongoing book sale is open during library hours all year long," Chew said. "Patrons should use the Mason Street door and take the steps right upstairs where they will find hundreds of books at bargain prices for their reading pleasure. As a result of the summer and ongoing sales, we are able to donate about $18,000 to the Children's Library each year."

"We would like to invite all newcomers to become members of the Friends of the Library," added Fleck. "For an annual membership fee of $5, all are welcome to belong and to participate in many Friends' sponsored events."

SIMPSON

"I want to see Hayes Township move forward in a positive manner and to grow recreationally," Simpson said. "I want Hayes Township to have good infrastructure, but at the same time I feel for a rural community we do not have a great amount of recreation. I think this park — Camp Sea-Gull — will be a real boon for the area. Having a place for people to go and have quality recreation time will boost everything else in the community."

Changes in leadership is one important issue that Simpson sees that should be addressed in the upcoming election. "The township needs to have people who want to be on the board for no other reason than to better the township," Simpson said. "We are losing our township supervisor because of health reasons and Ethel has done a wonderful job over the years and has served the township well."

"I would like to see us carry on with the leadership she has put forward," he added. "I am a worker and I want to work for the people. I feel qualified to do the job as trustee and get the jobs done that are required of me. That is what being a trustee is all about — working for the people."

Simpson and the other candidates seeking office in Hayes Township each have been invited to participate in a public community forum at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 18, at the Hayes Township Hall, 09195 Old U.S. 31 N., Charlevoix.

ing to improve the cabins in the park by seeking grants and other funding.

"I have written a grant for $64,000 to renovate three cabins to be handicap accessible and hopefully we will hear about that this fall," Rudolph said. "There are a lot of things happening right now and a lot of the major work will occur in the next four years and I want to be part of it. I would guess once we are done Camp Sea-Gull would be a self-sustaining park."

Besides completion of Camp Sea-Gull projects Rudolph also feels another important issue facing the community is Lake Charlevoix water quality.

"It is critical for us to maintain the water quality of Lake Charlevoix," Rudolph said. "People have a right to use their property, but at the same time we need to maintain the land. We are stewards of this land and we pass it on to the future generations. That is really important to keep the beauty of Northern Michigan for us today and in the future. I want to do what I can to maintain the beauty in the area I represent. Lake Charlevoix is a gem and it takes work to keep it that way."

Rudolph and the other candidates seeking office in Hayes Township each have been invited to participate in a public community forum at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 18, at the Hayes Township Hall, 09195 Old U.S. 31 N., Charlevoix.

the last 65 years and is a full-time farmer and owner of Kuebler farms on Upper Bay Shore Road. He previously served on the Hayes Township Board of Trustees for a little more than 20 years, as well as the township planning board and the zoning board of appeals in Hayes Township.

He chose to get back into the political ring because he feels the current board is not listening to township residents.

"I think as a trustee to be reelected we should be more open and listen to the township residents about what matters to them," Kuebler said.

He also believes there is not enough attention to the current condition of township roads from the board.

"Elected officials need to work diligently to get the roads repaired and limit regulations in the township," Kuebler said. "We do not need more new taxes. Current and renewal taxes are fine, but no new ones. The board needs more fiscal responsibility."

Kuebler believes the most important issue in the township is the lack of connection between their elected officials and residents.

"I believe township board members should leave personal agendas outside the township hall and do what the majority of residents want done," Kuebler said. "You're elected to serve the people. Serving includes the health, welfare and well-being of your community and I think that has been kind of lax. The board has to work together for the people."

Kuebler and the other candidates seeking office in Hayes Township each have been invited to participate in a public community forum at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 18, at the Hayes Township Hall, 09195 Old U.S. 31 N., Charlevoix.

Zipp was born and raised on the same piece of property he calls home today, that he moved to after serving his country. Zipp retired from Big Rock Point after working nearly 25 years as an electrical and mechanical welder. He is new to the political ring and Zipp supports his community through giving his time to assist his neighbors and those in his community who may need a little extra help in their daily lives.

"I help when I can," Zipp said. "It's about neighbors helping neighbors for a better community."

He is seeking office because he wants to see more transparency from the board and believes it is the responsibility of the elected officials to put their residents first.

"The way our board runs now is not very open," Zipp said. "The public is fed what our board wants us to hear, which is not everything that is going on. We should place our personal desires and personal ambitions to the side when we serve on the Board of Trustees. Decisions made by our elected officials should be for the good of the entire township, which includes seasonal and year-round township residents."

Zipp feels there are two important issues facing the township today. One of them is the roads.

"We need to better take care of our roads," Zipp said. "Our roads are atrocious. Pincherry Road is probably the best road in the township and that was done probably two years ago. We need to do a better job at this."

Zipp also is unhappy the way funding is being handled for Camp Sea-Gull. He believes the current board lacks fiscal responsibility.

"I think it has to be done a little differently," Zipp said. "We have pledged $393,000 and some for a waterways grant and added into the budget. That is not supposed to be added to the budget until we get the money. I think the way we account for township finances is wrong. We need more fiscal responsibility and we should get better response from the board when these questions are asked."

Zipp and the other candidates seeking office in Hayes Township each have been invited to participate in a public community forum at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 18, at the Hayes Township Hall, 09195 Old U.S. 31 N., Charlevoix.

Farmers Market profile:

Berg Farms Greenhouse and Produce

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

For Rebecca Berg who owns and operates Berg Farm's Greenhouse and Produce, growing vegetables and plants is a labor of love. She has had a presence at the Boyne City Farmer's Market for 22 years and has maintained a space at the Charlevoix Farmers Market since it began more than 10 years ago.

"There aren't many people who can do what they love," said Berg, a former teacher with the Charlevoix Public Schools. "I loved teaching, I love growing and I love the market. It's a place you get to see all your friends and make new ones."

Bringing organically grown produce to the community is a process that begins in the basement of her home on Old U.S. 31 N., about a mile off the Boyne City Road, where she plants from seed into 406 hole plug-flats of organic soil.

"I move them to one of my four greenhouses, usually in April," she said. "Then start planting outside in May. I have early flowers and vegetable plants now, and then many flowers and vegetables by early July.

"I plant in certified organic soil so never have the need to fertilize my produce," Berg added. "I do not have an automated operation, I am the automation."

Berg grows a garden for and donates the crop to the Charlevoix Food Pantry. She custom grows plants for the Charlevoix County Jail where under the management of Chuck Vondra, more than 17,000 pounds of produce was frozen last year.

"That project should be a model for all jails," Berg said. "The inmates grow, weed, tend and harvest the crops. It's beneficial to everyone involved."

She also custom grows for Providence Farm, Kiteley's Farm, Johncheck Farms and Gruler's. She sells at the markets, and gives much away to worthy recipients.

Berg employs five or six helpers on a part time basis, but one has become a farmers market regular, Lucy Witthoef. "Lucy asked if she could help me at the farmers market about ten years ago, and has been with me ever since," Berg said.

"Here are words I've come to live by," said Witthoef who lost her husband about the time she volunteered to help Berg 10 years ago. "Have someone/something to love, someone/something to care for and have something to look forward to."

She has found some of that with Berg.

G. RANDALL GOSS/NEWS-REVIEW

Runners begin the full marathon race Saturday morning in Charlevoix, at the start of a morning of foot races in the annual Charlevoix Marathon.

Barnes, Gillette take home Charlevoix Marathon titles

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343
jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — An event that has become a major part of summers in Charlevoix celebrated its 10th running with another successful outing on Saturday.

The Charlevoix Marathon, named one of nation's top 10 small town marathons by Runner's World magazine and a festival of races that attracts runners throughout the nation and world attracted another huge and competitive field of over 1,500 competitors that set fast times on the roads in town and the bike trails between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

In the premier event, the marathon, Kyle Barnes brought home the overall title with a time of 2 hours, 48 minutes and six seconds, seven minutes ahead of runner-up Christopher Miller (2:55:08).

Rounding out the overall podium in the marathon race was Gregory Ingle, who took third in 2:58:44.

Finishing fifth overall and representing the top finisher in the masters (50 years old or more) category was Martin Schumacher, who crossed the line in a time of 3:00:13.

Bryan Heid finished eighth overall and runner-up in the master category, in a time of 3:03:48, and and Troy Hibbits finished 13th overall and third in the masters category in 3:07:07.

Among female marathoners, Laura Gillette was the top finisher, taking 11th overall with a time of 3:05:56 that was nearly five minutes faster than the best female time in the marathon last year in this race.

The women's runner-up, Alexandra Leptich, also finished below last year's winning time in 3:08:02, taking 15th overall, and Brooke Kovacic took third in a time in 3:10:56.

Valerie Petre finished in 3:30:31 to lead the female masters category in the marathon, Amy Spieth was second in 3:31:00 and Karen Schulte-Coman took third in 3:31:39.

The marathon was just one of several races contested in Charlevoix. In the half marathon, Kyle Mena brought home the title in 1:11:57, Garrett Feiber took second in 1:20:29, and David McComb finished third in 1:24:41.

Among female half-marathoners, Jessica Gockley brought home the title in 1:25:30, Ashley Mitchell finished runner-up in 1:25:39, and Liz Watson took third in 1:28:00.

Erik Wippler was the masters champion in the half marathon, in 1:28:28, and Jennifer McClure was the female masters champion in 1:37:08.

Kyle Verrett brought home the 10K title in 35:43, with Gary Greib taking runner-up in 39:13 and Ryan Hafner third in 39:25.

Jamie Grant was the female 10K champion in 40:46, Michelle Weymouth took second in 42:08, and Melissa Bieri was third in 44:29.

In the 5K race, Greg McBride won in 18:40, taking Boyne City's Cam Maginity by nine seconds for the title.

Roger Send finished third in 19:05 in the 5K.

Among the women, Maginity's sister Ava brought home the 5K title in 21:12, Heather Shoecraft took second in 21:29, and Kennedy Kibbey finished third in 23:13.

Summer basketball league adds girls division in second season

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343
jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — A successful trial run has led to even bigger things for the Charlevoix Summer Basketball League in its second year of existence.

After a solid opening season last year that included nine teams competing in late June and early July, the league has expanded to 15 squads this year, including eight boys squads and, for the first time, seven girls teams.

The expansion was a logical extension of the league's mission to provide opportunities for local high school players to improve their games during the long off-season between March and November, league member Bob Jess said.

"We drew a lot of interest based on the positive reception we got last year, and there seemed to be a demand for a girls division as well as a boys," Jess said. "Our goal all along was to give area kids a chance to get in the gym during the summer and play basketball for a low price and close to home, so it seemed like a perfect fit."

The seven squads in the girls division include two Charlevoix teams, as well as squads from Ellsworth, Boyne City, East Jordan and Petoskey.

The new division was the result of hard work on the part of several volunteers, Jess said.

"Liz Shaw (the Charlevoix girls basketball coach) did a great job setting everything up and making it happen, just as (Rayder boys basketball assistant coach) John Pearl has with the boys," Jess said.

Tom Kirinovic from the Charlevoix recreation department was also a big help in making this possible, and the community has supported us in a big way with refereeing and in other areas."

The girls take the court on Thursday night, as they did on June 23rd, when the Red Devils and Northmen took each other on in a game.

For both East Jordan and Petoskey, a nearby league is a boon in multiple ways.

"We've got a lot of kids in our program, and a league like this gives us a chance to mix things up and get incoming freshman and sophomores a chance to play with varsity players and get valuable experience," Petoskey coach Bryan Shaw said. "We get a chance to see how our younger players are coming along, and they get to experience what it's like to play with some of our older players and a step up in competition."

The close proximity of the league also is a big plus, as most summer leagues require all-day trips and lots of money in gas mileage, while having the league in Charlevoix makes it easier for teams to attend.

"Any time in the gym at all over the summer helps players, but we've got a lot of girls who work, and many of them who work at the same place so they can't all take time off at the same time," East Jordan coach Steve Hines said. "That makes it hard to go far away to scrimmage other teams during the summer."

"A league like this that's close to home and at night is a lot easier for our players to fit into their schedules and gives us a chance to get more girls on the court and playing."

While the girls play on Thursdays, the boys take the court on Tuesday and Wednesday as part of an eight team league that includes squads from Boyne City, Pellston, Mancelona and Ellsworth, as well as two Charlevoix teams.

League games are played at the former Charlevoix High School building next to Kipke Field. For more information, contact the Charlevoix Recreation Department by phone at (231) 547-3253 or by email at tomk@cityof-charlevoix.org.

COACH OF THE YEAR

Mark Pontoni,

Boyne City

Since he took the job, Pontoni has continued a strong tradition of baseball at Boyne City, keeping the Ramblers near the top of the standings year in and year out. 2016 was no exception, as Pontoni extracted big contributions from a young group of sophomores and freshmen to add to an experienced core that included two of the area's top pitchers. The result was Boyne City's second regional final appearance in three years and another 20 win season.

Taking the lead

PNR Player of The Year Derek Willis thrives under pressure to lead Boyne City

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343
jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

BOYNE CITY — For the last three seasons, the Boyne City baseball team has had the same answer in do or die situations.

Put the ball in Derek Willis' hands.

From the moment he took the mound as a sophomore, Willis has carried himself like an ace for the Ramblers, thriving under pressure and playing his best in the toughest situations to lead Boyne City to two district championships and two regional finals appearances.

"Nothing rattles him, nothing bothers him, and when we do make a mistake, he's the one talking to his teammates and helping them get their morale back," Boyne City coach Mark Pontoni said. "He's an intense kid and a fierce competitor, but also someone with control over his emotions."

"No matter what happens, good or bad, you can't tell the difference on his face."

That aura of calm isn't just an act, as Willis has developed a knack for keeping his cool and delivering when it counts even in sports other than baseball.

With the score tied in last season's basketball regional final with Iron Mountain, it was Willis off the bench who hit the crucial shot, a three-pointer with a second to play that kept the Ramblers advancing in the state tournament.

For his part, Willis credits his coaches for his ability to come through in the clutch.

"It's really just great coaching, and putting us in those situations over and over again so handling them becomes second nature," Willis said. "Whether it's Dave Hills or Nick Redman or Mark Pontoni, they're all great teachers and they know how to make what they teach hold up even when things are tough."

Willis broke onto the varsity scene as a sophomore, leading the Ramblers to a district crown, and followed that up with another strong season as a junior on the mound.

But he saved his best effort for last, putting up a 10-2 record as a senior that included a 1.69 ERA and 81 strikeouts in 71 innings pitched. His two losses came to Class A Alpena and a 3-2 defeat at the hands of LMC champion T.C. St. Francis where Willis threw a two-hitter.

Willis also threw the first no-hitter of his career against Bath in a 2-1 victory on Apr. 24, and narrowly missed out on a second when a lone hit dropped in against Charlevoix three days later in a 6-1 win.

That moment, while it cost him a chance at history, also showed why Willis is such a special player.

"The centerfielder didn't charge the fly ball to try and make a play on it, and I was madder that he didn't try to keep the no-hitter going than (Willis) was," Pontoni said. "Often when a play like that happens, you see the pitcher lose his composure and start throwing erratically, but he just walked up and got the next guy out like nothing had happened."

"It's just his character and his upbringing that allows him to shrug that stuff off and keep playing, and it's special to see."

Willis' Boyne City career ended in the regional final, but not his baseball career.

Through 71 innings pitched this season, Boyne City's Derek Willis kept his ERA down to a 1.69 finish in a 10-2 year on the mound.

The Rambler graduate will pitch for Alma College next season, an opportunity that he isn't taking for granted. "It's a great chance to play and one I'm grateful for," Willis said. "Since I was little I've wanted to follow in the footsteps of my dad (Dale) and play college ball, and I really feel like the school and the team are the perfect fit for me."

"Baseball is something I really love, and it means a lot to me that I get to keep playing it at the next level."

COACH OF THE YEAR

Sandy Clausen,
Boyne City
2016 shaped up to be the biggest challenge in Clausen's recent four-year run of success with Boyne City softball, with just four starters returning and six sophomores thrust into crucial roles. Instead, thanks to Clausen's quick development of that young group and an explosion of power at the plate, it ended up being the Ramblers' best season under her guidance yet, with an outright LMC title, a fourth straight district title, and a second regional final appearance in the last three seasons.

Love of the game

Petoskey's Emme Williams works way to Player of the Year honor

DREW KOCHANNY
(231) 499-5345 • dkochanny@charlevoixnews.com

PETOSKEY — The high school softball season lasts just over two months in Michigan, nearly three if you're lucky.

But for Petoskey junior Emme Williams, there is no beginning and no end.

For Williams, the summer is spent in travel ball down state or striking out players twice her age in the Parks and Rec league.

In the fall and winter, when the cold crept in and eventually turned to single digits, Williams was breaking a sweat inside the pitching and hitting cages of Petoskey High School.

It wasn't ever rare to see Williams exiting the cage at the start of a Northern basketball game, workout bag and glove near by.

It was that fever for perfection that led to a school record 27 wins and 299 strikeouts this season for Williams and now, an All-Area Player of the Year honor.

"We were really hungry to win this season," said Williams of herself and of course her teammates. "We kind of walked out of last season not finishing how we wanted to. Everyone was hungry to set records and get a lot of wins."

"I probably pitched almost every day, even in the winter time. Even on Sunday's the whole team would be in there putting in batting time."

A starter in all 39 games this season on the mound, Williams logged 238 innings pitched on a 2.18 earned run average to go along with the near 300 strikeouts, 147 more than the next closest in the area.

"She had the second most (strikeouts) in Division 2," Petoskey coach Dave Serafini said. "The only pitcher that had more was the Cadillac pitcher and she ended up winning the Pitcher of the Year in Division 2."

The wins record broke the previous mark set by former Northmen great Andi Gasco, who Williams herself grew up mentored by.

"I've worked with her since I was nine years old and I never would have thought that I would break one of her records," said Williams of Gasco. "It's really cool because she helped me when I was younger."

What makes the wins record and eye popping stats stand out even more is who she was doing it against this past season.

"Our schedule was so difficult," said Serafini. "From the quarterfinals alone, we had eight teams we played against. In the semifinals we had four teams we played against."

For Williams, going up against Macomb Dakota, Allen Park, Escanaba, Grandville and others only made her stronger this season.

"It only makes you better," she said. "Sometimes it makes you a little discouraged, but I think playing the competition that we did totally paid off. You can only get better when you play good teams."

While some pitchers only find success on the mound, Williams molded herself in being more than just a pitcher, finishing the season with a .388 batting average, while scoring 47 runs and knocking in 34.

"She's a complete player and she'll do whatever

While her jersey may have changed a few times this past season, Emme Williams' play for Petoskey never changed from one great outing to the next.

the team wants," Serafini said. "She loves to play third base, probably would have played some during the season, but she understood where she was needed."

Where she was needed was stopping the opposing team's bats, something she did better than anyone in the area, including a season high 17 punchouts against Boyne City.

"It's her change-up that sets her apart from a lot of other pitchers," added Serafini. "She can throw her changeup in any count. That's a big weapon for her, but she has good movement, she has a really good curve ball and what makes her tough is she can hit her spots. "Her leadership skills stand out for her also. You don't see a lot of team captains that are juniors."

For Williams, her results on the mound can't be mentioned without the help of her father and Petoskey assistant coach, Bob Williams.

"I wouldn't be where I am without him, that's for sure," she said. "Sometimes I don't want to admit it, but with him pushing me every day, working with me and never giving up on me, even when I kind of wanted to, he's helped me so much through all of it."

Now in the conversation of recent Petoskey greats like Gasco, Carly Searles and Annie Hansen, Williams now has another year to chase records and wins in a Petoskey uniform.

Another year of summer league play in Grand Rapids and another year of cage work in the 'offseason' for Williams.

"She's a workaholic and keeps working to get better," added Serafini. "She'll probably drive herself more because it's her senior year and we've got seven starters coming back. Expectations are going to be that we have to take the next step."

Nothing new upon the shoulders and arm of Williams.

Hayes Township

Clerk seeks re-election to complete her work

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

Voters in Hayes Township will see many familiar names on the ballot in the August primary, including township clerk Marlene Golovich.

Golovich, 62, has been clerk since 2005. She said she is running because her work with the township remains undone.

"There are good things going on in the township and I would like to continue," she said. "I really like my job and I like representing the people. I'm really proud of the small role I played in acquisition of the park and preserving access to Lake Charlevoix for everyone."

Golovich

She likes being readily accessible for all the people and available to listen and answer questions from township residents.

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

Ron Van Zee, 67, is seeking the seat of Hayes Township supervisor, after encouragement from his family, once they heard Ethel Knepp decided not to seek re-election.

"For a long time I was asked to run, but I always said no because I respected the work that Ethel was doing," he said. "But this time to have my wife who continually discouraged me to run to come forward and say I should for the good of the township, I said yes."

Van Zee has been a resident for nearly nine years. He is the zoning administrator for Bay Township and serves on the Charlevoix County Planning

City manager reflects on 1st year at city's helm

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — He has been at the helm of the city for nearly a year and since his start as city manager Mark Heydlauff has seen plenty.

He's been to parks and parties, met with movers and shakers in the community and is often found walking Bridge Street a couple times a day.

"It is one of my favorite things to do," Heydlauff said. "I like to get out of the office a couple of times a day to see what is going on in town and chat with our residents and merchants."

Being accessible is a big part of his leadership style, he

"I feel like at the end of my first year I can more easily say 'our community' than I could a year ago."

Mark Heydlauff,
Charlevoix City Manager

said, and he demonstrates it by visiting with the various city department heads and city employees.

Knowing names and what people do, "just checking in," as Heydlauff puts it, is important to cultivate those contacts he first started making a year ago.

"Maintaining those relationships to keep good lines of communication open is vital for a community," Heydlauff said. "I feel like at the end of my first year I can more easily say 'our community' than I could a year ago."

Though Heydlauff has past experience as a city manager before Charlevoix, he admits this job has had its "firsts."

"I never had to understand lake levels and its effect on a marina," Heydlauff said. "I have never supervised an airport or supervised an electric department, but the good thing is we have good people who know what they are doing and keep track of those things as they come to understand those departments more."

Shade tree commission celebrates 40 years

JORDAN SPENCE
(231) 439-9397
jspace@petoskeynews.com

The Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission has one goal each year — plant 100 trees.

The commission, which consists of three volunteers, is now in its 40th year.

"It started in 1974 and it was initially started to plant trees along U.S. 31 down through town," said commission chairman and landscape architect John Campbell. "In 1975, we planted the first trees in East Park."

He added eventually they planted trees downtown.

"As it has grown we look at planting specifications, guidelines of planning of city parks," Campbell said. "We look at maintenance and care of city parks and trees. We work with the city and make recommendations of trees to be planted and removed."

All of the above is to beautify the city, he said. It's for downtown to have the shade trees which make it much more enjoyable. It keeps things cooler in the summer, he said.

One of the larger projects they've completed is an inventory of two Charlevoix parks — Mount McSaub and Lake Michigan Beach Park.

"We looked at all the tree species and any invasive species," he said.

"From that, by the end of this year we will have a management plan for both parcels. They're quite unique because they're on sand dunes." Kenneth Polakowski is also a landscape architect and has been part of the commission for 10 years.

"I'm an advocate of street trees and shade trees," Polakowski said. "When they first started, they were called tree wardens."

The trees are a necessity for a good healthy life, Polakowski said, because of their biological and psychological functions.

"Every town needs trees," Polakowski said. "So our role is to make sure policy is set. We plant 100 trees a year. You need a good tree canopy to maintain a healthy environment."

He added they also try to prevent and prosecute illegal tree cutting. This is when someone cuts trees from public land for private use.

They also make sure the trees are pruned and maintained.

"If we didn't have trees in Petoskey or Charlevoix it would be a very unhealthy environment," Polakowski said.

The commission's dedication is one of the reasons they're successful with their mission.

"That's why we received a Tree City USA designation," Polakowski said. "The commission is one of the watchdogs."

The couple could often be seen parked in either car downtown on Main Street eating ice cream and talking with passersby. ABOVE RIGHT: Dale Boss' sons Jim (left) and Bo Boss organized the celebration for their father with help from family and friends. They said their dad "did not want a public funeral, rather, have a party and invite the whole com-

BELOW: The Boss family rides in the famed Charlevoix petunia truck during Friday evening's parade honoring their father and grandfather, Dale Boss, "Mr. Petunia." Boss was instrumental in beginning the tradition of planting petunias through Charlevoix and used the truck to water nearly 5 miles of petunias each morning for 30 years. The parade and ice cream social were to honor Boss who passed away May 28, 2016, at the age of 84.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

We need your input

The Charlevoix Courier is putting together a three- or four-member volunteer Editorial Advisory Board from our community to meet monthly at the Courier with myself.

It'll be an opportunity for the members to give me feedback on the editorial and op-ed pages, and to share issues from the area with each other and me. This group will act as a sounding board on the issues that matter most to our community.

SCRIBE'S VIEW

Lonnie Allen

We will confront pressing issues of our town and townships, including preservation of our natural resources, economic development, zoning and code enforcement, fiscal responsibility and the accountability of our decision-makers. At the same time, we commit to serving as an honest broker of thoughtful opinions on these and other matters, whether or not we agree with the positions.

Our focus will be on the heart of the region — Charlevoix and its downtown — and across the entire landscape on both sides of the Pine River Channel, to encompass our area we call Charlevoix.

We will support our local leaders who practice the art of the possible and the willingness to listen to all voters. To those who prefer political paralysis to pragmatism and progress, prepare to have your feet held to the fire.

We will seek out and elevate leaders who reject selfishness and embody servanthood to their constituents. When appropriate, we will call out those who seem more interested in grandstanding than finding reasonable solutions to the issues that confront our community.

If you are interested in these goals we'd like to hear from you. We'd like members from across the City of Charlevoix, Hayes, Marion, Norwood and Charlevoix townships who reflect diversity of race, age, socioeconomic class, political perspective, etc.

We will use monthly meetings and occasional emails to gather the group's input on where our voice is needed.

We envision this as a one-year commitment, with a new board being selected in 2017. Those interested in participating should drop an email to Courier Editor Lonnie Allen at allen@charlevoixcourier.com with the following:

- Full name
- Age, community/neighborhood, occupation, volunteer activities
- Up to 200 words explaining the perspective — political and otherwise — that you would bring to discussions about how we can improve our community and world.
- Available days/times Monday-Friday 8 a.m.-8 p.m. for a one- to two-hour monthly meeting.

The hardest conversation: Terminal illness

Everyone dies. But few of us are comfortable talking about it, especially when it involves ourselves or a loved one — and especially when it becomes real, and imminent, following a terminal diagnosis.

Death is feared by many people, and the news of a terminal illness can feel like a huge burden to lay on someone else. If you have been given a terminal diagnosis, know that there is no "right" or "wrong" way to discuss it with your loved ones. They will need to know and, even if you fear their reaction, it is better for the news to come from you or from someone else you trust. In many cases, loved ones already suspect something is wrong, and may fear the worst. Bringing it out in the open removes the mystery and can help them to confront their fears in a healthy way. Hospice can help you through this, from the earliest stages of a terminal diagnosis.

Of course, if you're dying, you have your own fears to confront. There's no shame in telling your loved ones if you're afraid. Give them an opportunity to be there for you and to comfort you. Doing so can give them a sense of purpose, and a way to cope with the anxiety they feel.

Your loved ones will react to your terminal diagnosis in unpredictable ways. Some will want to "fix" it; others will want to counsel you. Some will withdraw, some will be unsure of what to do, and others will stand ready to assist in any way they can. Allow them their reactions, and don't feel guilty about setting your own boundaries.

Amy Wieland, Executive Director, Hospice of Northwest Michigan

Discussing your wishes for end-of-life care is among the highest priorities. Terminally ill patients may be unable to communicate their wishes after reaching later stages of illness. Hospice can help you understand care options to consider, depending on the type and severity of the illness. Hospice can also help you find ways of discussing your wishes, and can help your loved ones understand them fully.

You may feel overwhelmed with "unfinished business" — the details of your estate, unpaid bills, family crises and other matters that seem beyond your control in light of a terminal diagnosis. Alleviating this burden and resolving your concerns is what Hospice can do best. In collaboration with your loved ones, Hospice can help to ensure your wishes are carried out, accounts are closed properly, bills are paid, notifications are sent, questions are answered, and family will not be left with unexpected problems.

A terminal diagnosis takes away our sense of control. That's why it is so important to exercise your control while you can, by expressing your end-of-life wishes. The conversations may be difficult now, but they will bring you considerable comfort later, when you can know that your wishes are being carried out.

Whether it's you or a loved one facing terminal illness, consider bringing Hospice on board right away — even before direct care is needed.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

First Iron-ton Ferry

This photo was recently presented to the Charlevoix Historical Society, showing the first regular ferry to cross the narrows of Lake Charlevoix's South Arm at the little settlement called Pine Lake, which later became Iron-ton. The makeshift carrier before that was nothing more than a rowboat captained by Pine Lake postmaster Robert Bedwin beginning in 1876, who transported passengers for a nickel a head. In 1879, after the huge iron smelter that changed the settlement's identity (iron-town) was constructed on land just to the north of the crossing, a farmer named Arden Sheldon, who lived across the lake, purchased a narrow scow used during construction from the Pine Lake Iron Company. With it, Sheldon established the first regular crossing service in 1880, needed to transport men, animals, and materials for the new industry. His first fare was another farmer whom he charged 25 cents for a horse and wagon, as shown in the photo. The power system was a single half-inch cable that wrapped around a 10-inch drum turned by cranks which the passengers had to help operate. They were given what was called a maple "cramp stick," about four feet long, square at one end, which they stuck into the drum's cogs to turn them and so pull themselves across. Here the ferry is pictured just before it pulled into the east landing on the peninsula that divides Lake Charlevoix and gives shorter access to the Boyne City area. To its right is the rowboat tethered to the ferry to act as a lifeboat in case of emergency. Sheldon's ferry lasted until 1883 when Charlevoix County took over with a larger vessel. The current, highly updated and refurbished vessel was put into service in 1926.

COMMUNITY Highlights

Summer Jazz at the Library each Wednesday starting at 7 p.m.

The Charlevoix Public Library will present the 10th season of Jazz @ the Library. The event is a program of live concerts chronicling jazz music through the ages, with an out of the box approach.

Concerts are hosted 7 p.m. each Wednesday July 6 through Aug. 17 (except July 20) in Grandma Geri's Children's Garden at the library. A special soloist or duo joins the Jazz @ the Library Trio each week to bring the music alive. The kick-off event on July 6 highlights the jazz standards with a local favorite vocalist, Claudia Schmidt, and then July 13 will feature Laurie Sears with a focus on the sounds of the saxophone and flute. On July 27, vocalist Janice Keagan is the headliner and on Aug. 3, Crispin Campbell and Nancy Stignitta's cello and flute will be featured. Mike Hunter and Chris Bickley on trombone and saxophone will be the highlight on Aug. 10. The annual piano feature with Steve Stargardt will be the finale on Aug. 17.

Concert-goers will have a special treat before the July 27 performance. The annual Youth Craft Show will be on the grounds of the library from 5-7 p.m. The children are working hard to create crafts for the show and concert-goers are urged to support the young entrepreneurs.

All concerts are free and open to the public. The event is made possible through the sponsorship of the Leo S. Guthman Fund, the Dion Family Charitable Fund, Robert M. Williams, the Charlevoix Public Library and patrons of Jazz @ the Library concerts. Weather permitting, performances will take place in the garden; bring your own chair. For inclement weather, concerts will be moved in the library's community meeting room.

For more information and about this or other library programs, contact the library at (231) 237-7340, or visit the library's website at www.charlevoixlibrary.org, for more details and a full list of the musicians.

History series set for Charlevoix this summer

The Charlevoix Public Library announced the upcoming Charlevoix History Series in partnership with the Charlevoix Historical Society featuring lectures on a variety of topics. All programs listed will take place in the community room at the library.

A lecture on the "History of the Charlevoix Public Library" from 1870-2016 will take place at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 12. From a few books in a room above the Fagan Pool Hall and Cigar Factory, to the many resources now housed in the beautiful state-of-the-art facility, the Charlevoix Public Library has served the community for almost 150 years. Kay Heise, member of the Friends of the Library, will present an illustrated program on that history and on the importance of having a place for everyone to meet, to learn and to be inspired.

Charlevoix Historical Society co-director David Miles will present the first half of a two-part series on "The Life and Works of Earl Young" at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 19. This event covers the first section of Earl Young's life from his arrival in Charlevoix at age 11 in 1900, his early years, marriage, then through the first phase of the creation of his first group of houses up through 1954.

Sally Helvenston Gray, an MSU professor of apparel and textile design, will talk on the streamline fashions of the early 20th century at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 9. This lecture will explain the fashion of the resort era and set the stage for a Tuesday, Aug. 16, program, "The Coming of the Resorts: The Belvedere and Chicago Clubs." This historical presentation traces the founding of the resorts in Charlevoix, first by the Charlevoix Resort Association, or Belvedere Club as it is known today, in 1878, followed by the Chicago Club in 1880/81. The two resorts have been an important and influential part of the fabric of Charlevoix for well over a century. Attendees will learn how the resorts came to be established here, how they grew, important names and stories associated with each, an exploration of their cottage and hotel architecture, and how they unknowingly contributed to the establishment of one of Charlevoix's most enduring events. This program recognizes the resorts' receipt of the prestigious Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library Margaret Duerr Award by the Belvedere Club in 2014 and by the Chicago Club in 2015.

David Miles will return to present the second part of "The Life and Works of Earl Young" at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 23. This program will cover the construction of the Weathervane Inn, the Lodge and Weathervane Terrace motels, his last three houses, and final years through 1975. It will end with a summation of his design philosophy and influence and what he's done for Charlevoix.

Longest Day raises $2,500 for Alzheimer's cure

PETOSKEY — Thanks to community support, Comfort Keepers of Northern Lower Michigan and American House of Petoskey and Charlevoix raised more than $2,500 during its Grilling for a Cure Alzheimer's fundraiser on June 20. The fundraiser was created in support of the Alzheimer's Association's The Longest Day event to raise awareness and funds toward a cure for Alzheimer's.

The Alzheimer's Association challenged teams from around the world to spend the longest day of the year doing what they love to symbolize the challenging journey of those living with Alzheimer's and their caregivers — every day is the longest day if you are caring for someone with the disease.

Comfort Keepers and American House, along with the help of local celebrities, spent

The Longest Day grilling, washing cars and selling baked goods. The public was invited to visit either the American House in Petoskey or Charlevoix, and for a donation, enjoy breakfast, burgers, hot dogs and all the fixings, get a car wash and also select from a variety of baked goods.

For more information, contact (231) 929-9044 or visit the company online at www.comfortkeepersinc.com.

OBITUARY

Jean Elizabeth Steele Schulze, 90

Jean Elizabeth Steele Schulze, 90, passed away in Charlevoix, Mich., Thursday, June 30, 2016.

Born April 28, 1926, in Chicago, Ill., the daughter of Richard and Gladys Steele. Jean was raised in River Forest, Ill., and graduated from Northwestern University where she was a member of the Alpha Phi sorority. Jean married Erwin E. Schulze, June 21, 1952.

Jean was an amazing athlete, beginning as a beautiful swimmer and diver, she also loved to play tennis and golf. In her 40s, she took up snow skiing. She then moved on to her true love — horseback riding, where she competed in hunter/jumper and dressage.

Jean was gradually forced to give up her love of sport as multiple sclerosis took over more and more of her body. Nonetheless, she became a dedicated watercolorist and has left many wonderful paintings for her children to enjoy.

Jean was a devout Christian, reading her Bible daily. She was an active member of the Presbyterian Church. She served on numerous committees at the First Presbyterian Church of River Forest and started their Couples Club. She also served on the Chancel Guild at the First Presbyterian Church of Lake Forest, Ill. She would say it was her faith in God and the love for her family that gave her the strength to carry on. She battled MS for over 35 years. Through it all Jean was an example of courage, determination and beauty. She will be missed.

She is survived by her husband of 64 years, Erwin E. Schulze; her daughter, Suzanne, and her daughters, Heather (Michael) Gahalla and Abby (Rudy) Pagud; her son, Bill, and his two daughters, Katie and Alexandra; her daughter, Donna, her husband, Jim Ballard, and their sons, Jeb, Josh and Griffin; and her son, Steve, his wife, Alexis, and their sons, Bobby and Donovan. She is also survived by her great-grandchildren, Rudy and Leolana Pagud.

A service will be held at the Sequanota Club in Charlevoix.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the National MS Society, <http://nationalmssociety.org/>.

BUSINESS

Farmers Market profile:

Pond Hill Farm: Winery, Brewery, Café and Market

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

Pond Hill does it all. Employing a permanent staff of seven, the farm operates a winery, a brewery, a café and a market. It is a family-friendly farm destination, which offers seasonal activities that coordinate with each growing season.

Visitors can hike, pet farm animals, shop in the store, enjoy wine tasting, or just walk around admiring the beautiful plants on the farm. There is an ice cream parlor, there are hayrides and an occasional barn dance might be on the schedule.

Kafui Okai-Adjei, "K.K." as he is known here, learned about Pond Hill Farm through a friend, while studying agriculture at the University of Ghana, Africa. He received an internship through Michigan State University in 2004 and is now the vegetable production manager at Pond Hill.

"In Ghana," K.K. said, "we have a tropical climate and grow plantation crops like corn, mangoes and tomatoes. I learned about temperate climate crops like broccoli and kale when I got to Pond Hill."

Each year, there are between six and eight interns who rotate through the many facets of the Pond Hill enterprise.

K.K. is assisted by interns as he takes Pond Hill to the various farmers markets each summer: Harbor Springs on Wednesday and Saturday, Charlevoix on Thursday, Petoskey on Thursday and Boyne City on Saturday.

Jessica Meyer, a farm intern from West Bloomfield was assisting K.K. recently at the Charlevoix market. Like other interns, she is learning the diversification of the growing business at Pond Hill and will spend time in the fields, the winery, the brewery and the café in the six months she is with the farm.

Students who are studying agriculture at universities all over the country or people interested in learning about the business of growing or marketing produce often learn about the opportunity to intern at Pond Hill from the National Sustainable Agriculture Assistance Program internet site, www.attra.net.

The intern programs allow them to learn on the job about all aspects of the agricultural business from growing to harvesting to selling.

"I love to be in the field," K.K. said. "It is so interesting to learn when to seed, when to transplant, when to harvest and about all the aspects of market management. It is important to have a holistic approach."

The farmers markets are a way to learn about supply and demand.

"You learn what people like, and make sure it will be there for them," he said.

K.K. presents a friendly face and provides farmers market visitors with information about Pond Hill's fruits and vegetables as they shop.

"We take the farm to table approach in all aspects of our business," he said. "We use our own produce in our garden café, which can be reserved for special events and dinners."

"I believe in representing all the people and having transparency in our local government," she said.

Golovich said remaining independent from small special-interest groups in the township makes her a good choice for the clerk's position.

"I'm happy we've been able to encourage volunteers to help bring a revitalization to Camp Sea-Gull," she said. "It's important we continue the work without being discouraged. I know not all people are happy with the direction at Camp Sea-Gull, but we need to support our residents and recreation in the township."

Golovich also works separate roles as the office manager for Hayes Township Hall and secretary to the zoning board of appeals in the township. She has also served on the Charlevoix Youth Soccer board for the last 17 years and is a volunteer at Camp Sea-Gull.

One issue Golovich said the board will have to address is road repairs and accomplishing repairs while remaining fiscally responsible.

"The roads are always a concern and without state funding the burden of road repairs have fallen on the townships," she said. "This is a burden for all of the board members. We have to be fiscally responsible, stay in contact with the road commission and be responsible. We all need to be educated and knowledgeable about the what's out there to fix and repair roads."

Golovich and the other candidates seeking office in Hayes Township each have been invited to participate in a public community forum at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 18, at the Hayes Township Hall, 09195 Old U.S. 31 N., Charlevoix.

VAN ZEE

Charlevoix and Boyne City Schools.

Van Zee has a background in zoning and building development for government entities. He taught building code at Lansing Community College and was the building and agricultural consultant under the Blanchard administration to the Republic of China. Before moving to Northern Michigan he also was the lead rehabilitation specialist for city of Lansing.

He views roads as the most important concern facing Hayes Township moving forward.

"We need to develop a road plan," Van Zee said. "A 20-year plan along with a budget to accommodate that road plan. We have a millage in place and plus we get other general fund monies that typically get used elsewhere that could be directed toward roads. We need a method in place that addresses all the roads in a timely fashion."

Another issue Van Zee said was troubling is the handling of Camp Sea-Gull.

"The park is a good thing, but we need to serve the township as a whole, we need to make sure all aspects of the township are open and visible and made available to the public," Van Zee said. "The people need to know what the decision makers are basing their decisions on."

Van Zee also thinks the recreation and park property should be separated from the general fund.

"We need to develop and adopt a budget for all of parks and recreation property," Van Zee said.

"Eventually we should turn the responsibilities of that budget back over to the parks and recreation committee. I kind of understand why the board has held on to that, but I think a lot of the decision making should go back to parks committee."

Van Zee and the other candidates seeking office in Hayes Township each have been invited to participate in a public community forum at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 18, at the Hayes Township Hall, 09195 Old U.S. 31 N., Charlevoix.

MANAGER

Easy going and with an earnest smile, Heydlauff admits the job has presented two big challenges in the beginning.

"We were coming off a second very difficult winter of water line issues," Heydlauff said. "We needed to find a solution to begin addressing those in a more orderly fashion than just fixing things as they broke."

With the help of the city treasurer, Department of Public Works superintendent and contracted engineers, Heydlauff was able to get much of the infrastructure needs addressed in the first 11 months on the job.

With three-and-a-half blocks of new water mains, sanitary sewer and full street reconstruction completed, Charlevoix infrastructure projects are in full swing. By the fall, another five blocks of infrastructure improvements will be completed.

"We are making a very significant and needed upgrade in our infrastructure and we have been able to get that done relatively quickly," Heydlauff said. "We have begun to clear up some of those issues we had before in a fiscally responsible way."

Meeting expectations, building rapport with staff and with the respect of the city council, Heydlauff has set goals to build working relationships with the surrounding townships.

"Certainly Chuck [Heydlauff] and I have a good relationship and I am working to build other relationships with other townships and boards," Heydlauff said. "I think if we are going to be smart with what we are doing in the city, we should realize what we do will impact the townships and what they do impacts us. It only makes sense that we try and build a closer relationship."

Heydlauff pointed out the challenge of working together is that people all too often jump to the conclusion the city and township will merge.

"That's not really the point at all of what we are trying to do," Heydlauff said. "The Mount McSaub water arrangement is a good example of what we did together. It made sense for us and made sense for them. It was good for our residents and good for their residents, so we did it. That is the attitude we need to have when we approach these collaborative efforts."

As Heydlauff finishes his first year in Charlevoix, his focus is on the future and what the city can do now that will be a positive force for decades to come.

"It is required in all of us in government and really all of us who live in Charlevoix to think about what are we doing now and how it will affect the future of this community when we are not here," Heydlauff said.

To explain this more, Heydlauff used East Park as an example of what he feels are ways the city can make decisions now that will come to fruition long after the ball was set in motion.

"Think about it," Heydlauff said. "If nobody had the vision of East Park 60 some years ago how different the downtown and marina might be. Would we have that spectacular view of Round Lake, kids playing in the park and live entertainment in a performance pavilion? That is what I mean by having a long-term vision in government and with the people."

It's that level of vision for the future that connects the community toward a common goal, he said.

"This is just one of those stories of inspiration from Charlevoix's past," Heydlauff said. "What I come to understand about this community is that when we do something we do it right."

Offensive explosion carries All Stars into semis

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

GAYLORD — In softball tournaments, pitching and defense are often regarded as the key to success.

But averaging 17 runs a game is a pretty good recipe for victory, too.

That's the standout stat for the Charlevoix Little League All Stars softball team in the Major division, as the squad has pounded the ball in a 3-0 run through pool play to make the District 8 semifinal.

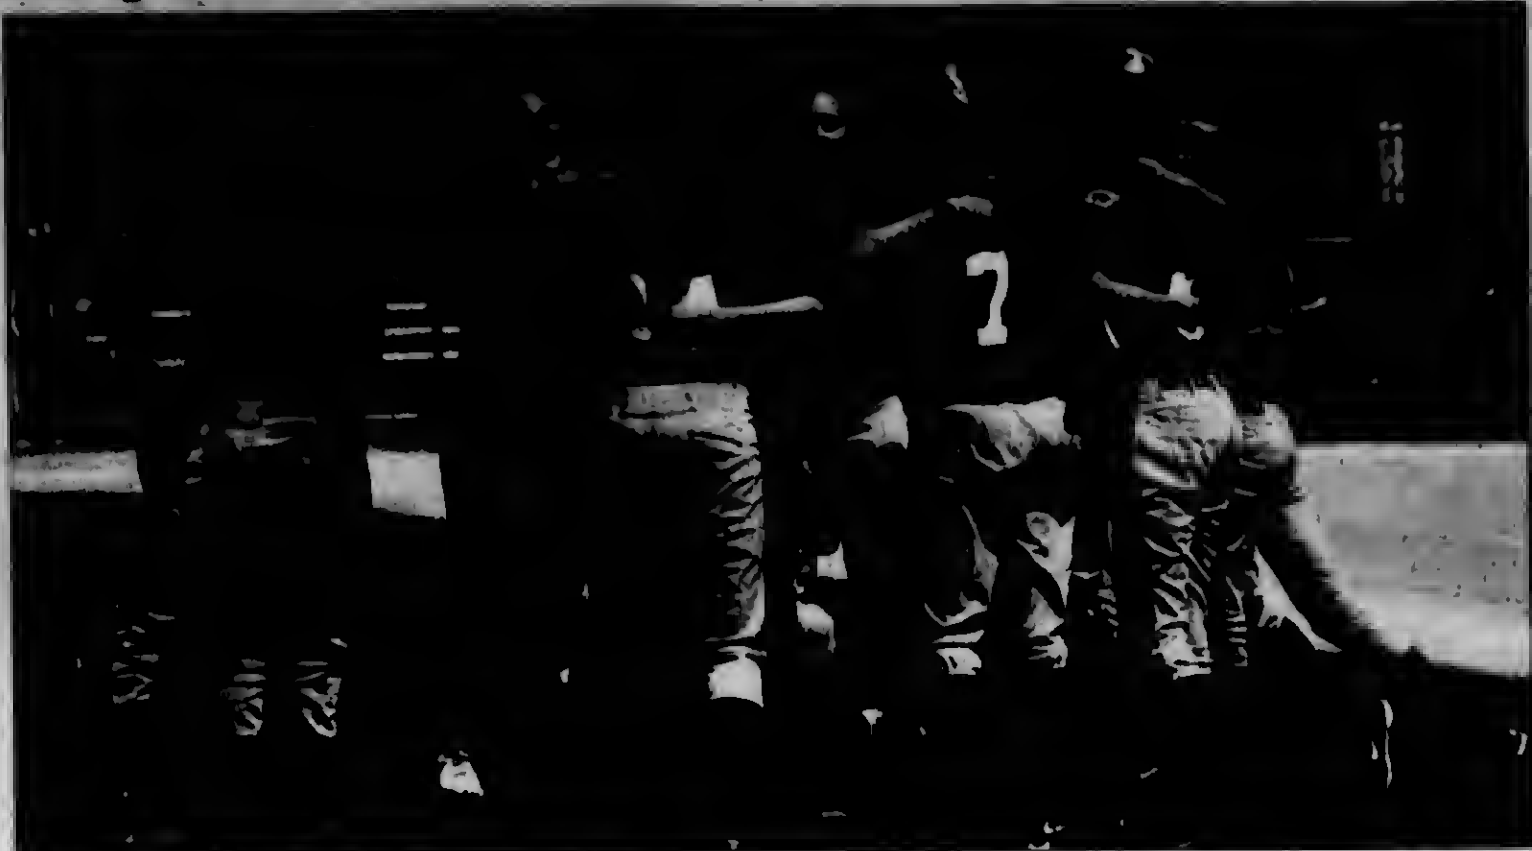

Batting .583 with a .700 on base percentage, Charlevoix has put up 13, 22 and 16 runs in its wins to take the number one seed in its group and its core group of offensive stars appears poised to avenge a heartbreaking loss at this stage of the Little League tournament two years ago.

Charlevoix opened its tournament run with a 13-2 win over Boyne City in four innings, overcoming a 2-1 deficit after the first inning with potent hitting at the plate.

Meg Bush led Charlevoix with two singles, Lily Woodgate, Kate Klinger and Avery Zipp each added a single, and Madelyn Sandison pitched a two-hitter to earn the win on the mound.

Against host Gaylord, Charlevoix used a 13-run inning to blow the game wide open and roll to a 22-5 win.

Klinger struck out 15 and gave up one hit to earn the victory, while Zipp went 4 for 4 at the plate, Klinger and Lily Woodgate each went 3 for 3 with a double and Sandison added three hits as well.

Taylor Petrosky finished with two hits, including a double, for Charlevoix in the win.

In its only close game of pool play, Charlevoix belted out 20 hits to top Johannesburg-Lewiston in a 16-13 thriller to wrap up the top spot in its group.

Petrosky went 4 for 4 to lead Charlevoix at the plate and excelled defensively with six put-outs. Zipp and Klinger each went 3 for 3 with a double, Woodgate finished with three hits and a double and Sandison added a double and a single.

Sandison earned the win in relief, pitching four innings and striking out four after coming in for Zoe Brodin, who struck out three in two innings.

Brodin moved to centerfield, where she made a crucial defensive play in throwing out a runner attempting to reach home that stemmed a late Jo-Burg rally.

Charlevoix was one of four teams to advance to the single elimination bracket thanks to its undefeated run, and faced off against West Branch in Gaylord in a game that took place after the Courier went to print.

If Charlevoix was victorious in that game, it would advance to the district final on Saturday, July 9 at 11 a.m. in Gaylord to play for the District 8 title and a berth in the Major Division State Tournament starting on July 15 in Parchment, Michigan.

Over 200 runners celebrate 4th of July at Ryan Shay Midsummer Night's Run

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CENTRAL LAKE — A fourth of July tradition now in its eighth year had another stellar edition on Monday, as the Ryan Shay Midsummer Night's Run welcomed over 200 competitors to Central Lake to compete in the 5K and 10K races.

Picture perfect weather and a relatively flat, fast course made the evening run an enjoyable time for all participants as the community raised money to support the Ryan Shay Memorial Scholarship fund and honor the memory of the event's namesake, a Central Lake graduate and world class distance runner who passed away of heart failure in 2007 while competing in the U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials.

At the 5K distance, Kyle Kiel of Williamsburg, MI and the Traverse City Running Club brought home the title in 16:57.7, beating the field by over a minute in an impressive performance.

Coming in second and third were Charlevoix natives Mike Bush and Doug Bergmann, who took second (18:23.9) and third (18:38.2).

Bergmann also brought home the Masters Men's title with his finish.

Bush and Bergmann said it was their first competitive race in a while, but were happy with their finish and enjoyed the race.

"It's beautiful weather, a great course and you're running to support a great cause," Bush said. "You can't ask for a much better night than that."

Benjamin Holland of Okemos took fourth in 18:40.7, and Dan Hoezee of Elk Rapids took fifth in 18:52.1.

Madelynn Gerritsen of Bailey, Colorado was the top female finisher, and 13th overall, in 20:28.9, and Michele Longo of Macomb won the female masters title in 24:32.5.

Among locals, Cole Esser of Bay City took ninth in 19:34.6, Gabe Hawley of East Jordan took 11th 19:42.9, Rick Hawley of East Jordan was 19th in 20:53.0, Emily Zmily of Charlevoix was 44th in 24:14.6, and Melissa Purdy was 54th in 26:06.0.

In the 10K race, Dan Evans of Royal Oak finished in 37:04.5 to take the overall title, beating runner-up David Crowe of Kewadin, who finished in 38:16.5.

Russell Inman of Bethesda, Maryland took third in 39:39.9 to win the male masters title, and Melissa Dyste of Bellaire was 10th overall and the top female finisher in 48:43.6.

Robin Sommer of Central Lake took home the female masters title, taking 20th place in 56:21.3.

Brent Cook of Petoskey was the only local finisher in the 10K race, taking 25th place in 59:25.7.

JAMES GENSTERBLUM/COURIER

Madelynn Gerritsen (445) of Bailey, Colorado, the top female finisher in the 5K, crosses the finish line at Monday's Ryan Shay Midsummer Night's Run in Central Lake.

Another race in Shay's honor is coming up on July 23 in Charlevoix, as some of the nation's best milers hit Bridge Street to compete in the Ryan Shay Mile at 10:30 a.m. as a part of the city's annual Venetian Festival.

The Shay mile takes place after the Walt Drenth Memorial 5K and 10K foot races, beginning at 9 a.m. on the same day.

Nathan Bartlett at the helm of Bartletts' Home Interiors

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

When Nathan Bartlett stepped into his office at Bartletts' Home Interiors as general manager last spring, he was assuming a role played out into the third generation of his family's store.

Nathan's grandfather, Bruce K. Bartlett, began the business in the early 1950s as Bartletts' Carpet and Tile. His father, Bruce L., joined the senior Bartlett in 1969, after completing his term in the Navy as an engineer on a nuclear submarine. Bruce K. worked there until he passed away at 84.

Bruce L. and Nathan's mother, Sue Bartlett, are still very much a part of the business, dad as owner and operator, free to be out doing what he likes to do best; interacting with clients out in the field, and Sue continuing her role as sales manager and buyer.

The Bartletts have been dedicated to growing their business for 66 years. The location has changed during that time as have the services offered. Bruce K. Bartlett operated out of a truck in the very beginning. The flooring business first moved to Mason Street, storing merchandise in a warehouse on the property that is now Foster Boat Works Condominiums. It then relocated to the site of the old Kroger Building at the top of the south hill on State Street.

The business found a permanent home, at its current location on M-66 just south of downtown Charlevoix. Initially, Bartletts' focused on floor coverings, but gradually expanded into the window treatments, furniture, mattresses and complete interior design service we know today.

"Our business has grown through dedication and hard work," Bruce said. "Nathan appears to be ready to add to the Bartlett legacy of providing a friendly business environment to make sure that, 'Bartletts' Home Interiors, where you're always at home,' is more than just a slogan on a business card."

At 32, the young Bartlett is ready for the challenge of Fireworks illuminate the sky over Round Lake during the 2015 Charlevoix Venetian Festival. The 2016 Charlevoix Venetian Festival begins at noon Saturday at Ferry Beach with Aquapalooza and other events. This year's Charlevoix Venetian Festival dates are July 16-July 23.

Venetian Festival

Festivities start Saturday

Charlevoix's hometown celebration, the Venetian Festival begins Saturday, July 16 and runs through Saturday, July 23.

The festival kicks off with Aquapalooza at noon, Saturday at Ferry Beach. This featured event is a boating party with music at 1 p.m. by the Sunshine Reggae Band. The 86th Venetian Festival has grown from a boat parade with sailboats sporting lanterns and luminarias, to an eight-day festival including daily musical entertainment, sporting events, kids' activities, a carnival, a beach picnic and more. It started in 1930 when the Chicago Club and the Belvedere Club circled Round Lake with a boat parade and held activities for the boaters.

Each year, the city's Venetian Festival brings in tens of thousands of visitors for a week in July to enjoy a variety of events, including live music, food, games, parades, a carnival and fireworks. "There really is something for all ages," said Dan Barron, president of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival.

"We have great events and musical entertainment scheduled throughout the week."

Board OKs selling cafeteria at Camp Sea-Gull

Some residents unhappy with future park plans

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Hayes Township Board of Trustees took the first step to improve access to Camp Sea-Gull on Monday.

Board members voted unanimously to sell the cafeteria building to make way for a new parking lot that will be connected to an Americans with Disabilities Act compliant roadway and entrance into the park.

"The main park road is the first project that must be undertaken because everything within the park depends on this infrastructure to be in place," said Ethel Knepp, township supervisor.

Placing the building up for sale instead of demolition will add revenue for the park and save the township money, said Clerk Marlene Golovich.

"The person that buys the building will be responsible for its proper removal and its materials," Golovich said.

The entrance of the park has to be moved to meet safety recommendations from the Charlevoix County Road Commission. The entrance will be wider with left and right turn lanes and have a grade that will make it safe for vehicles to park closer to Lake Charlevoix.

City announces survey for Parks and Recreation Plan updates

CHARLEVOIX — The city of Charlevoix wants to hear input from the community as part of the update to its Parks and Recreation Plan. The city is launching a survey that is accessible from www.charlevoixrecreation.com. The survey is brief and should take no more than 10 minutes to complete.

Organizers want to hear from those who live, work and play in Charlevoix, and other interested parties who want to make a difference in the city. The Recreation Advisory Board believes input from the Charlevoix community will be a critical factor to the success of this planning effort. The online survey will be available until July 30, 2016.

The city began the update process earlier this year and it is expected they will be completed at the end of 2016. The plan will follow the guidelines for community park, recreation, open space and greenway plans as published by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The city of Charlevoix has been working with a Michigan-based planning firm, Spicer Group, whose home office is in Saginaw, to assist the city with the update process. Spicer Group is a full-service consulting firm founded in 1944 that offers planning, zoning, engineering, landscape architecture and recreational services to municipal clients.

For more information about the city's planning efforts, contact Tom Kirinovic, recreation director, at (231) 547-3253. Print versions of the input survey are available at city hall located at 210 State St.

Champion barbershop quartet to perform at Venetian Festival

Venetian Festival board president Dan Barron announced that an award-winning barbershop quartet will entertain spectators from 5:30-7:30 p.m. on Saturday, July 23, prior to the festival's final evening of festivities that features the fireworks and boat parade.

"Crowds gather early in both East Park and Bridge Park so our traveling quartet will meander through the parks and on the closed portion of Bridge Street and entertain spectators," Barron said.

The Upper Deck quartet are two-time winners of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Singing in America state champions. Upper Deck won the past two state competitions and will represent Michigan in late July at the International Competition and Convention.

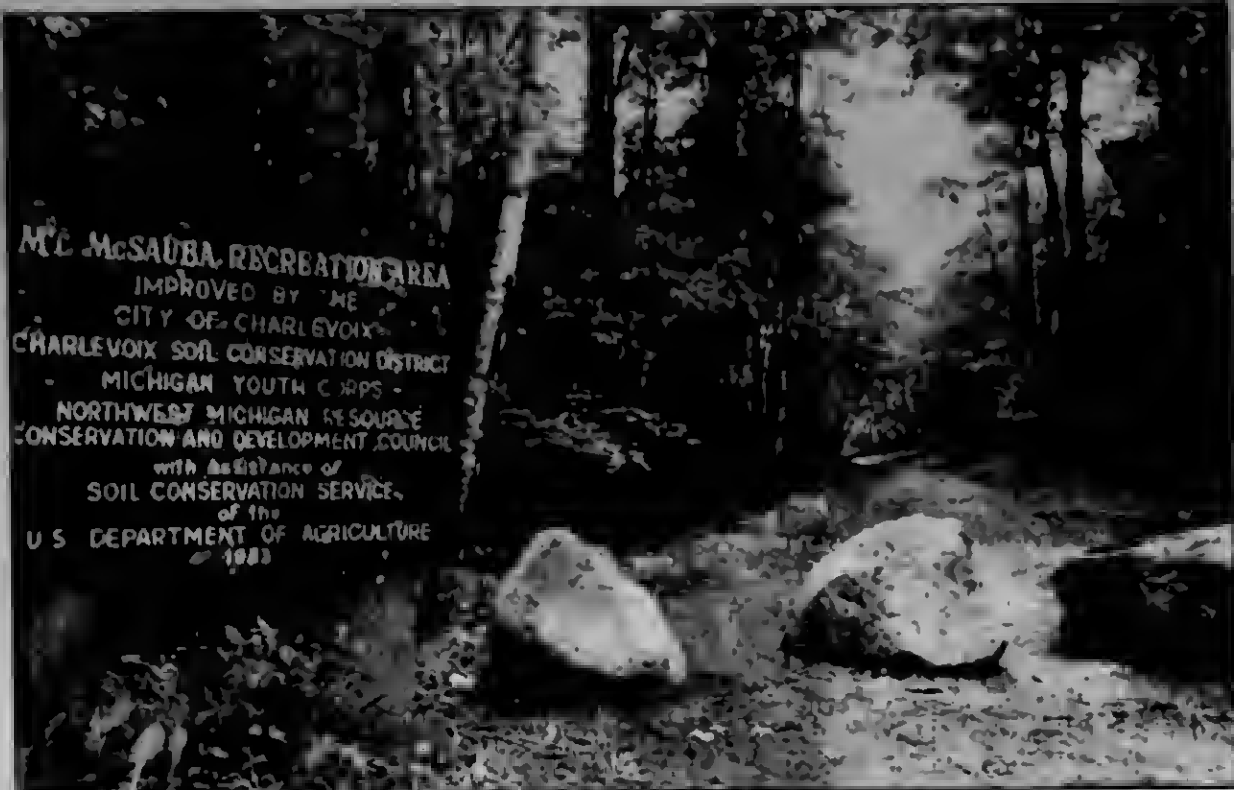

Venetian Cottage Croquet returns to Bridge Park

The popular doubles Cottage Croquet tournament is returning to Bridge Park after several years at Castle Farms. The tournament begins at 1 p.m. on Monday, July 18, at 200 Bridge St., Charlevoix.

Cottage Croquet was part of the lawn games series at the castle. But Bridge Park is ideal for the three courts needed, reported games commissioner Dean Davenport. The event starts with a short clinic and rules overview followed by the single elimination tournament.

"It has also been a spectator attraction when at Bridge Park for our many summer visitors during Venetian week," Davenport said.

City Council mulls formation of Mount McSaubia committee

JULIAN FELLOWS

CHARLEVOIX — City officials will develop a written plan as well as a list of names that might be well suited to serving on a committee or group dedicated to Mount McSaubia Recreation Area following the Charlevoix City Council's meeting on Tuesday.

Council members had previously discussed the potential committee and what its purpose would be at their June 6 meeting.

Councilman Luther Kurtz said it would be a good idea to bring the different stakeholders together to find common ground regarding the future of the recreation area.

"There's definitely been different groups of people that have different opinions about what should be going on out there," he said.

Recreation director Tom Kirinovic said he believes communication is the key to success for a new committee.

"I think somehow to have a way in which folks could share their concerns or complaints ... it seems to me that would be a logical approach on this particular topic," he said.

Kirinovic and city manager Mark Heyd-lauff will present further information about a potential committee at the next council meeting.

The city council also approved a new airport parking agreement with island Airways on Tuesday.

Airport manager Liz Myer said the agreement to have island Airways collect parking fees on the airport's behalf would help make the airport more efficient, especially during the winter months when an employee must wait until the flier has returned for the day before collecting parking passes.

Under the new agreement, island Airways would keep 30 percent of the parking pass revenue and would be responsible for providing a reconciled report of revenue compared with parking passes at the end of each month.

Council members also approved $37,438 to repair the tennis courts and $8,988 to repair the Ferry Beach basketball courts through Hentco Tennis Court Specialist.

Kirinovic said the crack-filling treatment is similar to fixing drywall and that the process would extend the life of the tennis courts and basketball courts by five to seven years. The repairs are scheduled to take place next spring.

Alcohol not a factor in Fourth of July crash

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office and the East Jordan EMS were dispatched to Advance Road near Cummings Road in Eveline Township for a motorcycle personal injury accident at approximately 1:31 p.m. on Monday, July 4.

Travis Fante, 21, of Grand Rapids, was traveling northbound on Advance Road when he failed to negotiate the curve at Cummings Road. The motorcycle, a 2006 Kawasaki, went off the roadway to the right, throwing Fante and his 12-year-old passenger off the bike into the ditch.

Fante received serious injuries and was flown to Munson Hospital in Traverse City and then on to a hospital in Grand Rapids. His passenger received minor injuries and was transported to McLaren Northern Michigan hospital.

Both occupants were wearing helmets and alcohol is not believed to be a factor in this accident.

Benishek discusses Veterans Affairs report

Washington, D.C. — Dr. Dan Benishek met with Nancy Schlichting, chairperson of the Commission on Care, to discuss their final report on the Department of Veterans Affairs to Congress.

"The report makes it clear that the VA has enormous problems to solve and that we can't solve them with more money alone. In order for veterans to receive the best possible care, we must take steps to bring the VA in line with the very best of private sector healthcare," Benishek said.

"I was happy that the report addressed expanding choice for veterans, as I believe anyone who served their country should be able to choose where they'd like to receive the care they've earned," added Benishek. "I also agree with the commission that VA needs strong and effective leadership that's empowered to modernize the labyrinth of bureaucracy and hire the very best care providers."

The Commission on Care was established by Congress in the Veterans Access, Choice, and Accountability Act of 2014 and was charged with completing a strategic examination of the Veterans Health Administration while also providing recommendations on how best to reform veterans' health care.

"Our veterans have suffered through an unaccountable, unresponsive and unacceptable system for too long," Benishek said. "I look forward to further studying the commission's report thoroughly in the coming weeks and questioning the VA on their response in an upcoming House VA Committee hearing."

LETTER to the editor

Noise pollution from boats requires action

Editor:

Noise pollution is becoming an increasing problem in Northern Michigan, especially for those of us who enjoy peace and quiet. Most of it comes from motors of one kind or another and in the summer it may come from a lake.

I am writing specifically about cigarette boats, the ones that are very fast and very noisy. If you are near or on a lake and you are rocked by loud, deeply hoarse motor noise that sounds like a motorcycle on steroids that you can hear for miles, it is probably a cigarette boat. You may think there is nothing you can do about the noise, but you would be wrong.

There is a law called the Marine Safety Act (Act 451 of 1994) that is enforced by the Sheriff's Department that gives a decibel limit for boats. The act also makes it illegal to have an exhaust pipe above the water at any time. (Above the water is much more noisy.) Marine deputies are aware of these standards and are involved with enforcement and education of boaters about them. Two years ago WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix) gave the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department a decibel meter to aid in this effort.

In conversations with the Sheriff's Department, I have learned that some boat owners install a device that allows them to raise and lower their exhaust pipe by flicking a switch, which is pretty ironic since it is clearly illegal. There is only one reason to do this. They want to make more noise and go a little faster.

There is something you can do about it. The sheriff's office recommends that you call 9-1-1. You can register a complaint. Get all the information you can: boat numbers, size and color of the boat, day and time of day, even the name of the owner if you know it. The marine deputies are doing a great job, but they need your support.

A little involvement and concern can make this a more peaceful world.

President, WATCH, Inc.,

Keeping our kids safe

In the wake of recent reports of attempted child abductions in Northern Michigan — specifically in Petoskey, Boyne City and Traverse City, I think all parents and caregivers need to heighten their level of supervision with their children in public settings.

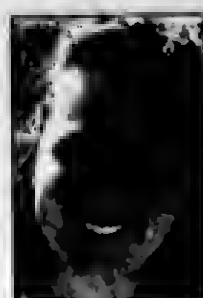

Even in places where we spend a lot of time and where some parents will let their kids go off on their own, we need to keep eyes on our kids. I do not expect other children to be responsible for my kids' safety, nor do I expect my kids to be responsible for other children.

It's a false sense of security in a familiar setting. There are too many variables for me to be comfortable with not having my kids close. Anyone can enter the venue, not just families and participants. What is to stop a predator from entering the building and target the untended children?

I've tried not to terrify my kids too much about the world around them, and up until recently, I focused the 'stranger danger' talks primarily on my oldest son. Having lived in heavily populated areas for most of my life, raising my family in upper Michigan is a true gift; we have a wonderful community and people in general are pretty friendly. However, I refuse to let these observations lull me into being lax on child safety.

People talk to my kids all of the time, mostly when we are in line at a store. I'm right there, and most of the time it is a lovely interaction that leaves everyone smiling. Then, I have the odd encounter with the older gentleman who asks my 3-year-old if he wants to "go home with him." I still get prickles up and down my arms re-visiting this. My son replied, "No, I have a home."

TRUE NORTH

And I got my kids the heck out of there. Harmless? Probably. Poor judgment on this gentleman's part? Definitely. But that's it, that's all it takes. A moment when a stranger is a true danger and we need to be right beside our children.

We talk to our kids about how to stay safe, what to do if anyone approaches you — the delivery man, the guy looking for his lost dog, someone trying to give you something scenarios. I want them to be aware, to be leery, but most of all, be empowered as kids to have a plan.

Talk to your children. Empower your children. Keep them close to you. Trust your gut instincts and don't take chances on their safety. Our extra vigilance will be the difference it takes to protect kids and make a predator think twice. Show that you are aware of your surroundings — look people in the eye and tell them 'I see you' without saying a word.

LOOKING BACK...

COURTESY PHOTO

During the 1920s and 30s, one of the mainstays of the Charlevoix summer was Miss Blair's Tea Rooms on Clinton Street. Very little has yet been found regarding Miss Blair, whether she was a local resident or a summer only businesswoman from out of town. A search of the telephone directories of the era finds nothing listed under "Miss" or "Blair." Nor is it known how long the upscale tea room business was in operation. It is known that Miss Blair catered to the members of the area's resort associations, not the tourist trade. After she went out of business, perhaps because of the advent of World War II, the building became the home of the Christian Science Church, which still remains today beside the First State Bank parking lot in a newer brick structure.

COMMUNITY Highlights

Charlevoix all-class reunion planned for July 23

The Charlevoix High School all class reunion will be from 12:30-3 p.m. on Saturday, July 23, at the Weatherlane lower level. All Charlevoix High School alumni are invited to greet classmates, peruse yearbooks, laugh at pictures of themselves as teenagers and share some food and drink.

Each year the number of alumni at this event has doubled and there have been graduates from classes in the 1940s to current graduates. Yearbooks and tables are arranged by decade so that one can easily find (but not necessarily recognize) those who were in their class.

Snacks, lemonade and ice tea are provided and there is a cash bar available. While the reunion is free, those who wish to join may pay the $5 annual dues. The money gathered at this event goes to the school for special projects. This event is sponsored by the Venetian Committee and the Alumni Association.

The Alumni Band will again be entertaining the crowd at the Venetian parade. Anyone who would like to join this group, or march as a class in the parade, call Gail Baldrige or email Sherrel Bergmann at mayderberg@aol.com.

Chicago Club Fund offering Camp McSauba scholarships

Team relay races, archery lessons and nature hikes on the dunes around Lake Michigan — sound like something that all kids should enjoy? The Chicago Club members are making this dream for local children a reality with scholarships.

Camp McSauba, a summer day camp operated by the City of Charlevoix, is off to a great start again this summer and young campers enjoying traditional camp activities are benefiting from the support of Chicago Club members, who offer scholarships to make it possible for youth to attend camp.

Camp McSauba is located at the Mount McSauba recreation area owned by the city of Charlevoix. Daily activities include small and large group games, arts and crafts, BB gunnery, archery and field sports. Each day wouldn't be complete without a trip to the Lake Michigan beach, too. Camp sessions run five days per week, with an awards ceremony for campers, parents, grandparents and friends each Friday morning.

"We specialize in having fun outdoors in a camp environment," said Jane Milan, Camp McSauba director. "In this technology-enhanced age, camp allows children to connect with nature and make new friends along the way."

Campers (from left) Patrick McClure and Sophia and Alice Cittadin participate in a water cup relay at Camp McSauba.

Utilizing a fund they established at the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, the members of the Chicago Club have had a long history of supporting projects to benefit Charlevoix's young people. The Chicago Club Fund assists Charlevoix youth who would love an outdoor camp experience, but are unable to afford it.

"Parents are holding down several jobs but are simply unable to pay the bills, much less send their children to summer camp. The generosity of the Chicago Club makes it possible for kids to be kids — enjoying our beautiful outdoor environment... Lake Michigan, and a quality camp experience," said Maureen Radke, program officer at the foundation. "The Chicago Club grant will allow more than 20 campers to enjoy a week at camp. New this year, the Chicago Club also supplemented scholarships to pay fees for local children to access winter sports at Mount McSauba, including downhill skiing and snowboarding."

The Chicago Club Fund also supports civic enrichment activities that are enjoyed by virtually the entire community. These activities include the Venetian Festival, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's petunia planting program, improvements in East Park and support for a variety of local non-profit agencies.

"The benefits of the Chicago Club Fund can be seen and felt everywhere in the Charlevoix area, by residents and visitors alike," Radke added.

The Chicago Club was established in 1880, and today, many of the original families continue to maintain cottages in the association. Although most members are summer residents of Charlevoix, the club has a long history of generously supporting local causes.

"The Chicago Club's support of local initiatives like the Camp McSauba scholarship program makes a big difference," said Chip Hansen, foundation president. "The resources the club provides through the community foundation provide access to activities that many families could not otherwise afford."

The Chicago Club's fund is among the 277 funds held by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, each one designated to support a specific cause or address general needs in education, the environment, arts and culture, health, civic projects, youth and recreation.

For more information about grant application deadlines or other Charlevoix County Community Foundation programs, call (231) 536-2440, or visit www.c3f.org or email Hansen@chansen.c3f.org.

Wellness Workshop welcomes medical librarian

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Public Library and Munson's Wellness Workshop are working together to provide residents with individualized high quality answers to their health questions. Medical librarian Susan Kroll will be on site downtown to assist in finding definitions, articles on health issues and can help people compare treatments to make informed decisions.

"We know that when a medical issue surfaces, it can be a stressful time for everyone. Let us assist you in finding some of the options and answers," Kroll said.

Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital has expanded its health and wellness outreach with the addition of the Wellness Workshop. Kroll will be available at the Wellness Workshop on Wednesday afternoons, from 1-3 p.m. throughout the summer. Kroll is a trained reference librarian who spent 16 years of her career as director of the health sciences library at Ohio State University.

"Her breadth of knowledge and access to health resources makes her an incredible community resource," said Linda Adams, library director.

Weekly health topics will include finding quality health information, heart disease, diabetes management, arthritis and more. Kroll will share the best questions to ask your doctor, information on senior health issues, expose quack health websites and share topics on kids' health.

All patron information will be kept confidential and Kroll will do her best to find answers to questions.

For more information, the Wellness Workshop is located at 411 Bridge St., and can be reached at (231) 437-3482. The library is located at 220 W. Clinton St., and can be reached at (231) 547-2651.

Thursday night concerts resume

The Jordan Valley Community Band resumes the Thursday Night Concerts in the Park 2016 season on July 21, 28 and Aug. 4.

The free concerts begin at 7:30 p.m. and usually run about an hour at the bandshell located by the train and marina in E. Jordan. Music lovers should bring chairs, blankets, or use the park picnic tables to enjoy the band music.

In the event of rain, join the JVCB in the Band Room at the E. Jordan High School using the back door entrance.

East Jordan downtown offers free public Wi-Fi

EAST JORDAN — The East Jordan Downtown Development Authority has teamed up with the city of East Jordan to bring public Wi-Fi to Main Street and Memorial Park. Any visitor downtown will be able to access the Wi-Fi network under the label "East Jordan DDA."

The DDA was able to work with Aspen Wireless to establish an infrastructure of Wi-Fi antennas between city hall, the police station and Main Street Center. The network currently covers seven blocks of Main and Spring streets and can be expanded as the service grows.

The city of East Jordan will be installing a Merit fiber line to city hall at the end of the summer allowing for higher speed access and potential for growth. Merit is a non-profit broadband provider that works with other non-profits such as educational institutions, libraries, health care and governments. With the installation of the Merit line, service will be able to be extended through the marina and over to Tourist Park as well.

This infrastructure will allow East Jordan to create a new digital public space and offer more incentive to entice businesses and people into town.

According to the Michigan Economic Development Corporation, "Thriving places help define a community's economic vitality."

By focusing on such community space projects, East Jordan hopes to grow the town and prosper into the future.

South Pier Lighthouse repaint contract awarded

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Historical Society has awarded Mihm Enterprises the contract to repaint the South Pier Lighthouse, using a premium coating system from Tnemec Company, warranted to retain the color for many years to come.

This coating system was selected after a rigorous evaluation of various high-performance coating products by paint experts over the last year, led by the architect on the project, Michelle Smay of Smay Tremblay Architecture.

Mihm Enterprises has extensive experience in restoring and painting lighthouses in Michigan, most recently the St. Joseph Lighthouses.

Funding for the project is supported by a State Historic Preservation Office Michigan Lighthouse Assistance Program grant in the amount of $16,990. The remainder of the $49,000 project is covered by the lighthouse preservation fund maintained by the Charlevoix Historical Society, which is funded by private donations. The work on the lighthouse will begin the first week of July with set-up, testing and preparation of the structure. Painting will begin following Venetian week, and the work is to be completed by the end of August.

In the second phase of major restoration of the South Pier Lighthouse, which began in 2006 with grant funding obtained from SHPO's MLAP, the exterior was repainted its historically significant red color in 2009.

"We were very disappointed when the red pigment, used in paint at the time, immediately began to fade due to exposure," said Mary Adams, lighthouse committee member. "We are confident that we have selected a preparation methodology and coating that will stand up over time with this Tnemec system."

The Charlevoix South Pier Lighthouse is owned by the City of Charlevoix, and maintained under an agreement with the city by the Charlevoix Historical Society. The U.S. Coast Guard is responsible for operation and maintenance of the aids to navigation.

OBITUARY

Marion Katherine Florence Kleve Parker

Marion Katherine Florence Kleve Parker joined her Lord and Savior in heaven on Saturday, July 9, 2016, in Charlevoix, Mich. She passed of stroke complications after a life well lived. Born in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1929 to Carl and Mabel Kleve, she was 86. Marion, Kay and their six children were longtime residents in Charlevoix, renting homes in Pine Point until the family bought a home in the neighborhood in 1961. They moved to Charlevoix permanently in 1977 when Kay retired. Recently, Pine Point Association celebrated its 100th anniversary, and Marion was noted as one of the neighborhood's longest-standing residents.

Marion loved gardening, sewing, making quilts and helping others. But her great love was cooking. Raising six children as a stay-at-home mom, she faced the daily challenge of creating meals that would satisfy eight people.

Marion was a devoted mother, and she showed her love most through her cooking. One year, she even created a cookbook she gave to her children for Christmas called "What's For Dinner Mom?" It included all of her and their favorite recipes so they could recreate them in their adult lives.

As important to Marion as her family was her relationship with God. When she lived downstate she was very involved in her home church, Shepherd King Lutheran Church in West Bloomfield, and one year she served as the District Leader of the Lutheran Women's Missionary League. When she moved north, she became an active member of Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix and then Zion Lutheran Church in Petoskey.

In the 1980s, she studied in a program where she received her degree in evangelism. At Zion Lutheran, she was a member of the Board of Evangelism, and a leader in its prison ministry group, which visited Camp Pellston every Sunday night. In recent years, she led the Women's Bible Study program at Zion Lutheran.

Marion is survived by her children, Scott Waring Parker, Lance Rawdon Parker and his wife Kathy (Wimbish) Parker, Brian Kay Parker, Barry Kent Parker and his wife Tammy (Timms) Parker, Dean Parker and his partner Kelly Jervy, Suzanne (Parker) Sherinan and her husband Philip A. Sherman; and her grandchildren, Katie Parker and Stephen Parker. She is also survived by her brother, Donald Kleve, his wife, Billie; and her sisters-in-law, Daphne Kleve and Barbara Kleve.

She was preceded in death by husband, Kay Eugene Parker; her sister, Carol (Kleve) Stanziale; and her brothers, Kenneth and Herb Kleve.

Visitation was held at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix on Tuesday, July 12. Funeral services were at Zion Lutheran Church in Petoskey on Wednesday, July 13, Pastor Michael Teuscher officiated.

Memorial donations may be made to the Hospice of Northwest Michigan, 220 W. Garfield Ave., Charlevoix, MI 49720 in Marion's name.

An agricultural niche provided at Kiteley's Farm

CHARLEVOIX — In a season where Northern Michigan farms are cranking out their yearly abundance of cherries, berries, vegetables and the rest of the more prominently noted agricultural yields, Kiteley Farms in Charlevoix is doing business featuring more than just edible delights this year. Sue and Mike Kiteley are offering an extensive and fragrant cut flower garden at their 3805 Brock Road location.

It seems everyone from restaurants, conference and event organizers, and brides wanting that special and undeniably less expensive touch for their bouquets head to Kiteley's. The farm offers customers the choice of cutting and creating their own, bringing in a basket or vase for employees to fill or arrange, or buying one of the already available arrangements.

Customers are reminded to visit the hoop house with its masses of many colored sweet peas and other delicate lovelies available that goes along with the many flowering plants on the outside. The hoop house actually extends the season of the plants so that when early fall arrives and many of the blooms outdoors have gotten a bit leggy, those inside are still sitting pretty until hard frost and bitter temps take them away.

The original cutting garden was provided by Mike Kiteley's parents who previously owned the farm. But it has expanded with a greater variety and a longer growing season thanks to the hoop houses and bi-weekly sunflower plantings.

"It is a sensible way to get your flowers indoors without destroying your own landscape," said Sue Kiteley. "We expect to do cuttings from now through about the first week in September depending on the weather. And the type of flower available will vary depending on what is currently in season."

Kiteley Farm is open 8 a.m.-7 p.m. seven days a week from mid-June through September.

For more information, call (231) 547-2318; visit kiteleyfarms.com or find them on Facebook.

Farm-to table fundraiser to benefit hospital foundation

CHARLEVOIX — A unique farm-to-table dinner has been organized in support of Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital Foundation. Doors open at 5:30 p.m. with wine and appetizers, followed by dinner at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, July 28, at the Jordan Valley Barn in East Jordan.

Proceeds from the dinner will benefit the hospital's surgery suite and laboratory renovations that are currently underway. The project will add a third operating room, new pre- and post-operative patient rooms, and an overhaul of the entire surgery and laboratory units to better accommodate the rapid growth in outpatient procedures. This important project will meet the growing needs of the communities, and is part of the hospital's continual effort to provide high-quality, compassionate care close to home.

Caterer Mike Everts of Blackbird Gardens and Real Food Dream Kitchen is creating a delectable, one-of-a-kind four-course meal, all from locally sourced ingredients.

"We'll have gazpacho, then a family style main course of roasted lamb and seared walleye with several sides, followed by a European-style salad course, wrapping up with a delectable Basque cake with spruce tips, fresh strawberries, and white balsamic sauce," said event organizer and board member Charlotte Diller. "The night promises to be a wonderful experience infused with local flavor while also giving back to an important patient need in our area."

Brief presentations by several hospital speakers will share with guests the importance of the evening and the project it benefits.

Tickets are $125 per person, a portion of which is tax deductible, and can be purchased by contacting the Foundation office at (231) 547-8501.

Hestia awards $38,500 to local charitable groups

More than 50 members, guests, and grant recipients attended the recent Hestia Women's Giving Circle annual meeting at Petoskey-Bay View Country Club. A total of $38,500 was awarded to nonprofit organizations that support Hestia's mission of promoting the economic self-sufficiency and well-being of women and girls in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

Since Hestia's founding 10 years ago, grants totaling more than $344,825 have been awarded to local projects specifically geared to women and girls, including $136,620 to Planned Parenthood of West and Northern Michigan, and $101,223 to the Women's Resource Center. This year's recipients also included the First Tee of Northern Michigan, Leadership Charlevoix County, YMCA of Northern Michigan, Big Brothers Big Sisters of Northwest Michigan, and Petoskey Public Schools Debate and Robotics Programs.

Highlights of the evening were robot demonstrations by young women from the robotics team and the many heartfelt personal stories from grant recipients. Staff expressed gratitude for the unique support Hestia funds provide to their programs.

Program participants spoke of how their lives changed as they felt safe enough to step out of their comfort zones and learn new skills, find their voices, develop confidence and leadership abilities, advocate for themselves, discover a new life path, help others in need. Hearing stories from women and girls who were inspired by strong role models and in turn are inspiring others, made listeners know that Hestia Women's Giving Circle is making a difference.

Dhaseleer Farm shares 93-year family legacy

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

Growing up in the country provides children with life experiences unique to rural living—playing in creeks, roaming pastures looking for adventure, hiding in the barn loft. Your immediate family can become your worst enemies, partners in crime, co-workers in the field, best friends for life ... and sometimes business partners.

This is the rhythm of life on the Dhaseleer farm, in Charlevoix County—has been for generations, and if all goes well, will continue for years to come.

The farm has been in the family for 93 years. The legacy has been passed from grandfather, Henry, to Charles, and now to Carl.

The face of Dhaseleer's at the Charlevoix Farmer's Market is Carl's wife Cornelia, who graciously greets and explains the farm's herbs and produce and distributes information about the Events Barn, located on the property of their small farm on Paddock Road in Charlevoix.

The remodeled 1870s barn can be rented for weddings, receptions or family get-togethers. Music concerts are held in the barn weekly during the summer featuring many Michigan artists and genres.

As for the produce, Cornelia brings the fruit of the Dhaseleer fields to local farmer's markets (Charlevoix, Boyne City and Petoskey), stores and restaurants, everything in its season...strawberries, lettuce and microgreens first.

"As the summer goes on," she said, "rhubarb, blueberries, kale, herbs, and basil now; later on tomatoes, beans and all the garden veggies are followed by potatoes and root vegetables."

All produce and fresh cut flowers at Dhaseleer's are grown using sustainable practices and no pesticides. For a sampler, while cruising the Farmer's Market this week, Cornelia will encourage you try goat cheese, infused with the farm's herbs and microgreens.

Mel and Rhonda Guntzviller are the owners of the berry farm, which serves the Elk Rapids area with fresh, organically grown berries: strawberries, raspberries, blackberries in addition to fresh fruits and vegetables during the growing season.

The farm has six acres of raspberry fields and three acres of strawberries which at one time was a cherry orchard owned by Cupp's grandparents. It has been a berry farm for 30 years, according to Cupp. Her husband, Ben, works with her father in Mel's Excavating and also has his own stump grinding business.

The Guntzvillers are a family of entrepreneurs who have made a healthy and happy life in Northern Michigan doing what they love, while carrying on a family tradition, being good stewards of the land they inherited.

Cupp, along with some of the farm's 10 employees, works the farmer's markets in Traverse City on Mondays, Wednesdays in Traverse and Harbor Springs, Thursday morning in Charlevoix, and that afternoon in Alden. Friday Guntzvillers sell in Elk Rapids and Petoskey. Employees all pitch in to pick, run the farmer's markets and do maintenance on the farm.

"We like to travel in winter," said Callie, "so we are busy from May through September, working morning until night. In the winter, we like to go bear hunting in the Upper Peninsula, and fishing in Florida."

Nessa plays East Jordan's Memorial Park

EAST JORDAN – The Memorial Park bandshell in East Jordan will welcome the group Nessa to the stage at 7 p.m. on Friday, July 15.

Defined as a Celtic fusion group and referred to as "Celtic music with a Michigan twist" by NPR, this group comprises musicians that bring the energy of world music, thought-provoking folk music and the edge of rock which produces a truly unique performance.

Nessa is led by multi-instrumentalist/vocalist Kelly McDermott who is known for flute technique and soulful voice. McDermott is joined by co-founder/multi-instrumentalist Rob Crozier to research and arrange the music of Nessa. This team re-imagines the ballads and dances of the U.K. and Europe, uniquely blending elements of classical, folk, jazz, funk and world music to create rich, complex musical hybrids. The band moves audiences with funky reels, barn burner jigs and soulful glimpses of old stories.

Attendees may bring chairs or blankets to the park. Music in the Park Concert Series is co-sponsored by Jordan River Arts Council, East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce and the East Jordan Downtown Development Authority. For a list of upcoming performers visit www.ejchamber.org.

Hayes Township candidates

Hoadley hopes to retain township trustee seat

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Seven candidates are challenging two incumbents for two seats on the Hayes Township Board of Trustees in the upcoming August primary. Incumbent Paul Hoadley hopes voters will continue to support the current direction of the township board by re-electing him.

Hoadley, 71, feels this is a contested election because of Camp Sea-Gull and some of the challengers in this election want to reverse the work the current board has begun and that is why he is seeking re-election.

"It is all about the Hayes Township Camp Sea-Gull Park," Hoadley said. "There are seven people running for township trustee because of the park. Since there are trustee candidates who never wanted the park in the first place and those who strongly support what the township is doing with Camp Sea-Gull, the voters will determine the direction the township board will take on Camp Sea-Gull."

"I support the current plan of building a launch ramp and access road so that all can have access to Lake Charlevoix for beach access and boating," he added.

Hoadley is a 42-year resident of the township and has served the township in the past. From 1984-1996 he was township supervisor. He served on the Hayes Township Planning Commission prior to becoming township supervisor. He is currently a member of Hayes Township Parks and Recreation Committee and on the Zoning Board of Appeals.

He is currently serving as a township trustee to complete a term of a resigned board member.

"Doug Kuebler and Rich Burnett resigned their trustee positions in August 2015," he said.

Hoadley is a Vietnam veteran, worked as a registered nurse for 30 years and was a Michigan Certified Assessor for 22 years. He also plays trombone in the Charlevoix City Band and the Jordan Valley Community Band.

Hoadley said other important issues facing the township include maintaining zoning regulations that will protect the water quality of township lakes and streams, the continued development of Camp Sea-Gull Park so that all residents have access to Lake Charlevoix and road funding without asking for additional taxes.

"Road funding is a necessity since the Charlevoix County Road Commission is unable to fund any significant road repairs or construction," Hoadley said.

Hoadley and the other candidates seeking office in Hayes Township each have been invited to participate in a public community forum at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 18, at the Hayes Township Hall, 09195 Old U.S. 31 N., Charlevoix.

Nugent hopes voters will choose him to lead Hayes Township

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Hayes Township will elect a new supervisor this year, at a time when decisions will be made that might affect the community for a long time into the future. Warren Nugent, 62, hopes residents will choose him to take the helm.

He decided to seek office after being approached by residents once the news that current supervisor, Ethel Knepp, was not seeking re-election.

"I have considered

running for some time and have been asked to run from several residents of the township," Nugent said. "Ethel Knepp is retiring as township supervisor after serving the people for more than 40 years. With her support it is the right time to seek office."

Nugent and his wife, Mary Mathers-Nugent, have been residents of the township for 15 years. He has never held an elected office, but is an active volunteer in the township and serving as chairperson on the township's parks and recreation committee, he said.

Nugent holds a master's degree from Central Michigan University and is retired, after working 36 years for UPS Inc.

"I worked my way through the ranks working as a loader, driver, supervisor and finishing my career as an engineering manager," Nugent said.

One of the most important issues Nugent would like to address as supervisor is the township roads. Nugent would like to work with the board to come up with a plan that concentrates on the worst roads in the township.

"We have some roads in our township in serious need of repair starting with Quar-terline Road and the roads in Bay Shore," Nugent said.

Camp Sea-Gull also is on Nugent's radar as something that needs to be handled correctly as the township moves forward on its plans for the park.

"Camp Sea-Gull is a large undertaking for a township of our size as the board has voted to spend $650,000 general fund dollars for the boat launch," Nugent said. "We need to manage Camp Sea-Gull and make sure our park is one our township residents can use and be proud of."

Nugent vowed that he will listen to the people and will work to represent their interest and make sure tax dollars are spent sensibly.

"It is important that the board listens to the people of the township, spends their tax dollars wisely and limits regulations," Nugent said.

Nugent and the other candidates seeking office in Hayes Township each have been invited to participate in a public community forum at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 18, at the Hayes Township Hall, 09195 Old U.S. 31 N., Charlevoix.

The next generation Nathan Bartlett (center) moves into the general management role at Bartlett's Home Interiors. Bartlett joins his father, Bruce, and mother, Sue, at the longtime family business.

bringing Bartlett's Home Interiors fully into the 21st century. A 2001 Charlevoix High School graduate, he attended Grand Valley State University and earned a degree in information systems, with a minor in business. He was first employed by Best Buy in Grand Rapids, working as part of its Geek Squad team.

In 2010, the opportunity presented itself to work with Macprofessionals at Bay Harbor. There he provided tech services, became a business manager and eventually general manager of Macprofessionals.

In April, he joined the Bartlett family and staff as general manager, where he works on all the business tech systems including computers, communication, digital scheduling, phone systems and inter-office communication among employees.

"Nathan's biggest contributions so far are tech improvements," Sue said. "Our employees work with clients on i-Pads to design or view possible selections. We also now have Monday morning staff meetings where we get input and share suggestions."

Bartlett is getting to know all aspects of the business and is accompanying Sue at trade shows and they will be attending a flooring convention in October at a furniture market in North Carolina.

"When I was younger," Bartlett said, "I didn't want to do what my dad did. It didn't appeal to me. I worked for him part time and saw what he did."

"I remember seeing my grandpa crawling around on his hands and knees measuring for carpet," he added. "My parents never pushed me into the decision to join the business. I decided that if I were to come, it would only be on the premise that I could do something different and use my tech and business skills. A year ago I took a look at the possibility of joining Bartlett's and felt out what my responsibilities might be."

Bartlett felt this was a positive career move. He made an exit plan with Macprofessionals and came on board. Since he arrived on the scene, Bartlett's have hired a new accountant and two new floor salespersons to bring the total number of full-time employees to 11.

"I always want to have an open door policy and connect personally with all our employees," Bartlett said. "By working together and talking with one another every day, I think we will continue to maintain the customer satisfaction for which we have always been known."

His addition to the family business has been an asset, Bruce said.

"We've already had great feedback from our clients and the community when they meet him," Bruce said, "or hear that he's here now and planning to stay in town. I've always told Nathan to do what makes him happy; never tried to drag him into the business. It was great to hear that he wanted to join us and take us on our next steps."

CAFETERIA

Future park use also is expected to include beach access, boat launch and a fishing pier on Lake Charlevoix.

Though most township residents agree with goals set for the park, there are a few who disagree with the removal of the cafeteria building.

This group of residents would like to see the building rehabilitated and rented out to provide income for the park.

Ron Van Zee, who is running for supervisor in the August primary, also would like to see the cafeteria building remain in the park.

"(Cafeteria) building could enhance park use in the off season," Van Zee said.

Though the building is in better condition than some of the other structures on the property, engineers recommend its removal to provide proper parking for future park use.

"It is the most reasonable place to provide parking without spending a great deal of money to build retaining walls for parking in other locations of the park," said Jim Malewitz, of Performance Engineers, Inc.

Hayes Township Trustee Paul Hoadley believes removing the cafeteria is the best option for the township.

"I understand that people want to save this building," Hoadley said. "But it is too expensive for us to keep. It will be much less and offer the same view of the lake to build the parking lot and construct a pavilion for park users where the cafeteria sits now."

Trustee candidate Jerry Simpson also agrees that the cafeteria should be removed.

"We have beat this horse for long enough," Simpson said. "I have sat in for almost every meeting for the park plan and I did not hear a large vocal group that we did not want this. I believe we have a solid plan. There is no good reason to keep this building."

Knepp is glad the board is moving forward with the sale of the building so the township can continue the direction township residents set forth for the park.

"I think this is a bad thing for our township to drag this on," Knepp said. "The board has accepted that we cannot save the cafeteria building and its time to move forward."

Though a more recent edition, the Venetian Beach Volleyball Tournament has grown each passing year and is now an important part of the Venetian Games calendar.

Let the games begin: Long-running Venetian Games continues to delight locals, visitors

JAMES GUNTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgunterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Venetian Games have been an important part of Charlevoix's annual Venetian Festival for 16 years now.

But with each passing year, the Games continue to grow in variety and participation, adding new flavor and bringing even more visitors to Charlevoix for its annual celebration.

With 15 sporting events that encompass the week-long festival, there's no denying that the Venetian Games have become an indelible part of the 86-year old celebration.

Several events, including the Drenth footrace, the sailing regatta and the 3-on-3 basketball tournament, pre-date the Venetian Games' official start date in 2000, a sign that competition has always been an important part of the festival.

But the official christening of the Games in 2000 marked a major turning point in the number of events and in participation in those events.

The annual 3-on-3 Basketball tournament at Ferry Beach is one of the Venetian Games' oldest, most popular, and best attended events.

"When the festival management shifted from the Chamber to the (Venetian) Board, it became evident that several sporting events needed to continue to be held during the festival," Venetian Games commissioner and founder Dean Davenport said. "We thought other sports should be added so tennis, swimming, golf, soccer, croquet and volleyball were offered and we recruited individuals to serve as game managers for each event.

"Suddenly, the 'Venetian Games' were born."

Along with attracting more visitors to the festival to participate, the Games also give a chance for Charlevoix to honor the memories of some of its most famous community members, and to help local school programs raise funds.

"The Carey Cup (junior golf tournament) recognizes the memory of long-time manager of the Municipal Golf Course, Keith Carey, who early on recognized the value of allowing youngsters to use the course, and the both the Jeff Drenth and Ryan Shay memorial races recognize great local runners whose lives were cut short by untimely deaths," Davenport said. "The soccer tournament and the footrace provide funds for the high school soccer, track and cross country programs as well.

"Revenue from the 3 on 3 basketball event aids youth basketball programs, and the community pool benefits from the Venetian Swim Championships."

The continued success of the Venetian Games wouldn't be possible without extensive community involvement, especially from the managers of the various events, Davenport said.

"The success of our Games is directly traced back to the event managers," Davenport said. "They are terrific and many have been with us for years, but new faces have also emerged and the Games haven't lost a beat.

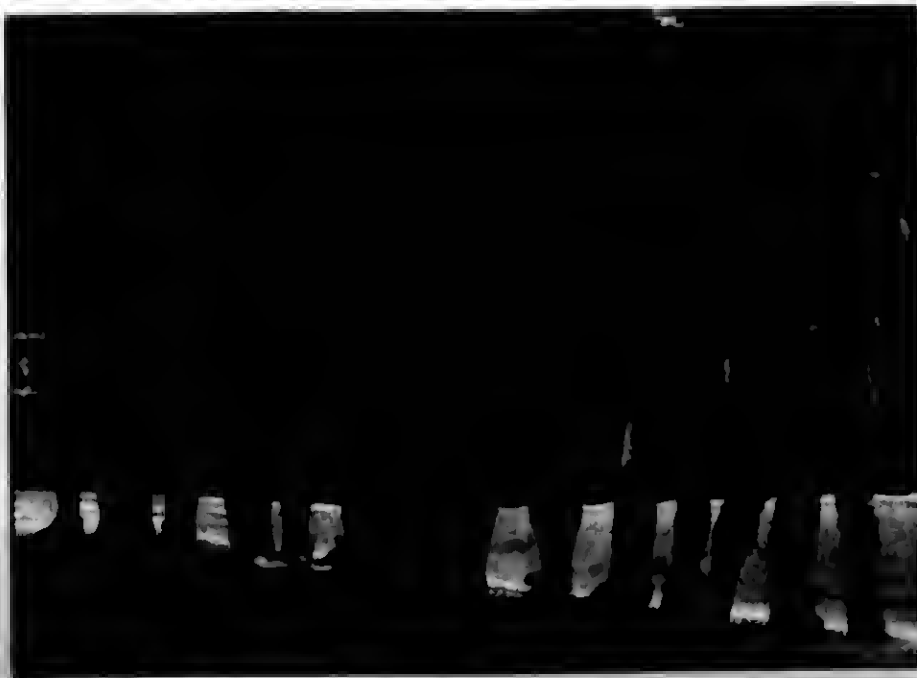

"Congratulations to managers and participants for 16 years of providing sport opportunities for many. You have made the Venetian Games an integral part of our community's homecoming — the Venetian Festival."

A complete schedule of sporting events for the upcoming games is attached to this story, and more information and registration for several events can be found at charlevoix.recdesk.com.

Spectators are welcome and encouraged to attend any and all events they are interested in.

The squad took on Gaylord in the semifinals on Monday and the results will be in next week's Courier. That run came to an end one win short of the goal against Haren East on Saturday, as Charlevoix fell in the final, but the team's strong performance bodes well for the future of Charlevoix softball. Camp Sea-Gull a big issue at local candidates' forum

(231) 547-6558 - allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Local candidates on the ballot for the upcoming August primary election in Hayes Township gathered to answer questions Monday night at the township hall.

More than 40 residents attended the candidate forum, co-hosted by Sam Williamson and Tom Darnton, Hayes Township residents.

Williamson is an emeritus professor of economics at Miami University in Athens, Ohio, and past president of the Lake Charlevoix Association. Darnton is a Realtor in Charlevoix and a retired civil law attorney. Scott Smith, an Emmet County Resort Township resident and independent candidate for Emmet County commissioner, moderated the forum.

"We felt it was best to have a non-resident moderate the forum because he is independent from township politics," Williamson said of Smith.

Township candidates spent an hour answering audience questions that were narrowed down to the same five questions for each candidate. Topics included Camp Sea-Gull, roads, zoning, non-motorized trail, and the township master plan.

In her opening statement, Hayes Township Clerk Marlene Golovich said she enjoys serving her community and will continue the work at Camp Sea-Gull put forth by the board if re-elected.

"This park is worth what we are doing," Golovich said. "Once the park is complete it will be a park that all people can access and will be here for generations

Cool times at Aquapalooza

LONNIE ALLEN/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Stephanie Bullard, 7-year-old daughter, Emma, and 9-year-old son, Brandon, of North Carolina enjoy their first Aquapalooza at Ferry Beach in Charlevoix on Saturday.

Venetian brings family home

CHARLEVOIX — Stephanie Bullard guided her two children through the warm water of Lake Charlevoix on a paddleboard. Emma, 7, and 9-year-old Brandon are enjoying the ride, as mom maneuvered them through the crowds of people and boats in the water at Ferry Beach.

That was Saturday, the first day of the 86th annual Venetian Festival and Bullard and her children traveled from North Carolina to be part of it.

"We are having a great time spending our vacation with the family in Charlevoix," Bullard said. "This is our first Venetian Festival and Aquapalooza is a lot of fun."

Since its inception, Aquapalooza has become one of the highlights of Venetian Festival each summer in Charlevoix.

Parade grand marshals humbled by their choice

This is one of the reasons Roger and his wife, Annette, were selected as Grand Marshals for the parade.

The Nesburgs were chosen to lead the parade in honor of their dedication and countless contributions to Venetian each year. Annette for many years has chaired the Venetian Kids Day events and Roger works behind the scenes putting in the extra hours to help make the festival happen for those attending, said Dan Barron, festival board president.

"Annette and Roger exemplify humble service and help keep the spirit of Venetian alive in the events they are involved in," Barron said. "Annette for many years has helped make Kids Day a success. Her humble, take charge personality epitomizes the spirit of the festival. And Roger always puts in the extra time for this festival. He has countless volunteer hours and continued work with shirt printing for the festival is significant to this board. The couples work on Venetian each year combined makes them a clear choice for parade Grand Marshals."

Annette said they're definitely honored and proud to be part of the whole Venetian Festival.

"Rodger does all the merchandise production and takes care of banners and anything else," she said. "I've been involved the past 15 years with kids day," Annette said.

She added the whole family is involved in many different volunteer forms.

"I think this an honor and because I think this a remarkable festival that requires hard work by local volunteers," Roger said. "It's the high point of the year it's been a long running event. I think it's an honor to be chosen. We are overwhelmed."

Roger has been involved with the festival for about 30 years.

"Venetian is a greater appreciation," he said. "I can see it all around me. It's not just putting up a tent. It's about the community coming together to celebrate and volunteer."

City OKs purchase of 2 snow guns for $28,000

JORDAN SPENCE
(231) 439-9397 - jspence@peninsulainews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Mount McSauba will have more help making snow this winter.

The Charlevoix City Council approved the purchase of two snow guns at its regular Monday meeting.

The two guns are $14,000 each and they are portable.

"This will help make snow on the sledding hill and ice rink also," Bo Boss said. "Right now we have one portable to make do."

Boss said the guns will be purchased from Nub's Nob.

"Their open market is about $30,000 a piece, so we're getting a deal," Boss said. "The lifespan is indefinite if we take good care of them."

Boss said he was thankful for the offer from Nub's Nob's Jim Bartlett and that Bartlett has been with him "every step of the way."

The motion passed unanimously.

The council also approved creation of a Mount McSauba activities focus group to be formed.

City manager Mark Heydlauff said the group would work with the Recreation Advisory Committee. The group would meet on occasion and discuss activities, events and organized use of the area. Heydlauff said the group would consist of "stakeholders"

Beaver Island dig turns up intriguing discoveries

Beaver Island is located on Lake Michigan, a two-hour ferry ride from Charlevoix. Its residents have included Native Americans, French fur trappers and traders, a Mormon sect called the Strangites whose leader declared himself king, and Irish immigrants. There was even a "secretive émigré from Russia who dispensed medical help to the islanders without charge," according to the Beaver Beacon. Despite its unique and fascinating past, relatively little physical evidence of the island's early history exists. Northern Michigan University's summer archaeological field school is helping to fill that void while giving students hands-on experience in excavation techniques and artifact analysis.

Northern Michigan University associate professor Scott Demel, former head of anthropology collections management at Chicago's Field Museum, directs the field school. He and 17 students wrapped up an investigation of the early historic fishing village of Cable Bay, where they discovered prehistoric pottery for the first time.

They also completed a third season of digging behind the Mormon Print Shop, erected in 1850 and now headquarters for the Beaver Island Historical Society. The sides of the square pits offered a stratified view of historical occupations. Transitioning from the deepest layer upward, students found artifacts from the Late Woodland period of the Ottawa (AD 900-1,000); the protohistoric era (1600-early 1800s), when European goods and people arrived; and the historic period from the Mormons' arrival through modern times. Troweling and screening the soil filtered out pottery sherds, animal and fish bone, charred plant remains, stone tool fragments, debris from knapping flint and evidence of hearths. Students also uncovered an intriguing linear wall feature with post holes. Demel said it might have been a longhouse, a dwelling built and inhabited by Native Americans. An elk jaw and teeth were also found along the wall.

At French Bay, on the island's southwest side, the Northern Michigan University group looked for the remains of three log cabins discovered during a 2012 survey in which students lined up and walked the entire property with compasses and GPS units.

"We're doing shovel probe tests to determine what age these cabins are," Demel said, shortly before the four-week program concluded. "Some of the diagnostic artifacts we've come across include ceramic sherds, a clay pipe stem, buttons and glass bottles. This was likely a logging camp because there are still cut logs near the shore with about six inches of moss growth on them. There's even a signpost in the woods you can hardly read. It's probably been here for 100 years."

"There's no shortage of sites to investigate," Demel added. "We did the Burke's Farm homestead. We still have to search for the earliest site from the archaic period, which would be on higher elevations inland because of the higher lake levels back then. It's rewarding to be the first to confirm French trade goods on the island. We found glass beads, brass furniture tacks that were used to decorate gun stocks and cut brass rolled into hair tubes and tinkler cones for jingle dresses. There were also a couple iron projectile points. That's unusual; those are normally made of stone."

There is some indication that island natives built a fort for French soldiers who agreed to help defend the island against a threatened attack. The soldiers reportedly stayed about a year, sealed their canoes in a cave marked with a special stone, then departed with whatever belongings they could carry across the ice. In a feasible location, Demel and the students found a pillow-shaped chunk of limestone that clearly looks out of place, but they did not see signs of a cave during a brief walking survey. A more thorough investigation will take place at the next field school and may be aided by lidar, a survey detection system that works on the principle of radar, but uses light from a laser.

The Beaver Island field school provides students with the necessary experience for a career in cultural resource management, documenting archaeological sites before they are potentially destroyed by construction or natural processes. Northern Michigan University students paused during their final day of field research to reflect on the experience.

"It's been a lot of work, but also a lot of fun," said Nicole Taylor of Pinckney, who is pursuing a degree in environmental studies and sustainability with a minor in anthropology. "It's neat to live in the same place you're doing an excavation. The locals are into the history of the island and curious about what we're doing. They'll stop by the site and ask what we're finding. It's cool that they express an interest and it's fun sharing our progress with them."

The field school was the last Northern Michigan University class for Marleena McDaniels, a history major and anthropology major from Mulliken.

"I feel I'm more knowledgeable when it comes to identifying artifacts," McDaniels said. "Before, something might have just looked like an ordinary rock. Now I have a better-trained eye to understand what it might be. The best way to understand the process is to apply the techniques in the field. We've learned how to survey, shovel probe, excavate, use GPS and compasses and map the location of artifacts. We also spend time in the lab each night analyzing and discussing what we found."

Ryan Peterson, an anthropology major from Iron River, said the summer program was valuable preparation for graduate school. "I've always loved learning about the past; not so much through documentation, but artifacts. People can write anything down, but artifacts don't lie. You find distinct things in layers and can figure out what they are and what period they come from."

Artifact analysis can take two to three years. As that is completed on campus, an Northern Michigan University museum studies class—also taught by Demel—will collaborate with the Beaver Island Historical Society to incorporate the artifacts into new exhibits for the facility's planned expansion.

The six-credit Northern Michigan University archaeological field school has been offered alternating summers since 2010. Northern Michigan University rents cabins and lab space for the program from the Central Michigan University Biological Station on Beaver Island.

CHARLEVOIX — For more than a century the Charlevoix City Band has provided musical entertainment to residents and visitors throughout the area.

Each year the Charlevoix Summer Band concerts highlight Tuesday nights in East Park as they have for many years, said Gary Stutzman, city band director.

"It's very unique to have a band performing in a community for more than a century," said Stutzman.

In 2015 the Charlevoix City Band received Sudler Historic Community

"It's very unique to have a band performing in a community for more than a century."

Gary Stutzman, city band director

Band Award, which is presented by the John Philip Sousa Foundation. Historic photographs, old newspaper clippings, and letters of recommendation, were submitted for the committee's review. The award is "the highest award for community bands in America."

The Charlevoix City Band is one of 10 bands in the country that hold this honor. There will be a special award presentation at the band's 7 p.m. concert on Tuesday, July 26, at East Park.

"The city band is honored to receive this recognition," Stutzman said.

Gail Brechting, conductor and music director of the West Michigan Concert WINDS, will present the award. The public is invited to celebrate the landmark occasion.

The recognition is given to a community band, which has been in existence for more than 100 years. The Charlevoix City Band's history dates back to the late 1880s, which performed at community picnics and services, festivals, Fourth of July celebrations, and to resorts throughout Charlevoix.

The historic importance of the band was evaluated in respect to the band's impact on the present day community band effort. Today, different generations of band members play in the community band.

"It's pretty significant to have a community band playing in the same community for that many years," Stutzman said. "We have many members who are great musicians that return each summer to perform with the city band."

City manager, township supervisor tangle in croquet match Heydlauff's win secures city's fire truck spot in Venetian Parade

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • allen@charlevoixcourier.com

Editors note: The following article is written to be a lighthearted story done in good fun to go along with the spirit of the annual Venetian Festival. The following comments by the Charlevoix City Manager and Charlevoix Township Supervisor are also said in the spirit of having fun and should not be considered as contentious rivalry.

CHARLEVOIX — The whack of a wooden mallet connecting with a one-pound plastic ball gave a lively sound that sliced through the drone of nearby vehicle traffic on Bridge Street Monday.

It was a postcard-perfect sunny day. But Charlevoix City Manager Mark Heydlauff's gaze was mostly fixed downward at the grass on the croquet court in Bridge Park for the game of games between the city and Charlevoix Township.

"I have homefield advantage and I am using every resource available to win this game today," Heydlauff said.

Heydlauff and Charlevoix Township Supervisor Chuck Center faced off against each other in the annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival Cottage Croquet Tournament. The two were competing against each other to decide whose fire truck would lead the other departments in the annual Venetian Festival Street Parade on Saturday.

"We used to trade off each year on who would go first," Center said. "This year, I have me out here playing this silly game."

Silly? No. Intense? Yes, as Heydlauff with his red croquet ball and Center playing the yellow ball began their game play.

Heydlauff took the lead right from the start sending his ball through the wickets with ease. Center knew he had to step up and get the advantage, but continued to struggle. He lined up his shot and swings, but his ball barely reached its intended destination. "The grass is too long," Center said. "Obviously the court was set to the advantage of the city manager." As Center attempted to maintain his composure during Heydlauff's continued advance, the sparks of passionate combat rise.

Center goes on the defensive and considers the ball lying in front of him on the green and ponders the best way to send it to its ideal destination.

Finally, he swings. The impact sends the ball exactly where it needs to go — into a collision with his opponent's ball on the green. Center uses this get some extra shots on the green, but Heydlauff's lead was already secured.

Heydlauff won two consecutive matches to secure the lead for the city's fire truck. "It was a lot of fun to be part of the games with Chuck," Heydlauff said. "The fun we shared today is a good reminder of the fun people come to experience Venetian week in Charlevoix."

Brown Bag campaign: Spotlight shines on children in foster care

ALEXANDRA RICHARDS
(231) 439-9362 arichards@petoskeynews.com

The Brown Bag Campaign is coming to newspapers of Northern Michigan to let residences know about the difference they can have in children lives if they are prepared to help. During the campaign, readers of Northern Michigan papers will find a small brown paper bag printed with different stories, with the message of heart break and hope; detailing how despite having faced too much trauma in their short lives already, children can overcome those experiences with the help of others.

The Brown Bag Campaign has raised more than $350,000 for children in the foster care system. The campaign seeks to remind the community about the struggle children face when they enter into the foster care system and their need for stable, affectionate and disciplined parenting. It also is a reminder for the need of clothing, school supplies, transportation, and opportunities such as music lessons and summer camps.

"The Brown Bag Campaign represents the fact that children often come into foster care very quickly and suddenly, with their personal items stuffed into brown paper or plastic bags," said Gina Aranki, communications director of Child and Family Services. "It's also a reminder that we need people who have the room in their hearts and homes to become foster and adoptive parents. We are grateful to everyone who has helped make this effort so successful."

One couple who have opened up their home and their hearts to children in Child and Family Services is Jennifer and Nicholas Krarup. The Krarup family have fostered 11 children and adopted their two daughters Izabell and Abigail since entering getting involved with Child and Family services in 2013. Not only have they given a tremendous amount of their time and energy, but they also have experienced how much the service gives back.

"We didn't just become a surrogate family for children who needed to know what it was like to be loved and were able to mend families, we also joined the family unknowingly of our own," Jennifer said.

On Sept. 1, 2015, the Krarup family had a house fire and lost everything.

"Child and Family Services swooped in like an angel and wrapped their arms around us and really acted as a surrogate family in our hour of need," Jennifer said. "Our case workers were at our home with blankets, tooth brushes, gift cards, everything you could possible need. They held us up when we were weak and made sure we weren't alone."

Child and Family Services averages about 100 children a day in out-of-home placement, and has served more than 16,000 children in foster care since 1937. Children are placed in foster care because of abuse, neglect, or delinquency, and range in age from newly born to 18 years. While foster care is their largest program, Child and Family Services also helps strengthen families and nurture children through adoption, intensive family preservation, supervised visitation and exchange, counseling, parenting education, and advocacy.

Jennifer noted how rewarding the experience of fostering a child can be, however she also noted some of the challenges she has faced as a foster mom.

"The most challenging experience is realizing the different levels of neglect that a child can face," Jennifer said. "Being there as a child learns to love and what its like to touch someone with a hug or kiss. It's a challenge to your heart to realize that this is something that they didn't know before. The mental side is the hardest... Its the hardest job you will ever have but the out come, knowing you made a difference in child and their families life, makes it all worthwhile."

For more information on the Brown Bag Campaign, or on how to become a licensed foster or adoptive parent, call Child and Family Services at (231) 946 8975 or visit www.cfsnmi.org.

CHARLEVOIX — Following a devastating fire that destroyed a portion of its clubhouse, the Charlevoix Country Club plans to have a new restaurant built by Memorial Day 2017.

The fire, which occurred June 18, is believed to have started in the clubhouse's kitchen.

"We were allowed by the insurance company to start demo on Monday," said Alana Haley, marketing manager at the Charlevoix Country Club. "They actually made a lot of progress. Everything is removed. It's nice it's cleaned up. You don't see a lot of burned-out rubble."

Haley said the extent of the damage is still being assessed by the club's insurance provider.

"Our owner will be rebuilding," she said. "He's hoping to have the pro shop and offices ready to move in by this year."

"Next summer we will continue to build out to add an event space (with) a small room and large room for weddings. It will be a different configuration, more useful for everything."

She added the golf course is busy and weddings still take place in the event barn.

"The only thing we're missing is food service for the golfers," she said. "We've purchased a mobile kitchen to do light food service for golfers on the course for the rest of the season. Things are looking up. People have been really wonderful."

Local seniors receive Michigan Student Service Award

This year, three graduating seniors were awarded for their volunteerism by receiving the Michigan Student Service Award. This award is the premier statewide program recognizing high school graduates who benefit their communities by volunteering 400 hours throughout their time in high school. Petoskey High School seniors Emily Kurhurski and Kinsley Williams and Central Lake's senior Channing Hoogerhyde are the ones that went above and beyond with volunteering throughout their high school career.

"This award is an outstanding example of the collaboration between our volunteer center, local schools, and organizations helping youth to start a lifetime of community service," said Becca Marcott, an AmeriCorps VISTA member with Char-Em United Way. "Through their extensive volunteer work, these three students are a positive example for all students in Northern Michigan."

Any high school student in Emmet or Charlevoix County is eligible to earn the Michigan Student Service Award. They must document 400 volunteer hours over the course of their four years in high school. This is easy to do if the students use volunteer connections, an online volunteer program from Char-Em United Way, which will help students track and keep their hours. Along with receiving the award a student also receives a medal to wear on graduation day.

The Michigan Student Service Award can do a lot for students, providing learning through their volunteer experiences, which can't be taught in a traditional school. Volunteering can help with various things such as learning new skills, gaining experience, exploring careers, meeting people with similar interests, and adding to a resume for jobs or college. There is no better way to get knowledge of something than getting first-hand experience because in about any job employers want employees who have experience in what they're applying for and that's exactly what volunteering can do. Colleges want students that can show they help out and care about their community as well. The three graduates could attest to volunteering helping them in these areas as well.

The program is administered by volunteer connections, a service of Char-Em United Way. Volunteer Connections serves the volunteer needs of Charlevoix and Emmet counties, by providing resources for volunteer recruitment, recognition, and management. For more information, call Char-Em United Way at (231) 487-1006 or www.charemunitedway.org.

Affordable housing possibilities coming to Boyne City

JORDAN SPENCE
(231) 439-9397 - jspence@petoskeynews.com

Boyne City could see added affordable housing created in the next couple years.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners took action on three properties in the city.

"What their (land bank) request is, is to purchase the property for Northern Homes," said Joel Evans, the commission's chairman.

What happens is the county buys the properties and pays the back taxes on those properties, said Marilyn Cousineau, the county's treasurer and chairwoman of the Charlevoix County Land Bank Authority.

"The land bank then buys those from the county and then they sell to Northern Homes," she said.

Northern Homes is a nonprofit that works with the Michigan State Housing Development Authority out of Boyne City.

"At foreclosure time they look at what we have. They want to get affordable housing in Boyne," she said.

One parcel has a cost of $2,517.19 and is vacant land, another costs $1,494.56 and is also vacant. The third is worth $3,889.31 and has a house on the land. Northern Homes wants to fix up the home and land to sell, Cousineau said.

Bear Earth Herbals connecting with nature

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

Sierra Bigham is a certified herbalist who is passionate about her mission of bringing accurate knowledge of herbal remedies to the local public. As far as she knows, she is the only person in Michigan to be certified to wild-harvest plants: mint, raspberry leaves, sumac berries, St. John's Wort and red clover to name a few. As such, she is an advocate of sustainable wild harvesting.

"This means, leaving the environment better than I found it," she said.

Bigham spent 12 years of trial and error and a mastered a three-year on-line correspondence course in order to attain her certification.

"I was born interested in plants and herbs," Bigham said, of her Kalkaska area childhood. "My parents were kind of hippies so I was raised with music and learning natural ways. When I was little I would build forts and eat and sleep outdoors."

As a little girl she spent most of her time in nature exploring, building, tasting and smelling. At age 7, she was determined to move into the forest full time, but by the age of 9, the fear of things creepy and crawly crept in and she temporarily postponed her forest stay. When Bigham was 16 she got the itch again and finished high school a year early to move out into the subtropical forest of Kailua Valley on the Napali Coast of Kauai, Hawaii where she spent the majority of the next four years.

"Everyday living out there was truly human. Gathering wood, water, plants for food and medicine, connecting with nature and other feral beings," she said. "With trickles of knowledge and a few moldy books, my passion for herbal medicine grew. I continued to practice on my family and friends, with some good results and the occasional mishap. Upon moving back with my son to my home of Northern Michigan I knew I would pursue a life in herbal medicine."

Bigham has taught classes at North Central Michigan College, at the Human Nature School, an educational program in Traverse City, and was a speaker at the Small Farms Conference held at the Grand Traverse Resort last January. Some of her classes have addressed such issues as herbs for women's health and identifying and use of medicinal trees and plants. She conducts herb walks and has directed a tincture making class.

"Many people are over-using essential oils," she said. "Some oils can actually be toxic in large doses and have other adverse reactions that bring people, who have been unaware of their possible toxicity, to emergency rooms. In our products, we use small amounts of essential oils and a large amount of whole fresh herbs mixed with a base like shea butter or some other substance to make a salve. There are a lot of properties that are in herbs, that aren't in essential oils. These factors distinguish ours from other body care products."

Bigham's sister, Summer, make herbal teas to compliment the enterprise.

"It's the same concept as eating local," she said.

"Using and ingesting herbs that are better adapted to your environment in Northern Michigan, just make sense."

Linda Mueller's dream: Monarchs for a castle

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — In 1999, when Castle Farms went up for sale after a series of attempts to recreate an enduring venue among the ruins of the old Castle, Linda Mueller, who had family ties to the Charlevoix area, stepped up to the plate.

The Muellers purchased the historic land and stone remains and saved the property from falling into disrepair by transforming it into a magnificent, popular wedding and event destination in Charlevoix.

Her fascination with the property over the years, the influences of the magnificent architecture observed during the Muellers travels in Europe and their ability to finance the undertaking, all played a part in the final decision to move forward with the purchase. Renovation and reconstruction within the guidelines for historic accuracy were right up Linda's alley, as an art historian from Gulfport, Mississippi. Richard, for his part, blessed with investment returns from Domino's Pizza franchises (135 stores primarily in Mississippi and Louisiana), was able to allow Linda free reign in pursuing her dream of creating the fairy tale royal castle event venue that Castle Farms has become today.

The Castle for Linda, a deeply spiritual and simple woman of faith, is a labor of love from which she takes constant delight. The building and its formal and informal gardens surrounding the castle, took shape in a series of well-thought-out expansion projects, the result of research and a touch of whimsy.

She researches her historic collections with love, and for accuracy. There is an antique toy collection, a historic restoration photo collection, museum collection pieces (tools, games and dolls), bridal gowns, wedding cake toppers, a mouse trap collection, and a royal commemorative china collection among the treasures carefully displayed for the enjoyment of visitors.

One hallway wall celebrates the years (1970-1990) that Castle Farms was a major music theater that attracted big name performers and thousands of concert-going fans. The Castle Farms Album Quilt hangs high in the foyer above the showcases in one of the main halls. It depicts the stages of the restoration process of Castle Farms from 2001-2006, the year that she completed the quilt, which was made entirely by her hands.

With such dedication and persistence in creating a fantasy world at the castle, it is no wonder that in meeting Linda and hearing that she continues to dream of new additions to her gardens, comes as no surprise. Today, she is all about monarch butterflies.

"Isn't that perfect for a castle?" she said. "Monarchs, how appropriate will that be?"

With a sheaf of on-line butterfly research notes, monarch migration flight pattern charts, and a box of milkweed pod-bearing microscopic monarch eggs in the trunk of her car, Linda is en route to a temporary butterfly house constructed near one of the gardens.

"My dream is to become a monarch butterfly way-station on the monarch's migration path," she said. "To qualify, you have to have a certain number of approved plants per square foot."

Linda reports that monarchs like nectar flowers like zinnias and hollyhocks, butterfly bushes and lantana. She has planted her gardens with this in mind and has incorporated milkweed pods, the plant on which they like to lay their eggs, right in the design.

The rose gardens are planted in memory of her father, who grew roses, back in Ohio. Monarchs really aren't interested in roses, but they are a lovely adornment, according to Linda.

"My roses are nearly thornless. I wanted a species that is fragrant, disease free, cold hearty, and pretty, like a perfect wife," she said, with a gentle smile.

Linda started her butterfly operation in June, when she got a first shipment from Swallow Tail Farms, an on-line supplier. She ordered 12 butterflies at first, then 12 more.

"Monarchs come individually boxed, cooled down and ready to fly, which they will, when they warm up to room temperature," she said.

Two weeks after she received the shipment of monarchs, she noticed little eggs on the swamp milkweed she had purchased at Pine Hill Nursery for that purpose. Monarch eggs. She kept them at home where she could keep an eye on them until the weather was warm enough for them to survive — above 62 degrees. Until the eggs on the milkweed pods go through the necessary stages of metamorphosis and emerge from their cocoons, monarchs and painted ladies, are fluttering around the tented enclosure that is the current butterfly house. She is careful to let the butterflies out if they show signs of wanting to fly away. She is respectful of nature and uses only organic products to fertilize and maintain her gardens.

Nurturing flowers and butterflies is only part of Linda's mission. At the peak season the Mueller's staff 40 employees, 12 of whom are full time. In the summer, they may hire as many as 30 young people to help with events and the grounds.

"We have many that begin working for us in high school, and then work their way up," she said. We start them off and teach them skills, then watch as they mature. I'm very impressed with the younger generation," she said. "I think they will be just fine."

The Mueller's are committed to their presence in Charlevoix. They ask themselves how they can help make their town even better with every new endeavor they embark upon. Like the introduction of monarchs, each addition or improvement is in sync with the Mueller philosophy of being good stewards of their land... which just happens to be a castle.

Memorial horse show benefit set for July 24

The Nataleigh Musser Memorial Horse Show will be at 2 p.m. Sunday, July 24, at the fairgrounds in Petoskey. The public is invited to this free, speed horse show will be both a memorial event and a fundraiser for Musser's son Noah. Locals will remember Nataleigh Musser as the young mother who drowned in Round Lake in Charlevoix last winter.

The show will include cloverleaf barrel race, flag race, speed and action, pole bending, and keyhole classes, as well as FUNd raisers like egg 'n spoon and ride a buck. There are classes for all ages and skill levels. There will be a silent auction, door prizes, a concession stand, and overall high point awards in each age division for the riders.

Many area businesses have contributed items for the silent auction and door prizes, some are horse related and some such as gift certificates to local restaurants and more, would appeal to all. Commemorative T-shirts have been printed and will be available for sale the day of the show. The show is hosted by the Emmet-Charlevoix Area 4-H Horse Council and the Mane Attraction 4-H Club.

According to show organizer, Cyndy Shaw, "I cannot think of a better way to remember and honor Nataleigh, she was an award-winning barrel racer, a 4-H'er, and a member of the high school equestrian team. She would have loved this."

Nataleigh Musser's family, her fiancé Peter and son Noah will be special guests at the show.

Show organizers are still accepting items for the silent auction, or contributions from businesses and the community. For more information on silent auction donations call, Cyndy Shaw (231) 838-8666.

"My feeling is you need experts," said council member Shirley Gibson. "Stakeholders aren't experts. I think as long as they don't make decisions, it should be OK. Because experts should do that."

Council member Aaron Hagen said the committee wouldn't take any actions.

"They're just reporting back to the advisory committee," he said.

Charlevoix resident and former council member Jeff Porter said a number of years ago there was a parks commission and a recreation commission, then they were combined into one.

"It's a terrible mistake," he said.

This free community event celebrates the kickoff to a festival that brings friends and family back home.

"It is great weather," said Dan Barron, president of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival. "We have a very good turnout and the people are having fun."

Many of those who attend the festival have ties to Charlevoix and use this time to reconnect with the people they grew up with.

Cam and Brooke Canupp, who were enjoying the Aquapalooza festivities, traveled from California to spend their vacation where they grew up.

"We come back each year," Brooke said. "(Venetian) is so much fun because everyone you know is here."

Cam and Brooke can visit Charlevoix anytime, but they choose Venetian because it's homecoming for the town.

"Everyone is home," Cam said. "All of your family and your friends from high school are home. It is the best time to see the people you know."

It is estimated that more than 100,000 people enjoy the festival activities, a blend of locals and out-of-town visitors in equal measure, Barron said.

"It's become a homecoming celebration for residents of Charlevoix and we see the most reunions during Venetian," Barron said. "The mix of tourists and those returning to their roots promotes the festive atmosphere of the festival."

The homecoming brings out the camaraderie of the community, which represents the Venetian spirit, he said.

"The support of the city and entire community is a great reflection of how we all come together to make this festival happen for everyone to enjoy," Barron said.

to come."

Each candidate who attended the forum also supported the current park plan that proposes an American Disabilities Act accessible park. But they also said moving forward requires listening to township residents.

"I know the park is contentious and people are upset," said incumbent trustee Paul Hoadley. "But after hearing all sides, I've decided that supporting the current plan for the park is the direction the township should go."

Township candidates who attended include Golovich, Hoadley, Jim Rudolph and Warren Nugent. Jerry Simpson could not attend, but had a statement to be read in his absence by the moderator.

Treasurer Robbin Kraft also did not participate because she is not facing a challenge in the primary election.

At the end of the forum questions were raised to forum hosts why five candidates did not attend the forum.

"The candidates who responded to me believed the forum would not be fair or impartial," Williamson said.

Candidates Bob Jess, Doug Kuebler, Matt Cunningham, Dave Zipp and Ron Van Zee did not attend.

"The forum was not in a neutral location and it was not sponsored by an organization with credentials," Van Zee said, candidate for township supervisor.

The candidates who boycotted the forum also chose not to have statements read in their absence because they questioned its legitimacy and believed it was not clear how statements would be handled.

"I was told no one would be available to read a statement if I submitted one," Jess said, trustee candidate. "I also got no clear answer on who would read my statement."

Venetian race contenders gain foothold

Women's race wide open for the first time in four years at Shay Mile

JAMES GUNTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgunsterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — For the past four years, Minnesotan Heather Kampf has been the dominant face of the women's race of the annual Ryan Shay Elite Mile, a part of the Venetian Festival celebration.

That will change this year. Unfortunately, Kampf is battling injuries and unable to defend her four-time crown in this year's ninth running of the event, but her misfortune means opportunity for a hungry and decorated field looking to bring home the title for the first time.

The Shay Mile is an invite-only event that brings together some of the country's best milers in a race down Bridge Street in Charlevoix, with fans and runners lining the streets to cheer on the competitors as they battle for first place.

The race is run in honor of Ryan Shay, a Central Lake native, college All-American and world-class distance runner who passed away in 2007 of heart failure while competing in the U.S. Marathon Olympic Trials.

The fastest seed time heading into the race belongs to Brook Handler, the 2015 runner-up and an All-American at the University of Michigan, whose personal best is four minutes, 28 seconds.

Come Saturday, Bridge Street in downtown Charlevoix will be lined once again with supporters as racers sprint to the finish line in the annual Ryan Shay Mile and Drenth Memorial Foot Race.

Handler will have tough competition from teammate Shannon Osika (4:34), also an All-American, New York/New Jersey track club member Heather Wilson (4:29) and Ashley Higginson (4:30), who made the finals in the steeplechase at the 2016 U.S. Olympic Trials less than two weeks ago.

Kenyans Gladys Kipsol (4:31) and Eunice Kioki (4:32) also will factor into the title race, as will Dot McMahon (4:35), the winner of the first Shay Mile in 2008.

Lianne Farber of North Carolina, Greta Feldman of Princeton, current University of Michigan runner Jamile Morrissey and Strava Track Club's Ayla Granados round out a star-studded field.

While a streak is guaranteed to end on the women's side, on the men's side 2015 Shay Mile champion Jake Edwards is looking to begin a long streak of his own.

The Ohio State graduate won the race in 3:58.62 last year and is a strong contender to repeat, though he'll have to fend off another challenge from former University of Michigan runner and 2015 runner-up Lex Williams, who finished in 3:57.30 last season.

Two other strong contenders are lurking in the field, including Ashland graduate Thomas Scott, who took third last season and joined Edwards and Williams in breaking the 4 minute mark, and Liam Boylan-Pett, a seven-time MHSAA state champion in high school while running for Bath with a lifetime best of 3:57 in the title.

Morsi Rayyan (4:03), an All-American at the University of Michigan is another contender, as is Josh Davis, another Ashland graduate best-known for his work in the 800 run.

Princeton graduate Cam Marantz, Air Force pilot Daniel Castle, Syracuse graduate Forrest Missenti, Siena Heights All-American Zacchaeus Widner and Team Playmakers runner Bennett Prud'homme complete a strong field of potential challengers to Edwards' title.

The runners are competing for $4,000 in prize money, with $1,000 for each of the winners, $500 for the runner-ups, and $250 for third place.

The race starts at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday in downtown Charlevoix, immediately following the annual Jeff Drenth Memorial Foot Races that start at 9 a.m.

With a 5K, a 10K and a family mile, the Drenth Footrace is another major piece of the annual Venetian Festival celebration, held in honor of the memory of local star Jeff Drenth, who was all-state running for Charlevoix in High School, an All-American at Central Michigan University in 1982 and a competitor in the 1984 Olympic Trials before passing away suddenly in 1986.

For more information on both races, visit www.venetianraces.com.

Charlevoix Majors avenge loss to West Branch but fall in All Stars district final

JAMES GUNTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgunsterblum@petoskeynews.com

GAYLORD — It didn't end with a title, but the Little League All Stars Majors Division district softball tournament was a step forward for Charlevoix nonetheless.

Charlevoix avenged its loss to West Branch in the semifinals of last year's Minor tournament, allowing this group of players to make its first finals appearance against Huron East in Gaylord on July 9.

In the end, Huron East was too much for Charlevoix to overcome, taking a 24-0 victory for its second straight district title and its fourth in five years.

Megan Bush and Lily Woodgate each singled against Huron East to lead Charlevoix.

"Huron East had a game plan and they all the tools to get it done," Charlevoix coach Tom Zipp said. "They had all their ducks in a row to execute that plan flawlessly."

"Our hot bats were quieted with only two hits on the day."

Despite the loss, the tournament still marked a big positive turning point for Charlevoix, especially the semifinal victory over West Branch on July 8.

Two years ago, West Branch defeated Charlevoix in the semifinals of an All Stars tournament in convincing fashion to end the squad's run.

With the same group as that team, it looked as though Charlevoix was heading for a repeat in 2016, falling behind 5-0 in the second and trailing 6-1 after the top of the third inning.

But Charlevoix put together a huge inning of their own in the bottom of the third to rally, with RBI singles from Zoe Brodin, Avery Zipp and Kathy Wagner powering Charlevoix to six runs and helping them seize a 7-6 lead.

Now ahead, Charlevoix's Kate Klinger shook off a rough first three innings on the mound and put together a gem over the next three innings, holding West Branch scoreless and sealing the victory and the finals berth.

"We expect big things from Kate going forward," Zipp said. This was her first year of total focus on her pitching game and she has done very, very well."

"This was some big time pressure for basically a rookie pitcher. She handled it with the poise of a seasoned veteran."

Klinger finished with 11 strikeouts and allowed five hits to pick up a huge victory for the Charlevoix program's confidence moving forward.

"With each tournament run you get a chance to make, you try to do better than the last, and that we did," Zipp said.

"Two years ago we lost to West Branch in the semifinal game."

"This year we knew what we were up against and the girls worked very hard to improve."

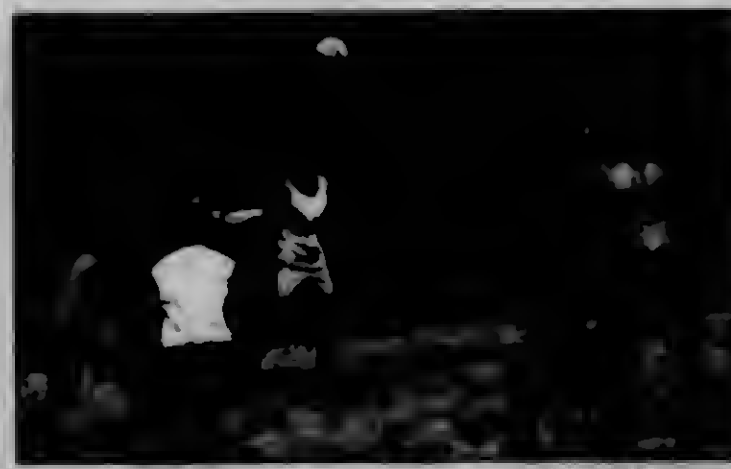

Kylie Williams and Lauren Shepard each finished with a single as well for Charlevoix in the semifinal, and Bush drove in Klinger in the second inning with a RBI bunt for Charlevoix's other run.

Festival parade rocks downtown Charlevoix

CHARLEVOIX — Hundreds of people braved the heat to check out one of the annual traditions of Charlevoix.

The 86th annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival attracted crowds of onlookers and the participation of 75 organizers Saturday morning.

The parade started at Carpenter Street and made its way downtown to Clinton Street, with all 75 participating organizations sporting a float, car or walking down Bridge Street.

Some of the organizations include Challenge Fitness, Soo Pipe Band, Charlevoix Public Library and Greyhound Retirement Adoption Care and Education (GRACE).

Jessica Wagar, a Petoskey resident and member of Greyhound Retirement Adoption Care and Education for two years, was one of several members walking in the parade with a red greyhound named Jake.

"These greyhounds are full of love," Wagar said. "We like to spread awareness about these greyhounds at these parades."

Among other attractions included several pageant contestants such as National Cherry Queen Abbey Kaufman, clowns, people from High 5 Guys on stilts giving out high fives and a musical performance from the bus of the Petoskey Steel Drum.

SPLIT IN THE COMMUNITY

Park property a divisive issue in Hayes Township election

LOONIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — A 20-acre park with 1,400 feet of Lake Charlevoix frontage has divided the residents of Hayes Township.

The park master plan to revitalize Camp Sea-Gull, adopted by the Hayes Township Board of Trustees, has rankled some residents who claim they have been shut out of the process, but township officials say the majority of people support their efforts.

"Most residents seem satisfied with the acquisition of Camp Sea-Gull," said Marlene Golovich, township clerk. "The complaints are from a small special interest group, who are against most board decisions dealing with the park."

In December 2013, the Camp Sea-Gull project was recommended for funding with a $3.75 million Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund grant. The 25 percent local match requirement was met with $500,000 from the township's recreation fund and about $672,000 raised in a public fundraising campaign. More than 100 individuals, families, and businesses contributed toward the project, but opposition is overshadowed by today's opposition.

Taking the opposing view, as they have been doing each month at the township board's regular meetings are township residents Dave Zipp, Doug Kuebler, Ron Van Zee, Bob Jess and Matt Cunningham. Each is running in the Aug. 2 primary election for a chance to be elected to the township board in November when the trustees and supervisor seats come up for reelection.

Kuebler, who is running for trustee, does not agree with the financial direction of the board and opposes spending money from the township general fund on the park.

"We should not be spending money upgrading the park when our roads require attention," Kuebler said. "Roads should be the priority with township finances and grants and donations should go toward the park."

None of the challengers participated in a recent community candidate forum. Collectively, they have questioned the legality of the board's work between maintaining the park and improving the park and they question the township financial records.

"We were told by the board that the park would not be paid for out of the general fund," Jess said. "It was to be funded through grants and donations."

The board did not make that statement, Golovich said.

"It's not true," Golovich said. "I believe the words our board used was we would never ask for an additional millage to fund our park."

The opposing group also claims board members have unfulfilled past promises to allow residents to Charlevoix native shares words of wisdom, hope through blog

NICOLE SEYMOUR
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

Charlevoix native, Katie Mazurek, has found that writing and sharing her story of adversity did more than help her sort out her recent cancer diagnosis, it also helped others.

Mazurek, who was diagnosed with stage three breast cancer this past February, took to the internet and started a blog to field the many calls from family and friends and centralize the information on her diagnosis and treatment. Within her blog, katieovercancer.com, Mazurek began to write about her trials and tribulations in seeking treatment and her inner most thoughts on the process, family and relationships.

From her first diagnosis, to tips on what to expect during chemo and appointments, katieovercancer.com documents what it's like living with cancer through heartfelt and honest words. However, what Mazurek started to do with her blog site as a way to reach out to friends and family quickly became a source of information and support system for other people who were undergoing the same types of treatment. Soon Mazurek found other people reaching out to her sharing their stories and thanking her for documenting her experiences.

"I never dreamed I'd be a support system," Mazurek said, "but I am so honored to hold that space for people now. All I intended in the beginning was to be honest. I didn't realize at the time how strongly honesty promotes connection. When you take down your defenses and offer yourself as simply and lovingly as possible, people respond. It's awesome."

Mazurek, an avid athlete and crowned Venetian Queen in 2001, has always been one to help out in the community. Whether it was organizing and staffing Red Cross fundraisers, reading to elementary students, or helping at the local food bank, Mazurek has always felt the desire to put others first and give to those in need.

"I tried to work really hard to make Charlevoix and the Venetian organization a good name and proud of me and my title," Mazurek said. "That may sound silly, but I really do have a lot of hometown pride and I took seriously my duty to honorably represent our town."

Now in her own time of need, Mazurek's family and friends have put together a Go Fund Me Page (www.gofundme.com/22adk7w) to help with expenses related to her treatment. These include a double mastectomy at Cleveland Clinic and six weeks of radiation in Seattle, followed by a temporary relocation and inability to work.

"It's going to be tough, but I am ready to face the challenge," Mazurek said.

A mother of two, wife, and founder of a collaborative family law practice in Bozeman, Montana, she is busy not only fighting cancer and caring for her own family, she's also helping children and families in need through her law practice specializing in insulating children during divorce.

Charlevoix Venetian Queen 2016 Ivy Wells waves to the crowd.

The young ladies compete to win a scholarship of $3,000, runner up receives $1,000 and the winner of the High Scholastic Achievement award rewarded to the best essay, receives $500.

This year's contestants included Kylee Scholten, a 2016 graduate of Charlevoix High School; Marlo Schwartzfisher who is entering into her senior year at Charlevoix High School; Ivy Wells, a 2015 Charlevoix High School graduate; Alana Tinsley, entering into her senior year at Charlevoix High School; Kristi Wojan who is currently entering her senior year at Charlevoix High School and Marnie Thorman a 2016 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

The coronation took place at East Park Pavilion in Charlevoix. This year's winner was Ivy Wells and runner up was Kylee Scholten. Wells is the daughter of Scot and Kathy Wells and was sponsored by FOX, Charlevoix. Scholten is the daughter of Karey and Peter Scholten and was sponsored by Lake Area Collision of Walloon Lake.

Upon winning her crown, Wells said, "I feel relieved, I don't have to worry anymore, I feel like the last two years were worthwhile."

Runner up Scholten said, "I am super excited and very happy for Ivy, she really deserved it."

New nursing program helps rural residents

JORDAN SPINER
(231) 439-9397
jspiners@petoskeynews.com

A new program created by Grand Valley State University aims to help fill a particular gap in the medical field — the need for rural health practitioners.

The new program helps train nurse practitioner students on Beaver Island in rural medicine.

"It helps the people (patients) be seen," said Mary Robinson, Grand Valley's Kirkhof College Of Nursing regional nursing programs coordinator. "It's been a win-win for both the patients and the practitioners."

Robinson said the nursing shortages are huge and they work closely with Beaver Island.

"The whole focus is rural health, keeping patients well," Robinson said.

A nurse practitioner is one of several advanced RN roles, said Karen Burritt, the associate dean for graduate programs at the school. After completing a program, nurse practitioners have advanced scientific knowledge to make a diagnosis and prescribe medication.

"We have developed a satellite program in Traverse City," Burritt said. "Part of it is developing practitioners of rural sites. There are two tracks, either adult or pediatric. Recently, we got a grant from the Health Research Services Administration for $300,000 to improve access of care. We were just were notified of in June and expect to get the money in August."

She added there is a difference in how care is delivered between rural and urban areas. With rural areas there are more barriers of care, Burritt said.

"Most of it is the distance they need to travel for specialty of care," Burritt said. "The practitioners need to have a depth in the problems they treat. For example, if they needed to see a neurologist they could wait many months to do that because of the transit, either by air or ferry. It adds costs to the person's care."

There have been four students participating in the program so far, including Megan Madole.

"Really, as the provider shortage continues nurse practitioners are going to fill these positions," Madole said. "It's been a great and unique experience. Because 20 percent of the population lives in a rural area and only 11 percent of doctors practice there. That's a huge deficit."

The biggest challenge is time management, Madole said.

"I'm still working part-time and doing the program full-time and driving to go to Grand Rapids for class every three weeks," she said.

Madole said after clinic hours she studies for about eight hours.

"Then I spend an hour of relaxing, hiking and hanging out with my husband," Madole said. "It can be long days and it can also be nice days."

Donna Kubic, managing director of the Beaver Island Rural Health Center, said unlike practices on the mainland the practitioners are filling many roles when it comes to working with their patients — taking their own vitals, drawing their own blood. At the end, they're cleaning up their room.

"They're doing everything," Kubic said. "During the winter we would have five patients and now we're up to 25 in the summer. The days in the summer, the extra set of hands help the center immensely. We have those fresh ideas from someone."

Kubic added they're happy with the arrangement and want to continue the program there.

"Our goal is to do this ongoing," Robinson said. "Our first challenge is housing. We could do this all year-round. I talked with Donna to do this is through the fall or summer, it helps the clinic staff. It helps the students with their assessment skills."

Local health department receives $2,000 grant

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently awarded the Health Department of Northwest Michigan a $2,000 grant, for the Breast and Cervical Cancer Control Navigation Program media campaign. The money was raised by participants in the Charlevoix Mother's Day Walk/Run/Cure event.

"The Health Department is grateful to receive this grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation," said Joy Klooster, Breast and Cervical Cancer Control Navigation Program coordinator at the Health Department. "We are so glad the Foundation continues to recognize our services as important for our community. With this funding, we are able to reach many members of our community that may be eligible for our program."

The program provides breast and cervical screenings at no cost to uninsured and underinsured women ages 40-64 who fall within certain annual income guidelines. Clients younger than 40 years old also may benefit from the program if they have abnormal screening results. The program offers clinical breast exams, pap smears, pelvic exams, and mammograms, as well as referrals to area health-care providers for follow-up of abnormalities. If additional treatment is necessary, women may be eligible for Medicaid coverage through the Medical Treatment Act.

"Our motto is 'Every Woman. Every Year,'" Klooster said. "Women should be screened for cancer every year in order to catch breast or cervical cancer as soon as possible. When caught early, treatment is generally less expensive and the success rates are more favorable."

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality healthcare, address health problems of vulnerable populations and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Oshtemo counties.

Appointments or referrals are available at the Health Department, located at 220 W. Garfield. For more information about Breast and Cervical Cancer Control Navigation Programs, call (800) 432-4121 or visit www.nwhealth.org.

CHARLEVOIX — The Midwest Brass and Gas club to traveled through Charlevoix Monday, July 25, with cars more than a century old. The classic automobiles rolled into downtown late morning into the lunch hour and parked along Bridge Street.

The Midwest Brass and Gas regional club is a division of the Horseless Carriage of America Club. All cars must be of vintage 1912 and older to allow the owners to be members of the club. The cars cover a unique period of automotive history from the turn of the century to the end of carriage coachwork, gas lights, hand cranking and profuse use of brass.

Club members and about 30 cars paid a visit to Charlevoix as part of their tour of Northern Michigan. The group likes Michigan and the local area so much this is the third

COA requests millage increase

Editor:

At the August primary election taking place in every township and every city throughout Charlevoix County, our citizens will have an opportunity to voice their support for Charlevoix County's senior citizens.

Jack Webb, who played Sgt. Joe Friday on the popular TV series Dragnet, was famous for his standard line, "Just the facts, I just want the facts." Well here are some facts: today's seniors are retiring at a rate of more than 10,000 per day and represent in Charlevoix County a ratio of nearly 1:4. This past year your Charlevoix County Commission on Aging served over 750 families, delivered over 35,000 meals on wheels, served over 31,000 meals at four senior centers. We provide various levels of assistance in concert with the District 3 Health Department, which enable seniors to remain in their homes instead of living in assisted living complexes.

Several years ago, we held focus group meetings throughout the county. As a result of the input we have made changes in our operation. We have eliminated programs not connected with healthcare issues. We have reduced staffing levels in keeping with our income. We have instituted a sliding fee schedule for services related to the income of our recipients. Families below the poverty level have not seen an increase in charges. Those above the poverty level have been asked to pay a small increase.

Your COA has not had an increase in millage since its inception in 2001. Our millage will expire this year. We are asking again for approval of .65 mills this year. A homeowner with a SEV of $50,000 will be asked to pay $32.50 each year. That is less than $3 per month. We are dedicated to assisting Charlevoix County seniors in need and promoting independence and health.

Please support our seniors this August. You may not be one now, but you will be at sometime and we will be there for you!

Bigoted, misogynist, con man

Editor:

In first century Rome, the emperor Caligula famously made his horse a senator. In America today there is a very real possibility that we will have a horse's behind in the White House. I don't know which is more disturbing about Donald Trump; the man or the fact that people — some otherwise sensible — who support him. I'm hearing that they're angry. Well, if you are angry throw something. Write a letter to the editor. Join a demonstration; don't act out by putting our country in the hands of this bigoted, misogynist con man. He is not a "good guy." He is not a Christian, "baby" or otherwise. He is completely unqualified to be president.

I'm hearing that they hate Hillary. What does anybody know or think about Hillary Clinton that isn't the result of 25 years of relentless republican attacks and propaganda? I guess the final question is, do you hate Hillary more than you love your country?

On Guard: What Lurks Beneath... Lake Charlevoix

What's the first image that comes to mind when you say the words Lake Charlevoix? Sparkling water? Tree lined shores? Kids swimming? White sails heeling in the breeze?

Rereading a book I've had for 40 years has added a new image to those described above. Dr. Lewis Thomas, physician, researcher, poet and philosopher authored the award winning book, "Lives of a Cell." His premise was that all living things on earth are interconnected, with the lives of plants, animals, and humans interacting in very complex but subtle ways. The cover photo was a satellite view of the entire planet implying that earth when seen as a whole, resembles a massive single cell.

The image I now see each day is our 17,000 acre lake acting in many ways just like Thomas's vision of earth as a single cell. It's become evident that everyone and everything in and around our lake is connected. Lake Charlevoix is fed by the Jordan and Boyne rivers and 10 creeks which flow into the lake and continuously blend together. Add to that mix what comes in from Lake Michigan via the Pine River and you have a very dynamic body of water.

Within our body of water you have tens of thousands of different species of plants and animals all living in relationship with each other. While many of these species interact in healthy, harmonious ways, there are a few bad actors that have had a profound impact on our lake. Zebra mussels dramatically and permanently altered Charlevoix's ecosystem by filtering massive amounts of phytoplankton (the basis of the lake food web) and disrupting the lake's natural nutrient cycle. Zebra mussels have now been displaced by Quagga mussels which have severely depleted the base of the food chain and dramatically reduced the amount of algae and nutrients available. Unfortunately, ly, our crystal clear water is not synonymous with a balanced, healthy aquatic biome. Old threats to the lake including alewives and sea lamprey are still around but their populations are lower than in years' past due to efforts by the Department of Natural Resources and conservation groups. The Round Goby showed up shortly after the Zebra and Quagga Mussels arrived. The good news is that they have the ability to eat the mussels and to some degree hold their numbers in check. However, Gobies also displace native bottom-dwelling fish and prey on the eggs of lake trout and other species.

Two other species are also under watch. The Eurasian Ruffe is a fast-growing aggressive fish with a high reproductive capacity. They have been known to disrupt the predator/prey balance in walleye, perch, and forage species populations. The omnivorous Rudd is also from Eurasia and has the ability to eat zooplankton, small fish and then switch to submerged aquatic plants. They deplete vegetation, compete with native fish for food and disrupt natural predator/prey relationships.

Much of the aquatic invasive problem can be traced to the dumping of ballast water from ocean going vessels. It is probably safe to say that the species now in our lake are here for good. However, you can still help protect our lake from further degradation by creating a healthy shoreline habitat, establishing a greenbelt filled with native plant species, and encouraging anglers to dispose of their bait in the trash rather than dumping its contents in the lake. Please join us in protecting this precious resource.

Joel Van Roekel is a board member of the Lake Charlevoix Association and each month a member of the association will submit a Lake Charlevoix Association column that is intended to educate and inform residents about the watershed. For more information, visit lake-charlevoix.org.

People also make Charlevoix beautiful

Charlevoix the Beautiful is known far and wide for its crystal clear waters, sandy beaches and historic homes. In my first year here, I've learned Charlevoix is beautiful thanks also to the dedicated people who simply make things happen here.

Great events, organizations and, ultimately communities, don't happen by chance. They are collections of dedicated women and men who put their best effort into the public good. Recently, I was able to join others from our community as part of the Charlevoix Public Library's strategic planning process.

Drawing on the experience of hundreds of users in focus groups, surveys, and time spent with staff and the board of directors, Linda Adams and her leadership team at the library have been considering what the library does well and how they can serve the needs of our community even better.

It is exciting to see all the things our library offers and the eagerness they have to provide critical services for everyone in our community. From assistance in developing resumes for those seeking employment to offering snow shoes for checkout, the Charlevoix Public Library intentionally serves our population and is constantly striving to do more.

As we have concluded the 86th annual Venetian Festival, it is amazing to see all the people who work behind the scenes to give our residents and visitors a great experience. The planning committee works nearly year-round on details most of us never consider as we stroll down Bridge Street or watch the fireworks sparkle over the water.

I would specifically like to thank city staff members who start their days extra early and work over the weekend taking care of the public services during the event. From the extra police officers covering traffic and events to the Department of Public Works staff cleaning the parks, it takes everyone working toward the same goal to accomplish the work.

Finally, we are completing our first year as a member of Michigan

Main Street. Many people see Main Street from the vantage of things like our Farmers Market and the Thursday concerts in East Park, but it is exciting to see the time our volunteer committee members are putting into events and projects behind the scenes. Groups of volunteers have been working steadily on projects like: relighting the trees on Bridge Street; retaining and adding new businesses to our downtown; and, creating new "off-season" events and activities.

Our town is blessed with great natural beauty, but our community is blessed with passionate people giving their time and talent. Have you considered how your passion can help Charlevoix? All of us working together is what makes Charlevoix beautiful.

Monday Morning Coffee features Sagatuck artist

Sagatuck artist Anne Corlett will give a Monday Morning Coffee presentation at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts at 10 a.m. on Monday, Aug. 8.

Monday Morning Coffee is a Charlevoix Circle of Arts gift to patrons that explore the content of the current exhibition or topics of varied interest. Corlett has been on a specific journey over the past several years; that is to capture a plein air painting (a painting done from life without the aid of photography) in each of the fifty states. This journey has lasted some three years and is now in a one-time only exhibition at the Sagatuck Center for the Arts. Corlett will be able to offer for sale a book that illustrates her journey.

"What does a woman do when she turns 50, is newly single, and becomes an empty-nester? I could have gone back to school and gotten a real job," Corlett said. "Instead, I seized my newfound freedom. My passion for painting, desire for travel and adventure, and need to heal sparked an idea. What if I could produce one landscape painting in each of the 50 states?"

Corlett shares her story of this creative journey known as, "Easel on Down the Road."

"What I did not understand at the time was that the physical journey on which I was embarking would become much more," Corlett said. "I would grow as a painter by throwing myself into landscapes that were completely foreign to me. Astounding kindnesses from others, both old friends and strangers, would renew my faith in the essential goodness of people. Most important of all, I would learn to trust myself — my judgment, my intellect, and my good heart. And I would grow into the person that I am today — confident, self-sufficient and flat out, unequivocally happy."

Corlett's talk coincides with the current exhibition at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts entitled, "Chasing the Light" in which forty Michigan artists display their own impressions of the plein air process. This exhibition runs through the end of August.

Monday Morning Coffee events are free and open to the public and are sponsored by Johan's Bakery of Charlevoix. The summer exhibition series is sponsored in part by the Charlevoix State Bank.

event coincides with the weekend of Charlevoix sidewalk sales, making it a great reason to stay a night or two.

Pool board member, Steve Hansen, came up with the idea for the event. The contest is unique in that participants predict their finish time when they check-in the day of the event. Contestants are not allowed to carry time pieces on the course. The top three finishing closest to their estimated time are the winners. Giveaways can also be won when participants finish the course, and fun beach activities will be set up as everyone awaits to find out the top finishers.

The course will be monitored by spotter boats and the pool is providing two lifeguards to assist with the event. Everyone is required to wear life jackets. Contestants can be ages 6 and up, however children between 6-14 of age must be on a paddle craft accompanied with an adult.

Registration is now open and can be found on the event website at www.paddlethepool.com. Participants may also register the day of the event at Ferry Beach from 8-10 a.m. Cost is $65 per watercraft if registered by Aug. 12, and $75 afterward. All proceeds benefit the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

Trip to The Light Fantastic at the Circle of Arts

CHARLEVOIX — The Armchair Theatre at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts will present "The Light Fantastic: The Atmosphere of Light Through the Performing Arts" beginning at 6:30 p.m. on Sunday Aug. 7. The theme of this presentation reflects the works of 40 regional plein air painters, whose work is currently on display at the Circle of Arts in the Chasing the Light exhibition that runs through Aug. 26.

In different vignettes performed throughout the evening, patrons will be taken on a journey of The Light Fantastic. The Grandview Ensemble will perform with selections of music from the plein air painting Impressionist period. The voices of Catherine and Sloane Hayes lend vocal selections. Actors from the Armchair Theatre will interpret "The Inner Light," works from classic Khalil Gibran and contemporary playwright Ellen McLaughlin's "The Narrow Bed."

The evening's interpretation of fine art through performing arts brings to life the magnificent works in the gallery.

"In my career, I have often sought to blend varying forms of the arts into gallery experiences," said Gail DeMeyere, the executive director of the Charlevoix Circle of Arts. "So when Ruth Willis (the director of the Armchair Theatre) presented to me her concept of The Light Fantastic, I was moved by the sensitivity of selections and handling of material that she has brought together. This should be a memorable evening."

The suggested donation at the door for the Light Fantastic will be $5. The summer series at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts is sponsored in part by the Charlevoix State Bank.

Bergman Center accepts new donations

CHARLEVOIX — The Bergman Center now accepts a different kind of donations; boats, RVs and cars.

"We struggled to get revenue streams," said Ken Tough a board member. "It's been a struggle to meet expenses. So we came up with the donations in a lot of other areas. It's also a tax benefit the donor."

The center will pick up vehicles for free. They will also accept boats, motorcycles and aircraft.

Donated vehicles will qualify for a tax deduction. The Bergman Center is a 501-3C nonprofit which helps train people with mental and physical disabilities in job and life skills.

"We also do a verification to make sure it's a safe vehicle. It's going to be a boost for the revenue stream," Tough added.

Tough said he saw a similar program at the Salvation Army and how successful it's been. They then brought a similar program to Charlevoix a few months ago.

"It's a positive way of going forward and getting through tough times," he said.

Reunion brings Charlevoix school alumni together

CHARLEVOIX — Any one who has ever attended Charlevoix High School has most likely been to an annual event that takes place during the Venetian Festival.

The Charlevoix All Class Reunion filled the downstairs dining room of Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant, 106 Pine River Lane, Saturday afternoon with more than 150 people.

The reunion had pages from all generations of yearbooks from the high school on display at tables and walls, while providing hors d'oeuvres, drinks and cake for guests while they socialized.

Sherrel Bergmann, a 1961 graduate, said the event was for everyone who attended high school in Charlevoix.

"It's not just for a particular year. It's for everyone who has ever graduated from Charlevoix High School," Bergmann said.

While several people didn't have to travel too far to get to Charlevoix for the reunion, one Charlevoix High School alumna rode his bike to the reunion two times in 2006 and 2010, from Arizona.

That alumna is Tom

Swanson, 79. Swanson said it was a fairly difficult journey, but always made sure to have cash on him to afford food and hotels.

"I always brought a tent and a sleeping bag, just in case," Swanson said. "I always come to the (reunion), and one year I read about riding bikes across the country and I thought it would be fun."

In addition, several alumni from the high school can occasionally earn their spot in the Alumni Hall of Fame. One of the hall-of-fame members is Scott Davis, a 1981 graduate from Harrison Township.

Davis said the school system nominated him for his services in the U.S. Army.

"I went to Michigan Tech and got involved in the ROTC program," Davis said. "Then I eventually managed the army's ground equipment."

The reunion was ultimately planned to take place the same time as Venetian Festival, knowing it will attract more alumni and give them something to do while they're all in town.

"It gives them all a place to gather and see people they haven't seen for a long time for a few minutes," Bergmann said.

Wolf Lake offers new fish cam

MATTAWAN — CarbonTV has introduced a live webcam on the Show Pond at the Department of Natural Resources' Wolf Lake State Fish Hatchery Visitor Center.

The Wolf Lake Fish Cam offers a real-time, round-the-clock view of Chinook salmon, steelhead trout, northern pike, northern muskellunge, walleye, largemouth bass, a variety of sunfish and two 6-foot lake sturgeon as they fend for food.

"This is a really cool opportunity to see and connect with the thousands of Michigan gamefish that live in our Show Pond anytime, from anywhere," said Shana Ramsey, interpreter at Wolf Lake. "Get an up-close look at fish in their natural habitat, right from your own home!"

Ramsey said that Carbon Media has partnered with the Michigan DNR on other projects, including the live Eagle Cam at the Platte River State Fish Hatchery, which has been wildly successful.

"We looked at the success of that project and thought it would be the perfect fit to do something similar here on our Show Pond, which is the number one attraction at Wolf Lake," she said.

The Wolf Lake Hatchery Visitor Center, located on the grounds of the Wolf Lake State Fish Hatchery in Mattawan, is dedicated to providing quality programming that tells the remarkable tale of Michigan's Great Lakes fisheries and the vital role played by hatcheries.

Visitors of all ages can enjoy the opportunity to learn about a variety of fish species, their life cycles and habitats and how the DNR works to protect and conserve Michigan's lakes, rivers and streams to maintain a world-class fishery.

Beaver Island receives Conservation Partner Award

BEAVER ISLAND — Saving Birds Thru Habitat, an organization that promotes protection of habitat for North American birds, presented the Beaver Island community with the Conservation Partner of the Year award on July 21.

Jim Jones, board member for the Beaver Island Association, received the award for the island community. Beaver Island was doubly honored to accept a second award from Saving Birds Thru Habitat as the first island in the world to be certified for efforts to control invasive species and create healthy habitat for nesting and migratory birds.

The economic benefit of the Beaver Island Birding Trail to the island and region is substantial and will continue to be of value to the island economy and its birds, Jones said.

To showcase premier birding habitats on the island, the Beaver Island Birding Trail was created three years ago and has been visited by birders from across the country.

LOOKING BACK...

Charlevoix's connection to moon landing

Forty-seven years ago, on July 20, 1969, Neil Armstrong became the first man to step on the moon. Accompanying Armstrong and his fellow astronaut Buzz Aldrin was material crucial to the success of the entire Apollo space program, material made at only one place on the face of the earth — Charlevoix. Hoskins Manufacturing on M-66 near Castle Farms specialized in the manufacture of extremely fine wire, the only company in the world known to do this to such a tiny degree. They had developed a process that stretched wires made of a nickel-chrome alloy called Chromel-R into a strand .0005 inches in diameter. 1.7 million feet of this strand, the distance between Charlevoix and Cleveland, weighed one pound. 100 strands were contained in a thread the width of a very small sewing thread. The wire had the remarkable ability to be stretched so fine it was almost invisible, but if touched or even breathed upon from a 90-degree angle, it broke. The 100-strand thread was spun onto spools, then shipped to Pennsylvania where it was woven into a light and extremely tough fabric. From there, the fabric went to Delaware to be sewn into the spacesuits. So when Armstrong made that "one giant leap for mankind," Charlevoix was there with him every step of the way and back—as a protective sheet under his life support backpack so his spacesuit wouldn't be torn by it, on the upper panels of his lunar boots, and in his gloves. Every astronaut who picked up a moon rock and held it in his hand supported that rock on threads made in Charlevoix. Every cloud of moon dust kicked up by an astronaut's boots clung to threads made in Charlevoix. As the Courier ad said, the astronauts must be well dressed—in more ways than one. And Charlevoix helped to do it. (A sample of this thread is in the Museum at the Harsha House, 103 State Street, as part of the exhibit titled "The Working World—Business & Industry in Charlevoix." Hours are noon-4 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Bay Harbor Foundation awards grant to Hospice of Northwest Michigan

Hospice of Northwest Michigan has announced that it received a grant from the Bay Harbor Foundation to be used toward better meeting the immediate unfunded needs of the community in 2016. Amy Wieland, executive director, said the funding will be used to support and to improve the safety and comfort care needs provided to patients that are not covered by insurance.

"We are extremely grateful to the Bay Harbor Foundation for recognizing our organization and services as a valued choice that they wanted to support," Wieland said. "The Bay Harbor Foundation funding in conjunction with other donations, will be used to meet the otherwise unfunded needs of hospice patients in our service regarding patient comfort care and safety. Funds are especially needed now because we are experiencing more situations in which patients and families lack insurance or are under-insured at a time when proceeds from fundraising are trending down in amounts given even if the number of givers remains about the same."

Hospice of Northwest Michigan is focused on providing a community-based and locally-staffed/managed hospice services that take care of their community friends, families and neighbors, Wieland added.

"Our community needs to better understand all that hospice services can do for them," she said. "You have a choice in these services and all hospice organizations are not the same."

To learn more about Hospice of Northwest Michigan or to schedule presentations to local organizations, call Wieland at (231) 547-7659.

Tip of the Mitt addresses septic systems question

Greg Hughes, co-owner of Lottie's Bagels, wraps up an order of bagels at the Charlevoix Farmers Market.

Farmers Market profile: Lottie's Bagels 'never sold a day-old bagel'

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Choose from a dozen delicious bagels with a variety of toppings, ranging from savory to sweet, and pick up a bagel sandwich for lunch or perhaps a scone as you shop. But get to the farmers market early because Greg Hughes, the face of Lottie's Bagels, will be selling out early. What are his best sellers? Parmesan-white, cheddar-dill, asiago and cheddar-scalloped, according to Hughes.

Hughes and his wife Laurie make bagels every day. Some they sell freshly made at the Farmers Market, others are sold frozen and ready to thaw and bake. On market days Laurie rises to begin the process at 1 a.m. and Greg at 3 a.m.

"We make the bagels every day except Sunday from 5 a.m. until 9 a.m.," Laurie said.

They make as many as 400 bagels on market days with the help of a bagel machine that has the capability of pumping out the dough into formed bagels at the rate of 6,000 an hour. The bagels are boiled, topped and either baked or frozen at that point.

"We don't even think about the time," Hughes said. "We've been doing this forever so it's just our routine."

Hughes enjoys meeting and talking to people at the farmer's markets. A service person stopped by for a sandwich at the Boyne City

Farmer's Market and an anonymous Good Samaritan, witnessing the purchase, offered to treat the soldier, with a "thank you for serving our country." After that, Hughes invited any service person who came to the market to a complimentary bagel.

"Sometimes when bagels are left over after Applefest we cut them up and make them into bagel chips and take them down to the guys in the fire station as a way of thanking them also," he said.

Lottie's fresh bagels may be purchased on site at the markets or ordered 24 hours in advance online at sales@lottesbagels.com. Frozen bagels are usually available on demand.

"In 27 years, I've never sold a day-old bagel," Hughes said.

Where did the Lottie in Lottie's Bagels originate? "Laurie had an uncle from Wales," Hughes said, "who couldn't quite say 'Laurie'... it came out 'Lottie.' When it came time to name our business, we decided to go with the mispronunciation... and Lottie's Bagels was born."

When they aren't making or selling bagels, the Hughes' have other jobs. Laurie is a bookkeeper supervisor at the Health Department of Northwest Michigan in Charlevoix and Greg has an antique store, at the top of the south hill in Charlevoix at 604 Bridge St., where he deals in Mission furniture.

Farmers Market profile:

Cook Family Farm about faith, family and farming

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

Some might think it is an anachronism, farming at the Cook Family does in Gaylord. But for the last 10 years, Tom and Waneta and their expansive family has evolved into doing just that.

The Cooks started with a few chickens and one child in 1993. Since then their family has grown. The Cooks now have 11 children and a burgeoning business and the farming, which at first involved raising meat for their own purposes, has expanded into a satisfying and profitable enterprise.

The Cooks attribute their passion for all natural, non-medicated, grass fed meat to a book they came across in 2000 written by Joel Salatin, "Pastured Poultry Profits." That, coupled with a visit from Salatin's son who was visiting the area for a conference, convinced the couple to engage in organic, GMO and nitrate free practices.

"We believe that our way of farming is a way of life and we love to work together as a family," Cook said. "We are passionate about the 3 F's... our faith, family and farming... We try each day to live out our faith and feel strongly that God expects us to care for the children, soil, animals and world that He has blessed us with. Therefore we know that it is our responsibility to leave this land better than we found it."

The Cook's children all participate in the farming in some capacity, from growing and caring for the animals to preparing them for market.

"The children learn that the animals they raise for market are not pets and that they are grown to provide food for families," she said. "They have horses, dogs and cats for pets."

On the farm there are sleigh horses for winter sleigh rides, pigs, chickens, turkeys, steers and sheep. There is an "honor system store" on the property where visitors can shop at their leisure for their farm products and leave the money in a tin box.

This week, son Travis is helping Waneta serve the customers who come by their booth at the Farmer's Market. They will be outdoors at the markets through October in Bellaire, Boyne City, Charlevoix, Gaylord, Petoskey and Harbor Springs.

"The markets are a huge part of our business," she said.

They are on site at one of the area markets with their pasture-raised beef, pork, chicken, sausage, cheese and eggs. Chicken potpies, honey, jams, jellies, soy candles, goat milk soap and numerous handcrafted items are also for sale, many supplied by other local families and farms.

"We believe in helping each other," Cook said. "We are just thankful that this farming is something we can do as a family. The logo on our shirts reads: from our family's farm to your family's table. That says it all."

Parsons Farm earns small business distinction

RYAN BENTLEY
(231) 439-9342 - rbentley@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Parsons Farm, an operation near Charlevoix that has been the same family since 1898, is one of 12 businesses around Michigan chosen this year to receive the Small Business Development Center's Best Small Business Award for their respective regions.

The farm, located along Parsons Road southwest of Charlevoix, is in the process of transitioning from its fourth to fifth generation of Parsons family ownership.

The farm's history has included logging and sawmill operations, dairy farming, production of corn and hay and a maple syrup operation. Syrup and other maple-based products such as sauces are now the farm's primary offerings, and are sold under the Harwood Gold label. To complement their on-farm and farmers market-based sales, family members are preparing to open a new retail location this summer in downtown Charlevoix.

Sisters Amber Munday and Katie Parsons Untalan represent the fifth generation of the Parsons family involved with the farm. Along with Amber's husband, Phil — a chef who's originally from Australia — they've acquired the business from their parents, Dave and Terri, and are in the process of purchasing the real estate involved. Dave and Terri remain involved with the business in an advisory capacity.

As the new generation of owners looked to learn more about expanding and running a business, they turned to the Northwest Michigan Small Business Development Center for help. Small Business Development Centers provide assistance to small businesses and aspiring entrepreneurs throughout the United States and its territories. They offer free business consulting and low-cost training services focused on business plan development, manufacturing assistance, financial packaging and lending assistance, market research help and more. These centers are hosted by universities and state economic development agencies, and funded in part through a partnership with the U.S. Small Business Administration.

Michigan's Best Small Business Award recipients were chosen from more than 5,000 small businesses that the Michigan Small Business Development Centers provided with confidential counseling in 2015, and were identified based on their success in creating jobs, increasing sales, improving their business strategy and their involvement with the Small Business Development Center.

Amber Munday said the Parsons Farm owners were surprised to find out that their business had been nominated for the honor. When they learned they had been chosen, "a lot of different emotions were felt, mainly just elated and happy that our story was being recognized for our hard work and everything."

The farm operators recently signed a lease for the former Murdick's Fudge building at the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets in downtown Charlevoix, Munday noted, and have been renovating the space. Starting this summer, they plan to use it for retail sales of Harwood Gold products, and also to house a new cafe featuring Phil Munday's Australian-style meat pies.

For the longer term, Amber said the family members aim to develop Parsons Farm into more of a destination for visitors, with possible offerings such as farm tours and a farm-to-table restaurant.

save the cafeteria building on the site. A presentation by the group of people who want to save the building estimate costs around $25,000 for basic building touch-ups up to an additional $250,000 of estimated costs for complete renovation of the cafeteria.

Township officials claim, because of the park's topography, keeping the cafeteria would raise the costs of the current proposed infrastructure project. The board feels that selling the building is the best route to take financially because the costs to bring it to code are higher than presented estimates, said Hayes Township Supervisor Ethel Knepp.

"It is a change of use the group is proposing and that requires the building to be brought up to proper code," Knepp said. "There is no way we can justify adding additional costs to our road project and then spend another $250,000 for a building that would not have adequate parking for its proposed event use."

Documents provided by township officials show that proposed expenditures for park infrastructure, which includes the new road and entrance and a small boat launch, to be approximately $1.2 million.

"Between fundraising and other potential grants we can offset the committed general fund expense," Golovich said. "We can explain that to the opposition over and over, but they do not want to listen."

The township has approximately $600,000 remaining from various local, state and federal grants and expects to apply for additional $233,000 in grant funds to cover proposed park costs. The board plans to raise funds for the $300,000 shortfall, Golovich said.

"The current general fund commitment from the board is $483,000," Golovich said. "But if we fund raise, as we plan to do, we can reduce that amount."

The road access is vital for the public to access the park and Lake Charlevoix for numerous recreational uses that Hayes Township residents expressed during the public hearings before the park was purchased, said trustee Jim Rudoiph.

"Once the township has this piece of the project completed then the board can move forward with the park master plan to have a number of the camp's facilities available for public use in the future," Rudoiph said. "The whole idea behind the acquisition of this property is it will be a point of access on Lake Charlevoix for all of our residents to enjoy."

Project engineers and township officials have explained the reason for the road — to provide safe access to the park and its waterfront — along with the reasoning behind removing the cafeteria building, but the opposition continues.

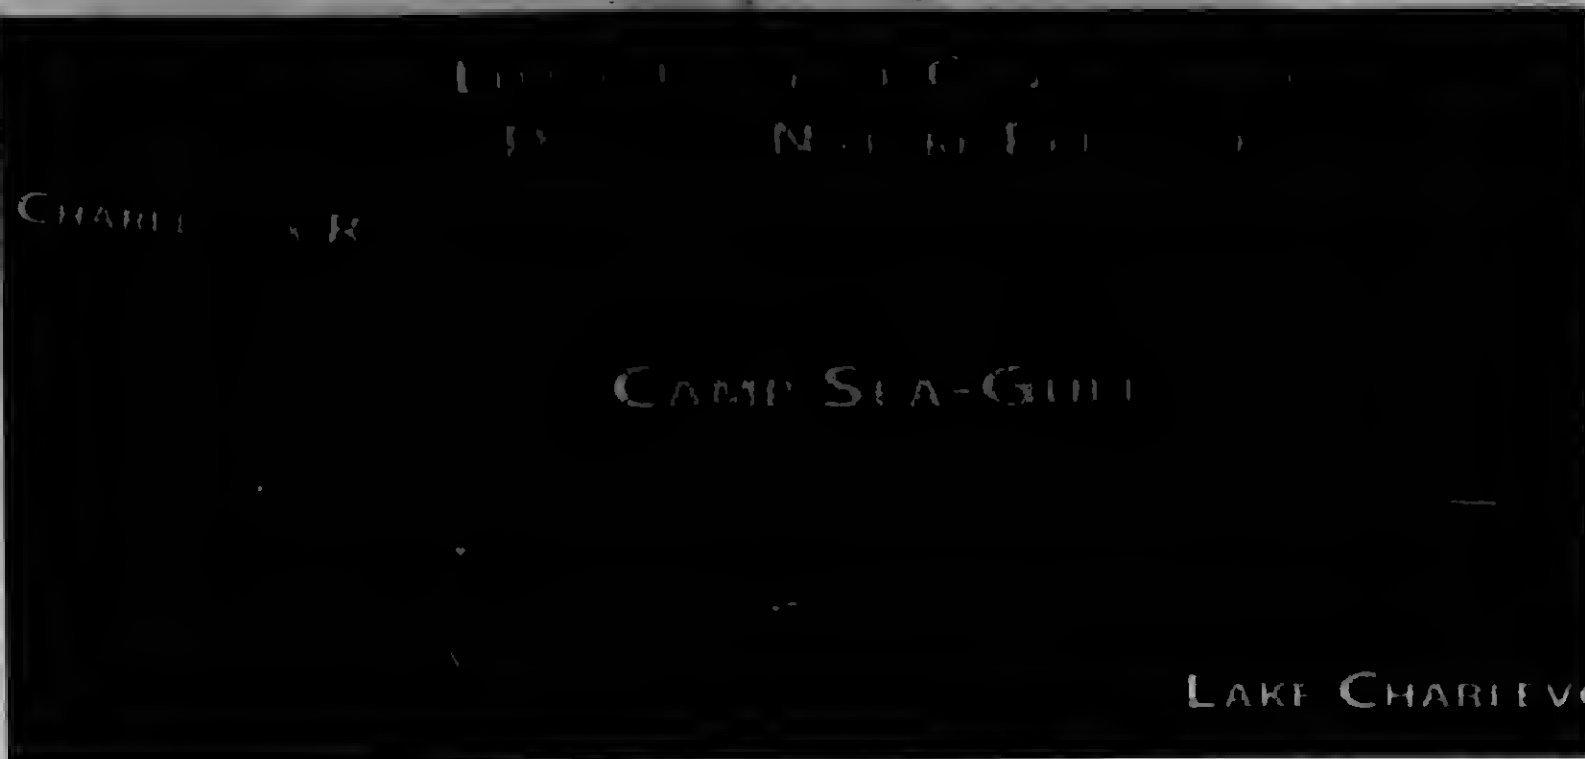

The group that opposes the park plan asked township board members not to green-light the road improvements during the July meeting with the hopes of saving the former camp cafeteria.

"The board's actions on the cafeteria building deny residents a place to use as well as an income generating source," Jess said. "This current board cannot be trusted because their decisions reflect their own interest and not the residents."

Township officials considered saving the cafeteria before knowing the true costs of restoring the building and the additional costs to maintain the building along with the added expenses to build retaining walls to relocate the proposed parking lot.

"I wanted to save that building," said Trustee Paul Hoadley. "But I changed my mind after listening to our engineers and learning the true expense to renovate, provide parking and future maintenance of the cafeteria building. It is my opinion the township will do better financially following the recommendations of our engineers regarding the park."

Libby Mikulski, a Charlevoix resident, said she has been coming to the parade since her daughters were born four years ago. Her oldest daughter, Etta, said her favorite attraction was the chicken from the Lions Club float.

"This is our favorite event of the year, next to the Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament," Mikulski said. "It's a great parade."

Before the parade started, the annual Drenth Memorial Foot Race and Ryan Shay Mile gave willing runners a chance to participate in a 5K, 10K and 1 mile. Chad Moriarty, a Northville resident, has participated in the one mile run every year for the past six years.

"It's my favorite morning," Moriarty said. "My family and I look forward to it every year. We love the floats too, except anything that has to do with clowns."

"Charlevoix (today) is what America is all about," Moriarty added.

Edwards repeats, Osika wins first Shay Elite title

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Winning a mile race takes strategy, planning, training, and a lot of other factors.

But in the final 200 meters, all that matters is speed, fitness and determination.

In Saturday's Ryan Shay Memorial Elite Mile in Charlevoix, part of the Venetian Festival, race winners Jake Edwards and Shannon Osika proved that in those three categories, they aren't going to be beat by anyone.

Both Edwards and Osika made their moves on the home stretch and outkicked determined opponents to the finish line, winning by less than two seconds in each race to bring home the coveted Shay title and a prize purse of $1,000.

For Edwards, it's his second straight title in the Shay race. In 2015, he won in 3:56.82, and although he couldn't match his time from last year, winning this time in 4:00.80, he still proved himself championship-worthy.

Unlike last year, when Edwards made his move early on in the race to pull away, this year he chose to wait until the home stretch to make his attack.

"Last year I made my move at the top of the hill, but this year I decided to go with a more traditional approach and wait until we hit the stoplights (about 200 meters from the finish)," Edwards said. "As we came over the hill, I was feeling confident because even though the pace was fast, I could tell I had a lot left for the final kick."

With a pack of five runners all jockeying for the lead, Edwards battled his way to the front with under 100 meters to go and held off a late charge from Princeton's Cam Marantz to earn his repeat title.

Marantz finished second overall (4:01.72) and took home $500, and close behind came Mason Ferlic (third, 4:02.45), Air Force Pilot Daniel Castle (fourth, 4:02.92) and Avery Martin (4:02.93).

With his second straight title in the books, Edwards, a Columbus, Ohio native, has no plans of stopping any time soon.

"When I came up here last year, I was blown away by the views and the quality of the race, and I told myself that I would come back as many times as I could," Edwards said. "I know Heather Kampf has a four-time championship streak here, and I've got my eyes on building a streak like that of my own."

Osika, meanwhile, had a fight to the finish with Ashley Higginson in the women's race.

With both women fresh off competing in the Olympic Trials, their battle came down to the final 200 meters as well, with Osika outkicking Higginson just barely to the line to win in 4:27.51 after Higginson held the lead for the majority of the race.

"We were packed up and went out faster than I'm used to in a road mile, but I was feeling good and just kind of hung on the back of Ashley Higginson who was running really well," Osika said. "I just tried to stay with her and I was lucky to have enough of a kick at the end to get the win."

Higginson took second in 4:28.84, and Osika's University of Michigan teammate Brook Handler edged out Rebecca Tracy for third (4:34.81) in the event.

The Elite Mile title is another big accomplishment in a banner year for Osika, who earned her sixth All-American honor for the Wolverines in June with a fourth place finish at the NCAA Division I Track and Field Championships in the 1,500 run, and made the semi-finals of the Olympic Trials in the same event.

It's also a victory that has special meaning for Osika, who is no stranger to Charlevoix and the Shay Mile.

"This is my favorite road race of the summer, easily, and I've been coming up here to race since I was 15," Osika said. "It's something I've wanted to win for a long time and it's a great feeling to finally do it."

Now in its ninth year, the Ryan Shay Elite Mile honors local legend Ryan Shay, a state champion in cross country and track and field at nearby Central Lake, an All-American distance runner at Notre Dame and a world-class athlete up to his death due to heart failure in 2007 at the U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials.

Local runners Way, Ritter, Romeyn bring home titles in Drenth Footrace

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Even in distance running, there's such a thing as home-course advantage.

But given the fields they were competing against, winning titles at the Drenth Foot Race is still an impressive accomplishment for Charlevoix's Amber Way and Matthew Ritter, and Central Lake's Winter Romeyn.

All three brought home titles at the 5K or 10K distance during Saturday's annual Venetian Festival event, held in honor of Charlevoix legend Jeff Drenth who was an All-American at Central Michigan and a world-class runner before his sudden passing in 1986.

For Way, it was her second straight women's title in the 5K in the event, after taking the title in 18:24 last year.

This year, Way, who is currently a member of the Michigan State cross country and track programs, finished in 17:39, almost a minute faster than her winning time last year and nearly a minute and a half faster than runner-up Rylee Robinson of West Bloomfield, who finished in 18:54.

That improvement should give Way a boost heading into her sophomore season with the Spartans, looking to build on an appearance at the NCAA Championships in Cross Country as a freshman.

Way wasn't the only Spartan to perform well in the 5K, as teammate and Ellsworth graduate Romeyn brought home the overall title in 16:48.

Romeyn, who redshirted for the Spartans last season and took fourth in the race last year, beat Petoskey native Mark Smith, currently a runner at Olivet College, for the title. Smith finished in 17:03.

Williamsburg native and Traverse City Track Club member Kyle Kiel took third, in 17:08,

Shane Andrews of Canton took fourth in 17:11, and Andrew Cusamano of Kalamazoo took fifth in 17:26.

Charlevoix's Nick Plude took sixth (17:36), his older brother Andrew took eighth (17:53) and fellow Charlevoix native Eric Buday took ninth (18:04).

On the women's side, Katie Osika of Waterford took third (19:01), Michelle Bollini of Charlevoix took fourth (21:42), and Anna Baldori of Charlevoix took fifth (22:01).

Ava Maginity of Boyne City (22:29), Isabel Hess of Charlevoix (23:19) and Linnea Jelinek of Petoskey (23:20) also finished in the top 10.

Darrel Folkert of Redondo Beach, California was the male masters champion in the 5K (19:03) and Cara Drenth of Charlevoix was the female masters champion (23:53).

In the 10K, Charlevoix's Matthew Ritter took home the crown, winning in 34:26.

The Oakland University distance runner moved to Charlevoix with his family last year when his father, Mike Ritter, became the superintendent at Charlevoix Schools, and made the most of his first Drenth race by holding off Michigan State stalwarts Jesse Hersha of Concord (second, 34:26), Dan Sims of Northville (third, 34:26) and defending champion Ryan Robinson of West Bloomfield (fourth,

On the women's side, Kaitlyn Arnold of Jackson and Alma College won the title in 37:07, beating out University of Michigan runners Jamie Morrissey (second, 39:21) and Kayla Keane of East Jordan (third, 39:22) for the title.

Derek Henning of Alanson finished fifth in 35:08 as well in the 10K, and Ron Zywicki of Traverse City won the male masters title in 38:27, 11th overall.

Mary Damery of Ossineke finished 58th overall (50:41) to win the female masters title in the race.

All the winners beat a record field of over 1,000 participants in the two races and the annual family fun run, making this the largest Drenth Footrace in the history of the event.

Venetian Rhythms fill East Park during festival

MOLLY HAUXWELL CURRIER

Cassadee Pope, country singer and winner of the third season of The Voice, performed for a large crowd in East Park in Charlevoix during the Venetian Festival on July 21.

Pope played a mix of her songs, mostly country, and some pop covers and country classics to a warm reaction from fans.

Myleigh Kokko, 9, met Pope during a meet and greet before the show. "It was awesome!" said Kokko, who's mother said she was counting down the days until the event for three weeks.

Pope interacted with fans in the front row during her performance, taking selfies and shaking hands. She also laughed as boats blew their horns after some of her songs.

Local bluegrass band Horton Creek opened the show.

Tree lights expected to return in September

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Downtown Charlevoix is expected to be shining bright again this fall once the new tree lights are installed sometime in September.

The Charlevoix Main Street/Downtown Development Authority board heard from Tree Lighting Committee member John Campbell about the new LED lights and the plan to limit maintenance costs.

"The plan is to wrap them a little differently and we will have a longer lifespan from the new lights, which we hope will give us five years before we have to get into any replacement costs," Campbell said.

Campbell also shared progress about fundraising to cover additional expenses to expand tree lights to the side streets and up the north and south hill of U.S. 31 during a meeting on July 25.

Earlier this year the Main Street board approved spending approximately $35,000 to trim the trees and remove and replace the lights on Bridge Street.

It was later determined for an additional $10,000 board members could light more parts of the downtown to enhance the downtown district.

To reach the new costs of $44,840, board members requested Campbell work LED lighting is expected to be placed back in the trees in Downtown Charlevoix sometime in September, according to the Charlevoix Main Street/Downtown Development Authority board. The lights were removed this spring to improve tree health and replace the old lighting.

Trustee race ends in a tie

LONNIE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — Pretend you are a candidate for local political office in your township.

You filed as a candidate, worked to get your name out there and waited after the polls to close Tuesday for the results of your race.

After all that, you find out you finished in a tie with another candidate. Now what?

Republican candidates Paul Hoadley and Bob Jess each received 153 votes. For the two of them, the primary winner will be determined by a drawing.

"I did not know what would happen after I heard there was a tie," Jess said. "I hoped all three of us would move forward to the November election."

But that is not how a tie is handled. According to Michigan

New store construction to cause U.S. 31 delays

Motorists should expect some delays along U.S. 31 in Charlevoix later this summer and early fall as the two new food mart stores being constructed on the north and south sides of Charlevoix Township begin major installation.

The North Krist Food Mart Store will see the closure of the Mercer and U.S. 31 intersection beginning the week of Aug. 15. Traffic will be routed down to the Division and U.S. 31 intersection. A shoulder closure also will be in place during this construction. Then, during the week of Aug. 22, it is planned that Division between Mercer and U.S. 31 will be closed for good and the reconstruction of Mercer north of U.S. 31 will begin. Motorists should expect delays with lane closures during this time.

Council approves sending easement ballot language to attorney general

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — A group of city residents who are upset with Charlevoix City Council members who overturned conservation easement ballot language earlier this year will see their initiative move forward.

On Monday members of the Charlevoix City Council approved sending ballot language to the Michigan Attorney General that will put the question to protect Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach to city voters this fall.

The unanimous vote by council members does not mean they endorse a conservation easement at the two parks, said Charlevoix City Manager Mark Heydlauff.

"Council only gave the approval to send this on to Lansing so the Attorney General and Governor can finalize and approve the ballot language," Heydlauff said.

Charlevoix Conservation Easement Committee member John Campbell submitted 490 signatures from residents supporting a ballot initiative.

Official: Landings success could cause ferry hours to expand

IRONTON — The popularity of The Landing lakeside restaurant could push Ironton Ferry officials to expand hours of operation for the vessel next year.

The ferry's governing authority will lead an information session during the Eveline Township Board of Trustees' regular meeting at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 9 at the township hall, during which possible changes for the 2017 season will be discussed.

"We're getting a lot of requests to run later because of the popularity of the restaurant," said Charlevoix County Commissioner Nancy Ferguson. "So we looked at it and we need a couple of an-

The Landing restaurant on the west side of Lake Charlevoix's Ironton Narrows has been a draw for Bayne City area patrons who park their vehicles on the east side and ride as passengers on the Ironton Ferry. This is a reason the ferry's governing authority will host an information session during the Eveline Township Board of Trustees' regular meeting at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 9 at the township hall to discuss changing ferry hours for the 2017 season.

Park survey deadline Aug. 12

CHARLEVOIX — The City of Charlevoix has extended the deadline for the online survey that will be used to help develop a new parks and recreation plan. The new deadline for the survey will now be Aug. 12.

The City launched an online survey at www.charlevoixrecreation.com. The survey is brief and should take no more than 10 minutes to complete. It is extremely important to hear from all interested parties that want to help make a difference.

The City began the plan update process earlier this year and will follow the guidelines for Community Park, Recreation, Open Space, and Greenway Plans as published by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The City of Charlevoix has been working with a Michigan-based planning firm, Spicer Group, whose home office is in Saginaw, to assist the city with the update process. Spicer Group is a full-service consulting firm founded in 1944 that offers planning, zoning, engineering, landscape architecture and recreational services to municipal clients.

Print versions of the input survey are available at City Hall, located at 210 State St., in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Public Schools welcomes Emily Edwards

Emily Edwards will join the staff of the Charlevoix Public Schools as one of their new educators this year.

Edwards looks forward to begin her career in Charlevoix this fall.

"I am excited about working with the greater Charlevoix community and tapping into its resources to do some project-based learning and citizen science projects," she said. "I am also very excited about the hard-working students and staff at Charlevoix Elementary and look forward to getting to know everyone."

Edwards enjoys time with her husband, Ben. The pair just moved back to Michigan from the mountains of Asheville, North Carolina. She grew up in Cincinnati, but lived in East Lansing and Traverse City for a number of years prior to Asheville. Ben is from Greenville and is a family medicine physician. They recently bought a house in downtown Charlevoix and live with a dog, two cats and turtle.

Before becoming an educator, Edwards majored in Environmental Biology/Zoology at Michigan State University, where she ran track and cross-country under Charlevoix native Walt Drenth. In Traverse City she led environmental education programs at the Grand Traverse Conservation District.

"This experience heightened my interest in early childhood education," Edwards said. "I then obtained my Child Development Certificate at Northwestern Michigan College and after moving to Asheville, North Carolina, I completed an Elementary Education Certificate at the University of North Carolina Asheville."

The couple are celebrating the completion of Ben's residency program and are traveling to Scotland and Ireland for vacation. They will explore Emily's Scottish heritage by visiting the land of the MacLeods.

"We will also be organizing our house and getting settled before our jobs begin in August," Edwards said.

One of her favorite childhood school memories was reading "The Great Kapok Tree" in second grade.

"The teacher, Mr. Malron had us do a play and dress up as the characters in the book," she said. "We got to create the scenery and costumes. I was the bumblebee who whispered into the ear of the logger who was going to chop down the trees in the rain forest."

Beyond a love for early childhood reading, Edwards also loved playing in the dirt and finding quartz in the rocks during school recess. Edwards still enjoys the outdoors and literature. She likes to trail run with friends, husband and dog.

"My husband and I also love to explore Michigan's natural resources," she said. "For our honeymoon we backpacked Isle Royale. I always enjoy a good hook and a hot cup of tea, especially at our family cabin in the Upper Peninsula."

Pokemon Go players can find rare Pokemon at Castle Farms in Charlevoix.

Castle Farms reaps rewards, site is deemed a PokeStop

ALEXANDRA HUGHES
alexhughes@charlevoixcourier.com

Castle Farms in Charlevoix has experienced an increased hub of activity recently due to the influx of Pokemon Go users visiting their site looking for Pokemon. Castle Farms is located at 5052 M-86 North, in Charlevoix, and is classified as a PokeStop in the game.

"Trainers are welcome to catch Pokemon at the main entrance PokeStop, Birch Lake picnic area and our main parking lot without purchasing admission," said Anora O'Connor, general manager at Castle Farms.

But if players want to catch Pokemon within the castle grounds they will be required to pay a small entrance fee.

"Other Pokemon are lurking around our courtyards, buildings and gardens. As a special, if you show us that you drop incense, you will get $3 off admission. Families can spend the day touring the Castle, picnicking on site and catching 'em all," O'Connor said.

Castle Farms have said they love Pokemon Go Trainers.

"It opens up the Castle to a whole new demographic," O'Connor said. "Trainers and their families get to learn about our nearly 100 years of history and explore our extensive gardens, all while playing Pokemon Go."

Initially the castle was only offering the Pokemon Go special for Venetian Festival, however due to the great response they have decided to keep it going all summer. Castle Farms also is home to some rare Pokemon.

"Pikachu has been sighted in our Labyrinth and we hear other rare Pokemon have been hiding in the Enchanted Forest," O'Connor said.

The summer opening times for Castle Farms are 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Last admission is one hour before close.

Cherry Republic plans Charlevoix micro brewery

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The world's largest exclusive retailer of cherry food creations is expanding into the craft-beer industry.

Owners of the Cherry Republic plan to operate a small microbrewery in Charlevoix and at their Glen Arbor, Traverse City and Ann Arbor locations.

The company is awaiting approval from the Michigan

Liquor Control Commission before setting a date for the first beer to be released.

The new micro-beer brewing operation will begin small with a focus on beers that follow the tradition of cherry made products the specialty store is known for, said Todd Gyulveszi, beverage manager of Cherry Republic.

"We want our focus to be on beers made with cherries," Gyulveszi said. "Our intention is to begin small and experiment with our product. If we see an interest we will then test a shandy and stout and play around with a recipe we like until we get it right."

The operation is small enough that it will not require any major renovation or changes to the current store footprint.

"This will be a very small brewing system," Gyulveszi said. "It will be very self-contained and once we see how that goes we could look at future use and needs for our brewing operation."

LETTERS to the editor

A quality employee/person

Editor:
Saw something tonight that gives me faith in young kids today.

Went over to the Shell station tonight about 8 p.m. Got a lottery ticket from the girl working there. Walked across the street, down the drive to the backyard, came in the house and walked to the front porch. Here's the same girl, hustling down the street with a naked young kid maybe 3 years old headed east. The neighbor, Cindy was in my front yard.

I asked, "Did you see that?"

"No."
The kid was walking toward Bridge Street, naked. The girl at the Shell saw him, left the station, grabbed him up and because she had seen him before come in with his parents had a general idea where he came from. She hustled him down the street to home. Safe.

I started across the street to the station to hold off the customers from three cars. No sooner had I hit the drive and fence corner when she came running back to the station and passed me. She hadn't been gone five minutes. She saw the danger, acted, got the kid home safe and got back to the store. All's well.

Her name is Katie Mulen, I guess early twenties. And what she did and her actions tells me more than any resume: She deserves better than working the night shift in a gas station. Want a quality employee? Look her up.

Success unfolding in the arts

Editor:
2015 was a good year for the Charlevoix Circle of Arts and as the summer season unfolds, 2016 promises to be even better. In significant measure, our successes are a result of the generosity of our donors — individual and corporate. For the recent Plein Air Paint-Out and the signature summer Plein Air Exhibit, Fox Motors and Fox Motors Ford, Bud Klooster, First Merit Bank, Bob and Rita Barron, Joyce and Bruce Herbert, and Lynne and Mason Rosenthal were most kind to come forward with prize money for the outstanding entrants and Charlevoix State Bank has generously assisted with support for our entire summer season as well.

As a lifelong seasonal resident, I continue to be impressed with the willingness of the community to stand behind its charitable organizations and believe that such spirit helps make Charlevoix the place that it is.

Proud to say that Charlevoix is my hometown.

North pace: Hurry up, relax

Not so long ago, my husband and I lived in Metro Detroit and tried to escape to Northern Michigan every chance we got—away from the stress of work, traffic and suburban/urban environment. We would load dogs, kids, cooler, luggage, kitchen sink, and head toward I-75 with the rest of the weekend northerners.

Frustration would ensue, along with everyone else, when we hit a pocket of traffic—otherwise known as the entire stretch of I-75 from Detroit to Bay City—or had to make another unplanned bathroom break. Rushing to get to our rustic destination, we would unload the truck, get everyone settled, and finally, try to unwind and make the most of every moment until we had to re-load and head back downstate, just a few short days later.

This being said, I totally understand the mindset of the visitors who grace our area, especially over the summer months. My husband (jokingly) says it best—"Hurry up! We have to get there and relax." That's the mindset of the visitors to our area: anxious to get to where they are going.

As a local resident, I give everyone the benefit of the doubt when they have a lapse in manners: maybe they didn't notice the trash they left, maybe they don't realize the pedestrian laws, maybe they took a wrong turn and are distracted trying to find their way back, maybe they don't realize there are other people shopping at the store, and maybe they didn't realize that their dog(s) did their business at the park/boat launch/beach/playground/bike path. It's OK, dear visitors, we have all been there.

However, we take great pride in our communities. Just look around—it is clean, beautiful and welcoming. The streets and surrounding areas are lovely, groomed, and kept up. We notice—as residents—just as the visitors do, but we also take active ownership of our area and personally participate in keeping things nice. Just as you notice a place where no one cares, where trash is blowing around and everything is falling apart, you notice when things are well cared for and it says "We care."

This is the beauty of living in Northern Michigan; it is a true state of mind just as much as it is a special place. So, if you are a visitor, relax, slow down, be respectful on the streets, on the water, at the parks, and don't be so anxious to "Hurry up and relax."

Like everything we try to teach our kids to do—clean up your messes, be polite, and put things back after you use them. It truly is the little things that keep everyone connected, all enjoying the wonderful area around us.

Dear neighbors, what advice would you give to visitors to our area? Post your thoughts with me on my Facebook page—I would love to hear what you have to share.

Keeping your pets safe on the water

We all love our dogs and cats, but how about their safety when it comes to boating? The common belief is that dogs are great swimmers, cats not so. But most dogs, especially with short legs, are not. Cats can be taught to swim but most abhor water (try bathing one).

Dogs love the wind in their face as a boat is moving through the water, cats probably would love to be at home by the fireplace. Let's consider some ideas to assure your pets safely while boating:

— Orient the pet to your boat before setting out. Having a pet relaxed and familiar with its surroundings is vital. Use a boarding ramp for larger dogs. On sailboats, netting rigged below the lifelines is an excellent safeguard for pets or young children.

— A flotation device or pet life jacket is essential for any breed. It should have a harness that allows the pet to be lifted by hand or with a boat hook from the water. You should have a plan in place for the possibility of the pet falling overboard. A line running from bow to stern, a jackline, allows the pet to be tethered while allowing movement on deck.

— See that they have plenty of fresh water for hydration. Pets drinking salt water suffer serious dehydration. It Induces vomiting and diarrhea. Being out in the sun, like humans, pets are also subject to sunburn. Select a shady area on the boat for the pet or if not possible, consider sunscreen for your pet.

— For extended travel, see that your pet's health records are up-to-date. For travel into Canada a written copy of your pet's health record is required. Include your mobile phone number on their tag. Some pets have microchips embedded in their skin for identification. Discuss this with your veterinarian.

Although the best option is to leave your pet ashore, their safety and the safety of the crew should be your first priority. For more boating information, consider one of the many boating courses offered by the U.S. Power Squadron in our area.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Bridging our past with our future

The Charlevoix Historical Society will present a program at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 9, at the Charlevoix Public Library titled "Streamline Fashions of the Early 20th Century" by Sally Helvenston Gray, MSU professor of apparel and textile design. Gray will trace the development of American fashion as it emerged from the rigidity of the Victorian era into the new century. Pictured are how our resorters went to our beaches before fashion thinking radically changed, especially after the liberating impetus of the post-World War I era when freewheeling Jazz Age ideas took over. Prior to this happening, resort boys on a chaperoned beach picnic wore wool jackets, white shirts and ties, wool knickerbockers with dark knee socks, and laced leather shoes even on the warmest days. Resort young adults courted on the sand dunes, she clad entirely in white from neck to toe and wearing a huge white feathered hat, he still in white shirt and tie. Proper public appearance and modesty were ever so important, and exposure of what was considered an inappropriate expanse of flesh, even a female forearm or ankle, frowned upon and discouraged. Those few who dared to lighten up both physically and mentally got written up on the front pages of the local newspapers with a task-reprimand and editorial comment on the apparent moral laxity of the times. What would the Charlevoix Courier then have to say about what appears on Bridge Street today?

Historical Society announces recipients of the Bob Miles Award

In 1979, the Charlevoix Historical Society recognized individuals for their contributions to historical research and preservation in the Charlevoix area with the Bob Miles Award.

The award, named for one of Charlevoix's most significant archivists and historians, photographer Bob Miles, active from 1931 to 1972, who left a legacy of thousands of photos he had either taken or acquired, making a remarkable contribution to the preservation of the Charlevoix area history. His work, in the form of the book, "Bob Miles' Charlevoix" published in 1976, provided the means to fund the annex museum to the Historical Society's home, the Harsha House at 103 State St. Bob Miles, father of museum curator David L. Miles, died in 1966.

The Charlevoix Historical Society will revive this prestigious award and present it to Lynne and Mason Rosenthal, who have been generous benefactors to the society, as well as many other local organizations for a number of years. In support of historic preservation at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 9, in the community room of the Charlevoix Public Library.

Following the award presentation, a special program in the 2016 history series jointly sponsored by the library and historical society titled "Streamline Fashions of the Early 20th Century" will be presented by Sally Helvenston Gray, Michigan State University Professor of Apparel and Textile Design.

Gray, considered to be one of the top experts in her field, has done extensive research into the evolution of American summer fashion during the resort eras of the late 19th and early 20th centuries, and how they came to express the social changes of the times. Accompanying her program will be actual textile examples from various decades.

Charlevoix Circle of Arts to host musical evening

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Circle of Arts will present The Light Fantastic, an evening of classical music, youthful singing voices, and the inner light of poetry, produced by Armchair Theatre at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 7, at the Circle of Arts. The show will be staged surrounded by the paintings of the current Chasing the Light exhibit.

"Art is a mist that turns into an image," said Kahlil Gibran.

The Light Fantastic program expresses the atmosphere of light through the performing arts. Armchair Theatre is in its fourth season, and Grandville Ensemble is its first classical music program played by professional string players. Robert Dudd, David Sawtell and Marga Eickhart will perform a 40 minute concert. Some compositions are from the turn of the 20th century, when plein air painters were emerging into Impressionist art.

Grandville Ensemble will play the shimmering "Pavane for a Dead Princess" by Maurice Ravel and "Clair de lune" by Claude Debussy. Music celebrating summer light will include the explosive "Rejoicing" from "The Royal Fireworks" by Franz Joseph Handel, and "A Midsummer Night's Dream" by Felix Mendelssohn.

The Light Fantastic evening also presents the young and lively voices of Catherine and Sloan Hayes, and Kate Heady.

Short selections from poet/philosopher/artist Kahlil Gibran, author of "The Prophet," and contemporary poet Naomi Shihab Nye ("Words Under the Words") will be read by experienced actors Tim Cox, Dale Hull, Kay Hull, Chris McCauley and Rick Torres.

The reception chair is Nancy Kaulens. A $5 donation is appreciated.

New event benefits community pool

CHARLEVOIX — A new paddle event on Lake Charlevoix at Ferry Beach is gaining momentum with an influx of local support. Paddle 4 The Pool, a unique 4-mile predicted time contest from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m. for one and two-person paddle crafts, is a fundraising event for the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

"When the committee started working on this event, we knew we wanted to create something different within our community. Our hope is that Paddle 4 The Pool will be both fun and memorable for our participants," said Carlissa Mullaney, event coordinator.

The event takes place Aug. 20, and is open to those on kayaks, SUPs and canoes. Participants estimate their elapsed time to complete a 4-mile course, and the top three closest to their predicted time will be the winners. No one is allowed a time piece on board.

Local artist and entrepreneur, Edith Pair is creating one-of-a-kind awards for the top three winners of this event.

"From the moment Edith was approached to work on the awards, her creative energy and inspiration has shown through," Mullaney said. "The committee is thrilled to have her artwork featured as part of the event."

The paddles are being painted in her signature, colorful style. Each is a unique two sided design, and features prominent local landscapes and details. The artwork is meant to be a conversation piece in the winner's home for many years to come.

Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital will provide first aid tent and a wide range of local businesses and organizations have stepped forward to support this event.

"We are very thankful for the extent of community involvement we are receiving," Mullaney said. "To name a few, Irish Boat Shop will be placing our course buoys, Screen Masters is providing event T-shirts, Charlevoix Inn and Suites is offering discounts, and Summertime Rentals is donating rental proceeds to the pool. We also have received financial sponsorship and giveaways from several local establishments, which can be found on the event website."

One highlighted giveaway is a tour package from Beaver Island Boat Company.

Paddle 4 The Pool is a fundraiser for Charlevoix Area Community Pool's general operations. Registration is open for Paddle 4 The Pool and can be found online at www.paddle4thepool.com. Participants also may also register from 8-10 a.m. the day of the event at Ferry Beach.

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool is focused on providing programs that meet the needs of area children and adults through a safe, professionally managed aquatic facility that is affordable and accessible to all. Patrons from Charlevoix, Petoskey, Boyne City and beyond visit the pool regularly for swim lessons, aquatic exercise, Special Olympics, swim team, certification training, therapy in partnership with area physicians and more.

Raven Hill celebrates 25th anniversary

EAST JORDAN — After weeks of planning and preparation by board, staff and volunteers, Raven Hill Discovery Center hosted its annual Summer Magic Festival on Saturday, July 16. More than 150 guests gathered to celebrate 25 years of connecting science, history and art at Raven Hill. Guests participated in hands-on art, science and history activities, strolled the grounds as part of a scavenger hunt, participated in a silent auction with a wide variety of items to bid on and enjoyed beer, wine and hors d'oeuvres.

This year's 25th anniversary festival theme was "Silver Threads" and supporters of the nonprofit family-oriented science, art and history education center and museum once again gathered to help the facility continue providing its year-round programs. Major sponsors included East Jordan Plastics, EJ, Boyne Country Propane, the Fred and Barb Malpass family, Darrell Jacob family and the Leach family. The event raised support from corporate sponsors, local artists and businesses, silent auction proceeds and other monetary donations. A full list of sponsors is available on the Raven Hill website: www.MiRavenHill.org.

The benefit festival began at 6 p.m. on the grounds of Raven Hill Discovery Center. The Jongleurs Recorder Group entertained the crowd in the main museum and Roman Crystal Entertainment were DJs under the tents.

Catering by Nathan Bates provided hors d'oeuvres. Amy Giliard, board president and Caitlin Koucky, director of administration, reviewed highlights from the past year and Cheri Leach, CEO, encouraged guests to attend the upcoming Raven Run on Aug. 6 and Community TEC Day with NASA on Aug. 20. The annual balloon pop ended the evening with a big bang.

At Raven Hill Discovery Center, children and adults can link science, history and the arts with hands-on activities and explorations both indoors and outdoors. Connections emerge through classes, exhibits and facilities that provide opportunities for all ages to learn, create, grow and play. The Center sits in the middle of 157 acres and is surrounded by forests, fields, swamps and ponds. It is adjacent to Little Traverse Conservancy's Raven Ridge Nature Preserve. Since 1991, more than 193,000 visitors have enjoyed the offerings. Open seven days a week from April through October, Raven Hill Discovery Center is also open all year on weekends and always by appointment. Proceeds from Raven Hill's annual summer festival support ongoing programs to connect science, art and history, as well as provide much-needed matching dollars for grant awards. As a nonprofit and tax-exempt 501(c)(3) organization, both monetary and in-kind donations to Raven Hill are federally tax-deductible.

Circle of Arts presents 2nd Art from the Attic

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Circle of Arts will present its second annual, Art from the Attic: II, silent auction/buy it now fundraiser on August 12-13.

Up for auction will be a variety of items ranging from fine art, vintage goods, furniture, jewelry, decorative accessories and more. Donations are now being accepted for interesting, previously loved items that benefactors feel would be welcome in a new home.

New this year is the location of the event.

"We have been offered the use of the space at 405 Bridge Street as a location to set up shop," said Gail DeMeyere, executive director of the Circle of Arts. "This seems to be the perfect location to be able to introduce the auction to a larger audience, especially as it will coincide with the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair."

Some of the notable items that have come in thus far are: a painting by Grace Hall Hemingway (the mother of Ernest Hemingway), a table crafted by Norman Brumm, a full scale merry-go-round horse and a brass dog bed for for a king or queen pooch, complete with a custom leopard spotted cushion.

The Circle of Arts has been adding additional programming and is looking forward to the fall when they will have a new dance floor in place in the lower level of the 109 Clinton St. location. They will then be offering dance for all levels as well as yoga classes. A portion of the proceeds of the auction will help offset the installation. This project also is funded in part by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs.

Donors are encouraged to contact the Circle of Arts to fill out a donation form or visit www.charlevoixcircle.com and register on the Art from the Attic: II page.

Annual arts exhibition show to run through Aug. 28

EAST JORDAN — The 26th annual Invitational Arts Exhibition opened Sunday, July 31, at the Jordan River Art Center, East Jordan and will run through Aug. 28. Artists, friends and community members are invited to marvel at the many quality works both two and three dimensional and many works are for sale at affordable prices.

This year the featured artist is the late Peggy Midener, a gifted artist and long time

Jordan River Art Center board member. She was a seeker of truth and an inspiration to many people.

"The world has lost a wonderful woman," said Karen Walker: "She was an artist, mentor, friend, and all around classy lady. She will be missed."

The Jordan River Art Center congratulates Howard Ellis for continually being curator of this exhibition since its inception. The show is open from 1-4 p.m. daily and runs through Aug. 28. Other viewing times can be arranged. The Jordan River Art Center is located at 301 Main St., East Jordan.

Veterans offered help applying for health care benefits

Veterans often have difficulty navigating the red tape involved to apply for benefits and often the requirements for health care benefits seem confusing because of overlapping factors. In order to be eligible for veteran health care, several criteria must be met and the Veteran's Administration and local Veteran's Affairs Offices want to help.

Veterans who served in active military service and were separated under any condition other than dishonorable, may qualify for benefits. Current and former members of the Reserves or National Guard who were called to active duty by a federal order and completed the full period for which they were called or ordered to active duty may be eligible for veteran health

Enhanced eligibility factors

- Veteran is a former prisoner of war (POW)
- In receipt of a Purple Heart
- Have a medal of honor
- Have a compensable VA awarded service connected disability of 10 percent or more
- In receipt of a VA pension
- Were discharged from the military because of a disability (not preexisting) early exit, or hardship
- Served in a theater of operations for five years post discharge
- Served in the Republic of Vietnam from Jan. 8 1962 to May 7, 1975
- U.S. Navy and Coast Guard ships associated with military service in Vietnam. Ships must be on the agent orange list
- Served in the Persian Gulf from Aug. 21 1990 to Nov. 11 1998
- Were stationed or resided at Camp Lejeune for 30 days or more between Aug. 1, 1953 and Dec. 31, 1987
- Are found by the VA to be catastrophically disabled
- Previous year's household income is below the VA's National Income or Geographical threshold.

benefits as well.

Most veterans who enlisted after Sept. 7, 1980, or entered active duty after Oct. 16, 1981, must have served 24 continuous months or a full period for which they were called to active duty in order to be eligible. The minimum duty requirement may not apply to veterans who were discharged for a disability incurred or aggravated in the line of duty. Since there are a number of other exceptions to the minimum duty requirements, veterans should consult with their County Veterans Affairs Officer to make sure they are eligible for health care.

Each year's benefits are based on the previous year's information. Information regarding income limits for veterans can be found at nationalincomeimits.vafil.us.

To apply for health care, visit the local County Veterans Affairs Office where a counselor will help applicants fill out the paperwork and send applications to the Veteran's Administration. Veterans should bring their honorable discharge papers (DD-214) and

'Journey Through Grief' program scheduled for August

PETOSKEY — A free Journey Through Grief program continues from 6-7:30 p.m. on Tuesdays through August in the community room at Greenwood Cemetery, 111 Greenwood St., Petoskey. The grief program began Tuesday, Aug. 2.

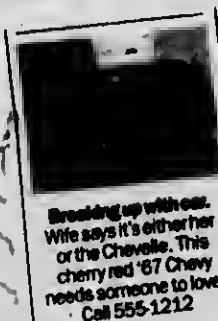

Pastor David Behling will conduct these meetings that give individuals the tools to work through their grief. And because grief and losses differ, each situation might be handled in various or alternative manners.

This program helps people work through loss. Most people associate loss to mean death and often it does mean just that. But people can also suffer the loss of employment, physical mobility and any number of other things that can leave deep wounds and hinder interactions and associations long after the original point of impact.

"Grief is always about loss, but not always about dying," said Amy Wieland, executive director of Hospice of Northwest Michigan.

'Five Wishes and More' program set for Aug. 10

Brownie Flanders and Amy Wieland will present the "Five Wishes and More" program at 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 10. The program is free and open to the public at Christ Episcopal Church located at 200 State St., in Charlevoix.

There are many things in life that are out of our hands. The Five Wishes program gives participants a way to control something very important — how they are to be treated if they get seriously ill.

Brownie Flanders, Christ Episcopal Church treasurer and vestry member, will lead the group through the process of completing the Five Wishes document, which when filled out and properly signed, is valid under the laws of most states.

End-of-life issues are seldom fun to consider, but it's important for people to be aware of the choices in hospice care, and how to choose wisely, much in the same way people choose the best possible family physician, and the best possible specialist in the event of an illness. Amy Wieland, executive director of Hospice of Northwest Michigan, will discuss hospice care and Twister Joe: Northern Michigan's home town ambassador

ANNE KILLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

An ambassador for everyone's home town is what Joe Koprowicz calls himself. As Twister Joe, "Northern Michigan's Favorite Balloon Artist," Koprowicz can be seen at festivals, fairs and special home town events all around Northern Michigan.

His day job is as owner of Glasser Insurance Agency, Inc. in Gaylord, where his wife covers his desk for balloon gigs when they arise. His daughter, Abigail (Popper), worked side by side with her dad for 25 years, handling some by herself.

"Now I'm on my own to cover all my engagements," he said.

In June, he has had 29 bookings from Traverse City and Houghton Lake to places further north. Most of his entertaining balloon-twisting services are for hire. He is a feature at many farmers' markets, including Charlevoix's, gratuitously.

If you are a parent or grandparent, be sure to let the kids speak for themselves in telling what animal or other balloon creation they would like Koprowicz to twist off. He likes to talk to the kids and make them smile.

"It's nice to have a job that you like and to do something that makes people smile," said Koprowicz said of his avocation.

He grew up in Detroit, learned to create animals and hats from the famous Roscoe the Clown, and he now home bases in Gaylord accepting invitations from around the area.

"I'm not the entertainer that Roscoe was," he said. "But I learned that when you draw the kids in with the balloons, you can entertain them and make them smile."

Making local appearances in Charlevoix at the Easter Egg Hunt, the Venetian Festival for both Kid's Day and the Street Fair as well as at the Charlevoix Public Library Summer Readings Program and the farmer's market, are Welcome to the Digital Age

Social media has changed the way we communicate tourism in Charlevoix. Potential visitors will check out at least 17 different websites and social media pages to see what's happening in our area. At the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau (CVB), one of the best ways to reach people is through interactions on social media.

Maintaining a social media presence should not be a hard task nor should it take lots of time. Through these unique marketing platforms require some forethought and planning. Creating a social media plan, takes a lot of the guess work out of posting to social media sites. When promoting Charlevoix, the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau uses a social media calendar to plan Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter posts. At the end of the month, the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau reviews its social media posts to see what posts reached the most and what things can be done to improve.

It is extremely important to pick the right social media channel. Instead of trying out every single social media platform, pick one or two channels that allow you to communicate best with your customers. It's also extremely important to regularly post content to any social media sites. The worst thing to do would be to create a social media page, start posting content, and then to stop posting to your social media accounts.

Customers will be left wondering what happened to your business.

It is imperative for businesses to be engaged with customers and potential customers on social media. By being a part of the conversation, this gives businesses the opportunity to interact with customer, answer questions, and build customer loyalty. Social media is a wonderful tool that helps businesses, cities, and people better market themselves.

For more information or to ask a question about social media planning, email Katherine at katherine@visitcharlevoix.com or visit www.visitcharlevoix.com/welcome_to_the_digital_age for more resources.

Katherine Forrester is the Sales and Marketing Coordinator for the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau. In addition to promoting group travel, she focuses on developing and tracking the digital and social media marketing for the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Michigan summer is in full swing

It's hard to believe that Venetian has come to a close for another year. As you look ahead to next year and begin to plan your summer calendar please save the date for July 15-22, 2017.

A big thank you and congratulations to the Venetian Festival Committee — chair, Dan Barron, and staff member, LaRae Stevens — for a job well done; the committee and its volunteers always go above and beyond to showcase Charlevoix and its wonderful assets. This event has become an annual homecoming for Charlevoix, bringing the community together for a weeklong celebration.

We also owe thanks to those that travel from surrounding communities for the day or night, to enjoy a meal, shop, take in a movie or a concert, to the boaters that come from near and far for fuel and provisions, and to those that make Charlevoix there annual vacation spot year after year.

Let's not lose the momentum of this wonderful summer, its only August and we have a lot left to enjoy. Summer is a wonderful time to connect with old friends, enjoy outdoor activities, attend a concert or festival and see our community full of people enjoying and learning why we make Charlevoix our home.

Each week from 8 a.m.-1 p.m. our Farmers Market will be in East Park through Oct. 6 and then vendors will go indoors and switch to afternoons through Nov. 17. Looking for a night out, you still can enjoy a concert in the park. For a complete listing of performances and times please

BEAVER ISLAND — Saving Birds Thru Habitat, an organization that promotes protection of habitat for North American birds, presented the Beaver Island community with the Conservation Partner of the Year award on July 21.

Jim Jones, board member for the Beaver Island Association, received the award for the island community. Beaver Island was doubly honored to accept a second award from Saving Birds Thru Habitat as the first island in the world to be certified for efforts to control invasive species and create healthy habitat for nesting and migratory birds.

The economic benefit of the Beaver Island Birding Trail to the island and region is substantial and will continue to be of value to the island economy and its birds, Jones said.

To showcase premier birding habitats on the island, the Beaver Island Birding Trail was created three years ago and has been visited by birders from across the country.

For more information about birding at Beaver Island, visit www.beaverislandbirdingtrail.org.

tive to decide if these two parks in Charlevoix should be further protected than what the current city charter offers.

Of those signatures city clerk Joyce Goiding verified 416 to be valid, which was more than the required 336 registered voter signatures need to get the referendum on the ballot.

"City residents want to have a say on the protection of Mount McSaubia and Lake Michigan Beach," Campbell said. "This will give them a chance to do that in November."

Campbell attempted to work with city council earlier this year to place the conservation easement question on the ballot, but the measure faced strong opposition from council members Shane Cole, Luther Kurtz, Aaron Hagen and Bill Supernaw.

In the end council members blocked the measure from going before voters, which was the reason for the petition.

City council approved sending conservation easement ballot language to Lansing for approval to be placed on November ballot for voters to determine the type of land protection they would like to see at the Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach.

tion, Campbell said.

"All we wanted from the beginning was to allow the residents to make the choice," Campbell said.

The ballot measure language will ask voters if they would like to see developmental restrictions contained in a conservation easement. Conservation easements are voluntary, binding agreements that place permanent restrictions on how a property can be used to protect natural resources and open space.

Under such an easement, the city would maintain ownership of the land but be prohibited from dividing the property, conducting any commercial, industrial or mining operations, dumping, most types of construction, most tree cutting and most excavation in the Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and the Lake Michigan Beach area.

"I support this initiative going to the people," said councilperson Shirley Gibson. "These are the type of issues that require the citizens to voice their opinion with a vote."

with the Main Street committees and raise the funds, after approving the work plan earlier this year.

Charlevoix City Manager Mark Heydlauff said the board can fund the project completely, but fundraising was encouraged because parts of the Main Street initiative revolve around community support of the downtown.

"When the plan was approved board members encouraged fundraising to light the additional areas," Heydlauff said.

The committee is $8,595 short from the total work plan approved by board members, Campbell said.

Charlevoix Main Street/Downtown Development Authority board chairman Dan Barron said any amount not raised would come from the board's general fund.

"We may have money come from our reserves, but this is money raised by DDA increment funding to pay for projects in the DDA district," Barron said. "That money is supposed to be used to pay for and facilitate improvements and promote the economy in the downtown."

The Main Street board agreed the project to light downtown and the additional areas should not change just because its fundraising goals were not met.

"This is an important project to our downtown and we look forward to its completion," Heydlauff said.

Where to find the ultimate in flavor and freshness

Whether it's fruits, vegetables, cheese, bread or meat, doesn't it feel good to prepare and savor it when it's fresh and when you know it comes from a nearby producer? And where can you find produce that's as fresh as it could possibly be? Directly from the producers or at a farmers market. At the market, you'll find just-picked produce, fresh and frozen meat, preserves, prepared dishes and all kinds of other treats.

Not only can you stock up on all sorts of delicious and nutritious foods at the farmers market, but you can support farmers in your area and help the local economy. And that's not all; you're also protecting the environment by doing your grocery shopping close to home. That's because the food you find at the sellers' stalls didn't have to travel hundreds or even thousands of miles before ending up on the table in front of you. This saves on fuel, but it also saves on packaging; food that comes from your region doesn't have to be over-packaged in order to survive a long trip on the road. In short, public markets are as good for the planet as they are for your taste buds.

Public markets offer a more authentic human experience, where people are friendly and the producers themselves can answer all your questions. They're also more than happy to help you discover new foods that you might have always shied away from at the grocery store. So, what are you waiting for?

Your taste buds and the planet will thank you for shopping at a farmers market that's overflowing with fresh, locally produced foods.

election code section 168.852, the board of canvassers will notify candidates of a time and place to determine the winner by lot — drawing a name from a hat. The drawing was scheduled to take place Friday at 9 a.m. at the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners chambers. See the Charlevoix Courier or Petoskey News-Review website for results of the draw.

"I know each of us would like to serve our township," Hoadley said. "The township will survive this and move forward. I hope I am able to serve in the future to share my experience and knowledge with our potential new members."

The county board of canvassers will draw slip of paper out of a hat and the candidate whose name is drawn will be declared the winner and the election will be certified, said Charlevoix County Clerk Cherie Browe.

"The certification re-opens the time the candidates can request a ballot recount," Browe said. "They will have six days after the lot drawing and certification to ask for a recount."

The other Republican trustee candidate to take the most votes was newcomer Matt Cunningham who received 183 votes. Republican candidates Doug Kuebler received 150 votes, Jerry Simpson 130 votes, and Dave Zipp 130 votes.

known that the opposition to the current township board's direction is not the calls from a disenchanted small interest group, Cunningham said.

"I don't think you can call us a small interest group," he said. "I'm excited to have the chance to serve Hayes Township."

Cunningham was pleased at the support he received Tuesday, but said there is more work ahead.

"I'd like to thank everybody who supported me throughout the campaign and everyone who voted for me in the primary election," Cunningham said. "Our work is not done and I will need your support in the November election so I can help make a positive impact and change in Hayes Township."

Democrat incumbent Jim Rudolph also will be on the ballot in November. Rudolph, who ran unopposed, received 49 votes in Tuesday's primary.

Ron Van Zee defeated primary candidate Warren Nugent to win the Hayes Township Supervisor seat on the board of trustees.

"The people have responded and it is clear that we are not a small interest group," Van Zee said.

Van Zee received 257 votes against Nugent's

211 votes.

All results are unofficial until certified.

The primary election in Hayes Township reflects the concern from residents that the current board is not listening to what the people want, Van Zee added.

"The public feels the board's concentration should not only be on the township park — Camp Sea-Gull — but the entire township as a whole," Van Zee said.

The November election is a formality for Van Zee, because there was no other candidate to move forward against him in the general election.

"I'm humbly honored to have the community's support and I look forward to representing residents after the November election," Van Zee said.

Voters in Hayes Township also approved the road millage renewal 353 to 124.

swers to questions. A lot of people from Boyne City are coming over, they ride over and back. We're getting a lot of traffic for that reason."

The ferry operates from 6:30 a.m. - 10:30 p.m. Ferguson said she's not sure how late the schedule could expand. The changes being discussed are for next season, not this season.

Ferguson said several citizens have requested extending the hours so that restaurant patrons can make it over and back later into the evening.

"This (Eveline) is the neighborhood that it runs. The people should have input on it," she said.

The Ironton Ferry is a four-car cable ferry that crosses a short span of Lake Charlevoix in the Ironton Narrows. The ferry usually operates in the spring, summer and fall seasons from about mid-April through mid-November.

The Landing restaurant is on the Charlevoix side of the lake and has been a draw for Boyne City area patrons who park their vehicles on that side and ride as passengers on the ferry.

A walk in the Stonehedge Gardens

On a summer's day, a beautiful English country garden is a special place to be and for Paul and Cindy Vermeesch that is the feeling they want visitors to have when touring Stonehedge Gardens.

One can't help but notice as they enter the gardens how lots of cottage flowers casually flow together along with rustic buildings dotting the landscape give visitors a sense of whimsy and enchantment throughout Stonehedge Gardens located south of Charlevoix on M-66 just past the Ironton Ferry.

Paul and Cindy Vermeesch are celebrating the five-year anniversary of the classic country garden that is abundantly planted with herbaceous perennial plants and annuals. The garden is abuzz with bees and butterflies and a haven for small birds.

An old steel wheelbarrow is reclaimed and planted with flowers; along with many more whimsical art pieces scattered throughout the grounds. The indoor gift shop offers rare furniture, garden art and more for those seeking something special and unique.

TIE-BREAKER:

Hoadley wins draw, Jess calls for recount

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — On Friday morning, two trustee candidates in Hayes Township squared off in front of a plastic cup that held each of their names on two separate pieces of paper.

The name drawn by County Clerk Cherie Browe would be the Hayes Township trustee Republican primary winner and move on to the November ballot. That name was Paul Hoadley.

"I survived and emerged the winner from a tough event to deal with," Hoadley said. "This was very interesting to see this process and I came out on top."

The race for Hayes Township trustee ended in a 153-153 tie between Hoadley, the incumbent, and Bob Jess, the challenger on Aug. 2.

According to Michigan election code section 168.852, to break the tie the board of canvassers determines the winner by lot — drawing a name from a hat.

Browe drew the name and handed the paper to the county board of canvassers members present on Friday and they read the name declaring Hoadley the primary winner.

"I look forward to possibly working with our new supervisor and trustee after we see the results of the November election," Hoadley said. "I think I have something to share and the people know the experience I bring to the table."

After the election is certified, candidates have six days to file for a ballot recount, which Jess did immediately following the certification.

"The community is behind me," Jess said. "I am receiving a ton of support to move forward with this."

To file a candidate is required to fill out a recount request with the county and pay a $25 fee. The county clerk then notifies the state within two days that a recount request has been made, said Charlevoix County Deputy Clerk Cooky Borths.

"The recount will take place here," Borths said. "The town-

NOVOTNY TRIBUTE

Community bids farewell to former mayor and friend of Charlevoix

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Family and friends bade farewell on Monday, Aug. 8, to David Novotny with a celebration of his life that included music, food and the community.

Novotny, 70, of Charlevoix, died on Saturday, July 30, 2016, at his home. His life can be defined by many moments through his commitment to the betterment of Charlevoix. Novotny was very active in local politics for many years. He was the Mayor of Charlevoix from 1990 through 1994.

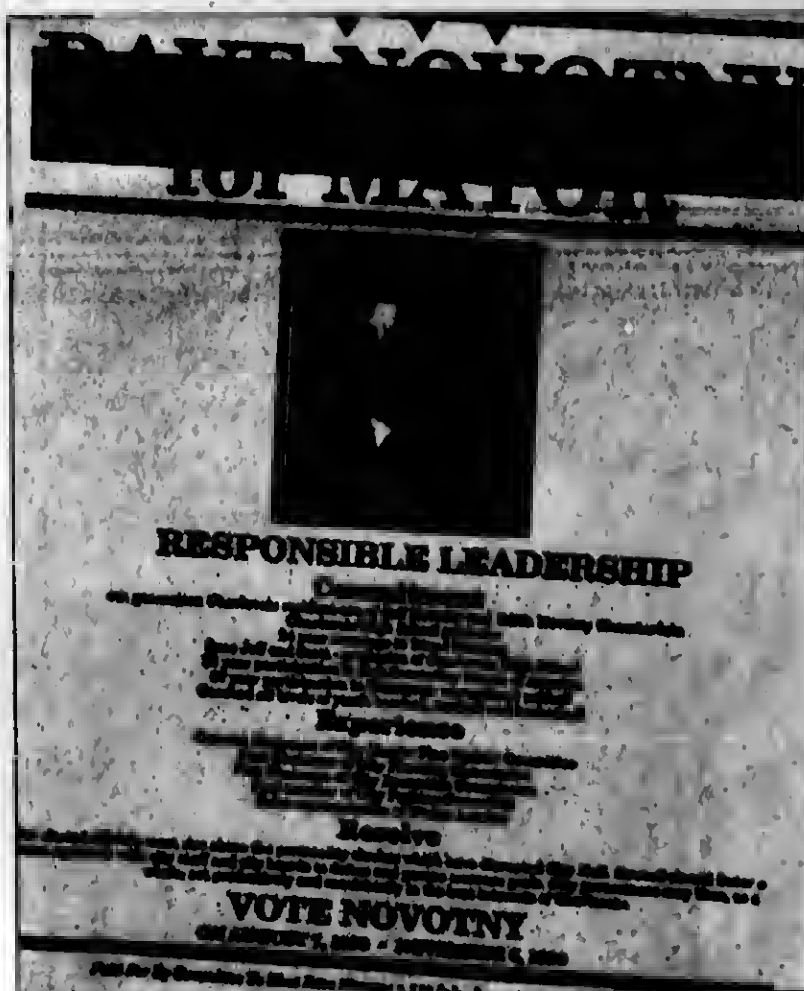

Before and after serving as mayor, he served on the Recreation Commission, Planning Commission, Housing Commission, and was a City Council representative.

But his life also can be defined on the softball diamond where a couple hundred people gathered Monday at the Carpenter Street softball field to remember the father, politician, friend and the man who loved the sport of softball.

"There is no better place to celebrate Dave's life than here on the pitcher mound with his friends and the number three, Dave Novotny," said Norm "Boogie" Carlson.

Novotny was a coach, player, umpire and announcer and was involved with the game until he

Waterfront Art Fair

People fill East Park in Charlevoix and look at a multitude of fine arts during the annual Charlevoix Waterfront Art Festival.

Event returns for 58th year

SEAN MILLER
(231) 439-9378 smiller4@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — The 58th Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair, the second oldest running art fair in Michigan, is returning to Charlevoix for one day only in East Park Saturday, Aug. 13.

This art fair was started in 1959 by a committee headed by Mrs. Edward Lemcke, which was formed to create and organize the first art fair in Charlevoix.

"It started with a group of committed ladies who came together," said Mary Beth McGraw, director of the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair. "At that time there were not any galleries in Charlevoix. It was both full-time and seasonal residents that wanted to bring art to Northern Michigan. It was so we could have fine art locally and not have to drive hundreds of miles to see it."

The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair is a juried art show that, according to McGraw, has 400 to 600 individual applicants. The fair has a committee that reviews every entry and decides which artists make it into the fair.

"We have a committee of people who are knowledgeable in the arts with an art background who does the jurying for the show," McGraw said.

One unique thing about the art fair is that in 1972 it was the first art fair in the state to provide scholarships for young local artists in the Charlevoix area. Since then, the fair was awarded more than $30,000 in scholarships.

"We dedicate some funds for scholarships and our first scholarship recipient just did the Charlevoix Venetian Festival artwork this year which is cool," McGraw said.

In 1990, the Charlevoix Arts Council was formed and profits generated by the art fair were used by the organization to continue the Island EMS funding in limbo

JORDAN SPENCE
(231) 439-9397 - jspence@petoskeynews.com

A lack of funding, and job posting procrastination has left the advanced emergency system on Beaver Island in limbo. Language for a new EMS millage has been approved by the St. James Township Board of Trustees.

The millage will be put on the November ballot. The Peaine Township board will discuss whether to put a millage on the ballot at the regular meeting Wednesday.

The approved millage language is valued at two mills. One mill equals $1 of tax for every $1,000 in property tax on a parcel of property. Therefore, for a property with a market value of $200,000 people would see about a $200 increase in taxes.

"There are a lot of moving parts to the saga, one of which is compared to most similar EMS operations they may average multiple runs a day and we average one every four days," said Beaver Island Emergency Services Authority Board chairperson Bill Cole. "Also because we've had Joe Moore (the now retired island paramedic) who was willing to spend a lot of hours on call (working for) less than prevailing wages. A

Chris Isch, wife, Morgan and son, Declan recently moved back to Michigan from Colorado. Isch is joining the staff at Charlevoix Elementary School this fall.

Teacher spotlight: Charlevoix Public Schools welcomes Chris Isch

Chris Isch will join the staff of the Charlevoix Public Schools as one of its new educators this year.

"My family and I are excited for the opportunity to work in a very tight knit community," Isch said. "We have already been welcomed with open arms by so many. I am also excited to get to know the students. I truly am passionate about teaching kids and cannot wait to contribute to their education."

Isch attended Western Michigan University where he earned his bachelor's degree in elementary education. After college, Isch and his wife, Morgan moved to Colorado where they spent three years living near the Rocky Mountains. The couple decided to move closer to home and the water after the birth of their son, 4-month-old baby, Declan. Isch, originally from Kalamazoo where many of his family still reside, now lives in Petoskey with his wife and son.

"We could not imagine a better place to start the next chapter of our lives," Isch said. "Our family is still settling into our new home and there are many projects to be done. Between projects, we cannot wait to get on the water, enjoy some of the local festivities, and explore the beautiful area."

"We are looking forward to spending more time with our families as it is pretty convenient no longer living halfway across the country," he added.

Isch enjoys spending time with his family when he is not in the classroom or working with students. One of his favorite things to do is spend that family time outdoors and enjoying what Michigan has to offer in the summer.

"My favorite childhood memories were all made on the lake," Isch said. "Our family had a cottage on Gun Lake and we would spend our entire summers in or on the water. I can clearly remember my uncles teaching me to barefoot ski at a very young age and fishing for bluegills with my grandfather and younger brother early in the morning. If the fish weren't biting, my grandfather would always say, 'Christopher, you're not keeping those worms the right temperature.' These are the memories I want my son to grow up with. I cannot wait for the day I can utter my granddad's words to Declan as we wait for the first bite."

Between enjoying time exploring all that Northern Michigan outdoors has to offer, Isch also will be able to enjoy his love for music at the many and varied concert events.

"I cannot wait to get back on the water to water ski and fish again," Isch said. "I am also looking forward to getting back on my snowboard. I enjoy almost every type of music and have enjoyed playing many different instruments over the years. Music has also allowed me to travel across the country and explore many different cities."

New water line approved at township meeting

CHARLEVOIX — Members of the Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees approved two expenditures during their regular monthly meeting Monday.

The first is to add a new main water line for the north side tank and Old Orchard Road.

"We have one feed into the tank from outside the fire barn and if anything ever happens to that the tank would be out of service," said Randy Hoiecheck, township water department supervisor.

The new water pipe will be an 8-inch line inside a 10-inch diameter pipe. The costs to the township are expected to be $53,055.

"This will add another feed into the tank and give a better flow for the system," Hoiecheck said. "The new line also will allow us to add a new irrigation line for our soccer fields."

Board members also approved spending $10,000 of the allocated $20,000 for improvements to the Lake Michigan boat launch on Lake Shore Drive, to begin construction of cement slabs for the launch once approval comes from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

"The engineers have received approval from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers," said Chuck Center, township supervisor. "By approving the cement work as soon as the DEQ approval reaches our engineers they can get started on the work."

The cement should take approximately two weeks to cure and it is expected that sometime in mid-September the boat launch would be operational, Center added.

Township officials also have been in contact with officials at the St. Marys Cement Plant with the hopes an agreement could be reached that would provide some sort of assistance with launch construction.

"I have been in some discussion with the plant manager," Center said. "I think if they can help us with the use of some of their equipment we could see this project come in around the $20,000 we approved."

Couple look forward to participating in Waterfront Art Fair

AMBER KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Goldsmith artist Kim and Frank Yanke share a personal connection to the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair that will celebrate 58 years of bringing fine art to the Charlevoix area.

The two join more than 100 artists and artisans exhibiting their work on Saturday, Aug. 13, in the picturesque venue of East Park. The show is rich with a variety of media including painting, drawing, mixed media, ceramics, glass, jewelry, and fiber.

The Yankes are happy to be returning to Charlevoix for this year's show because of the connection they have with all who are involved in the Waterfront Art Fair beginning with the committee, patrons and artists who attend the fair.

"At first, for me, it was about the sale of jewelry or ones art. I'm assuming it was the same for the patrons, the purchase of something unique," Frank said.

"The committee offered a venue for this wonderful environment. Over time... being a jeweler kept us in contact with our clients on a regular basis... Many, many of our those original clients and now friends live up here in Charlevoix, Petoskey, Boyne City, East Jordan, Elk Rapids and Traverse City where Kim and I now live."

"What started as a purchase at an Art Fair turned into a career-long relationship providing beautiful jewelry to this day for many of the attendees... Think of it this way: Art Fairs are like match-makers," he added.

The Charlevoix Waterfront Art fair has evolved from a fledgling attempt to bring cultural events to the north by a handful of determined arts enthusiasts, into a prestigious gathering of fine artists and craftsmen. Today, the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair ranks first in the state as a one day exhibition and second only to the three day fair in Ann Arbor.

The participants are juried into the show and most years acceptance is limited to approximately 125 artists, selected from hundreds of applicants, with special attention paid to providing quality work and a variety of media. The Art Fair Committee is headed by Mary Beth McGraw, former Charlevoix Public Schools art teacher, and comprised of a small number of volunteers who put in endless hours adhering to the format and specifications set down in the by-laws of the organization.

The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair and the nonprofit Charlevoix Council for the Arts are tandem organizations whose mission is to provide exposure to the arts for Charlevoix and surrounding Northern Michigan communities. They donate funds for art scholarships for aspiring young artists, bringing performances and presentations to the schools, for supporting local art and music related endeavors, and for providing educational stimulus for the arts in the community primarily through the annual Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair.

"One of our missions is to encourage young people to have an appreciation for the arts," said McGraw. "We (the Charlevoix Public School art teachers) have seen our students' talent grow over the years in our art classes, and are happy to assist with a scholarship to help them embark on a possible career in art. That is a very rewarding part of what we do."

To date more than $30,000 in college scholarships has been given out to promising young artists. This year's scholarships were awarded to Irah Dhaseleer, Rachel Thompson and Kayla Hamill, all graduating seniors from Charlevoix High School.

A hateful behavior

Editor:
Today, July 25, before noon, while parked at the Family Fare parking lot, some coward chose to smear liquid marshmallow over the sign I have on my car window which says, "Abortion is the worst kind of murder."

You may not agree with me, nor I with you, but it's called freedom of speech. I have military members both in the past and present who fight for freedom of speech. Yes, even yours. However, not for freedom to destroy other people's property or bully them. Only a coward behaves in such a manner. Shame on you.

The more we allow bullies to walk all over us, the worse they will get. People need to stand up against such destructive behavior. Such a hateful behavior.

Sweaty Yeti offers thanks

Editor:
It is with joy in our hearts that we are writing to express our thankfulness and gratitude toward everyone who helped make Sweaty Yeti Run 2016 a huge success. This event, held in East Jordan on July 9, had more than 530 participants in this year's event, and hundreds more who came to watch, support and cheer, all of which left with a smile on their face.

The Sweaty Yeti Crew works hard for months to make this event happen, but we would not be able to do it without the tremendous support from you; our generous sponsors, those who donated race supplies, volunteers, local groups, East Jordan Public Schools, city of East Jordan (EMS, Chamber of Commerce and police), and everyone else who has donated either monetarily or through "sweaty" equity.

As you may or may not know, this event was created in memory of two sisters, Christie Galvin and Kellie Barber, who each lost their battle with cancer within eight months of each other. The proceeds of this event benefit the Barber-Galvin Memorial Scholarship Fund. This past June the family of these amazing women was able to award the first Barber-Galvin Memorial Scholarship. It was a great experience to be able to award this in their memory, and it would not be possible without the tremendous support of this event.

Save the date for next year's Sweaty Yeti Run being held on Saturday, July 8, 2017. We promise fun for the whole family. We hope to see you all next year.

Falling in love with the area

We are Chris McCauley and Kate Heady and our favorite term to describe ourselves is "wanderlust," which means "a strong desire to travel." We are always on the move, doing something for work or pleasure in Northern Michigan.

We recently sated our wanderlust with a grand two-week vacation driving across America. And of all the towns we visited, and the wonders we saw, nothing compared to the beauty of Michigan. We've lived in Michigan our whole lives, I grew up just south of Lansing, and Chris was raised in West Branch and went to Big Rapids for college. We both moved to St. Ignace in our early 20s, and met a few years later. It was a dream of ours to cross the bridge back to Northern Michigan, and that's how we found ourselves in Charlevoix.

The summers here were bigger than expected, but we love it... as long as you're on the right side of the bridge. Downtown Charlevoix is an eclectic place where the traveler can find wonderful dining experiences, beautiful art galleries, and upscale clothing boutiques, nestled between a variety of unique shops.

There are so many awesome things to do and see in the area. Charlevoix is certainly the best for fun events and exploring nature. We enjoyed the beautiful fireworks shooting off over the bay during the Fourth of July celebration and the 86th annual Venetian Festival. The Summer Concert Series put on by Charlevoix Main Street has been the highlight of every Thursday, along with weekly shows every Tuesday by the Charlevoix City Band.

We began to explore the area as we made Charlevoix our home... We instantly fell in love with the trails and beachfront that comprise North Point Nature Preserve. We frequent the nature preserve with our 5-year-old lab/boxer, Dali. The area is full of such wonder, whether you want to hike up and down Mount McSaubia, take a peaceful walk through the woods, or enjoy some sun. It's the perfect place to pack a picnic so you can lay back and relax on the beach all day.

Our wanderlust keeps us out and about all over the region. Even traveling to a nearby city for a few hours is such fun. We have great neighbors on all sides of our small, quaint town. We love to keep our feet moving so we can take in all of the majestic scenery everyday.

Chris McCauley and Kate Heady are part of our community columnist team. Wanderlust is a monthly column by the couple and together the two will share their thoughts, adventures and experiences of the area and travels with readers of the Charlevoix Courier. If you are interested in being a community columnist from an area in Charlevoix County email news@charlevoixcourier.com.

WANDERLUST

Chris McCauley & Kate Heady

Are you contributing, or just being a jerk?

One of my favorite emails I ever received was from a woman questioning my ability to parent because I once wrote in this column that my son had never eaten at McDonald's. (He's now 7, and still hasn't eaten a McDonald's meal).

Runner up was a note from a reader calling me a "puppy hater" because while I love dogs, I don't like being chased by dogs I don't know while out on a run.

Writers know that once their byline is attached to a piece online, the trolls come out. You usually know what topics will see the most vitriol — politics, gun control, religion. Other topics can surprise you — kids not eating McDonald's, dogs not on leashes — with the comments people post in response.

The majority of comments — no matter what the story or the gender of the writer — unfortunately aren't from people thanking you for the piece. Instead, comments are usually from trolls and often contain misspelled and improper use of their/there/they're, along with long explanations why "your thoughts are worthless," or "your 500-word column is such a waste of my time," unlike this 500-word response I'm going to post which is a great use of my time.

So here's the thing: If you can't be mature enough to avoid reading articles or columns you dislike so much that you must take to the comment section to post some filthy vitriol, maybe you should reconsider why you read such articles to begin with. If you must comment, first ask yourself the following questions:

1. Would my mother approve of my response?

The great thing about comment sections is it allows readers to connect with writers and share their feelings on the topic. Many comments become helpful, giving other readers tips or ideas, or insights to various topics they possibly haven't considered previously.

However, when you start off by saying, "you're a radical nut case," "your (yes, spelled wrong) so dumb" or "what's wrong with you libtards (libtard = retarded liberal, a term often used in comment sections)," you're not doing much to contribute to the conversation.

Instead, try something like, "While I don't agree with this article, it's interesting to read that people have different ideas."

2. Am I a stalker?

If you ever find yourself looking up the author's private email, Facebook account, phone number or even home address to relay your thoughts, stop right there. It doesn't matter what you want to say to the writer, you will immediately be seen as a creep, since well, that's just creepy.

Instead, just send an email to the author's published email address, or leave it in the comment area. The rest should be considered out-of-bounds.

3. Am I staying on topic?

A piece I wrote a few years ago about public schools and the Pledge of Allegiance resulted in a comment going way off topic to why schools are doing a disservice by not teaching cursive anymore and that was the downfall of education and society.

While that may make a good story, it's best to stay on topic when it comes to comment sections.

4. Am I always rude when I comment?

If you're always leaving negative replies and you go out of your way to post nasty comments on articles, you're the problem. Name calling, lectures, passive aggressive comments and threats do nothing to move a conversation forward. You're just being a jerk.

Disagreeing with an author and leaving a respectful, well written response is what comment sections are for. But too often, lines are crossed.

It shouldn't have to be said, but not being a complete jerk online is actually an option for everyone. Of course you would never know that if you read the comment sections.

COMMUNITY

Foundation passes $20-million in cumulative dispersed grants

EAST JORDAN — In the past 24 years, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation has developed a substantial endowment with a growing benefit to the community. Each fall and spring, the foundation distributes grants to numerous nonprofit organizations throughout Charlevoix County and elsewhere.

Over the past year, the organization distributed more than $1.8 million in grants and scholarships, bringing the cumulative total to more than $20 million since the foundation began in 1992.

"I think it's a remarkable number for Charlevoix County," said Chip Hansen, foundation president. "Every person who has contributed in some way to the Community Foundation in the past 24 years should feel a sense of satisfaction in what we have accomplished together. When I think of all the good that has been done in our communities through the foundation, and all of the positive impact those grants and scholarships have made, it makes me appreciate the generous nature of the people who live here even more."

foundation partners with multiple nonprofit organizations throughout the county to support artistic and cultural programs, environmental conservation initiatives, youth and recreational activities, educational services, economic development and much more. Anywhere in Charlevoix County, the impact of grants from the foundation can be seen.

From the canopy of trees lining the streets in Charlevoix to the community pool in East Jordan to the health center on Beaver Island to the library in Boyne City—and nearly every spot along the way—the grant dollars are at work. Grants range from a few hundred dollars used to purchase food for a local food pantry to tens of thousands of dollars used to reconstruct bridges, build trail systems or improve facilities. These developments and projects are made possible by the generous donors who give to the community foundation and in turn give back to the communities they love and the causes they care about.

"Our donors are incredibly generous and Charlevoix County Community Foundation board chair, Michelle Cortright, and president, Chip Hansen, stand outside the Foundation's offices in East Jordan.

forward-thinking," Hansen said. "They have bold ideas about how they can help create positive changes in our county, and we help them bring those ideas to life."

This past year, the foundation created a new tagline, "Giving Back. Moving Forward," to help communicate the organization's mission to enhance the quality of life for all citizens of Charlevoix County, always.

"We have seen just how important giving back to our community can be," Hansen said. "Now, as we move into our 25th year, we are positioned to continue giving back, but we are also committed to continue moving forward toward the future and toward more strategic and purposeful support."

Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Michelle Cortright, agreed.

"The wonderful thing about the community foundation is the sustained commitment to its mission," Cortright said. "As a trustee, I see it as my privilege to carry on the work that those before me have started. Because of the way the foundation was established and operates, it will continue to support our county in tangible and valuable ways so there is much more yet to come."

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a charitable organization that's dedicated to improving and enriching life for all who live in our area. Each year the organization's grants encourage environmental stewardship, artistic talent, economic growth, health and wellness, youth initiatives, recreation, education, and more. Charlevoix Lions Club to host annual White Cane Days

The Charlevoix Lions Club announced their annual White Cane Days fundraiser will be 9:30 a.m. - 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday Aug. 12-13. The yearly event features local Lions asking the community and guests to "Help the Lions help the blind."

The local Lions Club has raised more than $20,000 over the past six years to support numerous projects that help blind and other visually impaired people. Lions Club members will be asking for donations at Family Fare Market, Oleson's, Ace Hardware and at various locations downtown during the Waterfront Art Fair.

"This is one of our club's signature summer fundraising events, and we appreciate the generous support we receive each year in Charlevoix," said club member Bob Grupp, who assists in organizing White Cane Days for Charlevoix Lions. "We see lots of friends and neighbors who don't hesitate to donate during White Cane Days. It's a pleasure to support this good cause."

More than 80 years ago, Lions Clubs across the nation began using white canes with a red band to assist the blind in achieving independent mobility. Today, a white cane universally acknowledges that the bearer is blind. White Cane Laws are enacted in every state and in many other countries, providing blind persons a legal right-of-way when traffic is present.

All monies raised are used exclusively to support Lions projects to assist blind and other visually impaired people in Charlevoix and statewide. Some projects receiving funds are: Everlight Michigan (eye bank), Leader Dogs for the Blind, Lions Bear Lake Camp near Lapeer as well as eye care for local residents in need.

tive. Dave loved Venetian and was one of six founding directors of the Venetian Festival Board and served on the board from 1999 through 2010. He was also very involved with the local Boy Scouts. He worked for many years as a sales representative for Wicks Lumber.

Dave was preceded in death by his mother, Edith Novotny, his father Jeffery Novotny, his brother Jerry Novotny, and his beloved grandfather, Albert Novotny who had a special place in his heart and spent endless time with him as a child.

Dave is survived by two sons, Jeffrey (Shelly) Novotny and Scott Novotny. He is also survived by his three grandchildren, Chandler, Raigan, and Payton Novotny. He leaves behind his dog Skip who he cared for deeply and was always by his side. Dave has many aunts, uncles, nephews, nieces, cousins, and friends who will miss him dearly.

In lieu of flowers the family suggests memorial contribution be made to the Charlevoix County Humane Society in his name. Dave loved softball whether it be playing, umpiring, announcing, or coaching. He played the game until he was almost 60 years old.

To honor his life and love of the game, a celebration will be held 5-8 p.m. Monday, Aug. 8, 2016 at the Carpenter Street softball field. Please bring a chair.

James Kinney Fineout, 74

James, known mostly for his contagious smile and sparkling blue eyes, is now smiling in heaven since his passing on Aug. 3, 2016, after a long brave battle against cancer at his home in Murfreesboro, Tennessee.

Born July 1, 1942, to A.C. and Versa (Brown) Fineout at home in Boyne City, Michigan, he was the fifth of six children. He is survived by his wife and best friend Janet (McGlone), children Kevin (Lynn) Fineout, Ronald (Shannon Suckow) Fineout, Natalie (Brian Deifenbacher) Nelson, Terri (Samuel) Minor and Jeffery (Theresa) Fineout; grandchildren Madeisen and Jessica Fineout, Sasha (Kyle Stammersky) Fineout, Bailey Fineout, Sydney Radloff, Nicholas and Zachary Backus and Brandon Fineout; siblings Larry (Hellen) Fineout Sr., Jeanne McGhee, Roseann (Dane) Jepsen and Sandra (Kenneth) Ever-ingham. He was an uncle, honorary brother, father and grandfather, role model and friend to countless others.

He was preceded in death by his parents, sister Marian Lanz and Janet Adams, brother-in-law Butch McGlone and son-in-law Charles Backus. Jim grew up in central and Northern Michigan where he reports he walked up hill both ways and was chased by bulls while walking to school through the farm fields on a daily basis. He graduated from Flint Beecher High School. He held many careers in his life ranging from General Motors, owning his own carpet and furniture stores and later being an insurance inspector for FEMA and private insurance companies. He also had a passion for home renovation.

Jim never missed an opportunity to go on vacation with family, which more often than not, involved extreme adventure more than relaxing in the sun. He loved to watch his grandchildren participate in whatever activity they were involved in often traveling across multiple state lines to arrive on time. His grandchildren were spoiled with yearly summer vacations that ranged from high paying chores that included sharpening all the pencils you could find, lawn mowing races and cruises to exotic locations. A celebration of life will be held at the Fineout Farm (590 Shadow Trails Road E., Boyne City) a place he held close to his heart, 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 20. A short memorial service will be followed by a barbecue. Cremation has taken place and his remains will be laid to rest beside his parents at Maple Lawn Cemetery in Boyne City.

Armchair Theatre presents Diaries of Adam and Eve

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix Armchair Theatre at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts presents two performances of the "Diaries of Adam and Eve" 6:30 p.m. Sunday Aug. 21 and 2 p.m. Sunday Sept. 4, at the Circle of Arts in downtown Charlevoix.

Mark Twain wrote the diaries in two parts, "The Diary of Adam" was written during the 1890s, when he was 55 years old and at time when his own fortunes were beginning to fail, and the health of his wife Olivia (Livy) was deteriorating. It was first published under the title of "The First Authentic Mention of Niagara Falls."

"The Diary of Eve" was written almost 15 years later when Twain was 70. It was written shortly after the death of Livy. At this point, Twain had outlived three of his four children. As a result, the tone of this diary is completely different from that of Twain's earlier works.

What's been done in this production is to put these two voices from different times in Twain's life together. When heard together at the same time, they provide the audience with a remarkable love story, an enduring love that transcends the fragile yearnings of romance, the intimacy of transient desire, the inevitable disappointments and misunderstandings inherent in any relationship, and even death itself. It is a portrait of two very unusual people, the world's first lovers, who meet under the most unlikely circumstances, in that first garden, and what they make together over a lifetime. It is a portrait of a love that both survives and prevails throughout the cycles of life.

The Charlevoix Armchair Theatre production of "Adam and Eve Diaries" is directed by Ruth Willis, a professional theater artist who has directed more than 110 major productions, not including her theater workshops and theater teaching expertise.

Hugh Hansen, playing Adam, possesses a well-rounded background in music, dance, and theater. Hansen performed Mortimer in "The Fantasticks" while living in Phoenix. His acting roles with the Charlevoix Armchair Theatre include the Anton Chekhov lead in Neil Simon's "The Good Doctor," the father in "Charles Ives, Take Me Home," first voice in "Dylan Thomas's 'Under Milkwood.'" He has also directed the Armchair Theatre's production of Elien Bryon's "Graceland" last summer.

Desiree Kaiser, playing Eve, has been continuously involved in theater since high school theater productions. Kaiser's performances with the Charlevoix Armchair Theatre include playing Bev in Ellen Bryon's play "Graceland;" the daughter and basketball coach in "Charles Ives, Take Me Home;" Second Voice in "Under Milkwood;" and performances of multiple roles in Neil Simon's "The Good Doctor." Kaiser also directed "The Hunter," and "The Importance of Being Earnest" at the Charlevoix Montessori Academy for the Arts, where she is a faculty member.

Additional participants in "The Diaries of Adam and Eve" are: Trent Kutsche, stage manager and director's assistant; David Robinson, set construction; Nancy Kauleus, properties manager; Nancy Hansen, opening night reception chair.

The Charlevoix Circle of the Arts appreciates a $5 donation at each of the performances.

Chicken salad and art is yearly tradition

CHARLEVOIX — Christ Episcopal Church women are preparing for their 58th Art Fair Chicken Salad Luncheon. Their luncheon is a long-standing Charlevoix tradition involving generations of women working together on this fund raising project. Lunch will be served 11:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 13, at the church one block up from the Waterfront Art Fair this year.

Lunch will be served either outside along the sidewalk on the side of the church or in the Parish Hall in air-conditioned comfort. Participants may leisurely feast on chicken salad, made from a traditional church recipe, fruit, muffins, cookies and iced tea as they examine their art purchases. Artists who are showing their wares can take a break at the church or have take-out chicken salad delivered

Summer project fights reading regression

EAST JORDAN — In June, East Jordan Public Schools received a grant from Char-Em United Way to provide books to kids. Hoping to prevent their students from having their reading skills regress over the long summer break from school, a group of volunteers set to work to ensure the kids had access to books all summer long.

Before leaving for summer break, kids sat down with Scholastic Reading Club flyers to select the books that they would receive during the summer. Volunteers from East Jordan's Title I Reading program helped the kids select good fit books — meaning that the reading level of the book is a perfect fit with the child's current level of reading ability.

The books were then ordered from Scholastic, sorted and bagged up, ready for delivery to East Jordan's young readers.

Next, volunteers Kathy Keyser, Al Joseph and Tina McDuffie quartered East

Jordan into four delivery areas. A box of books was filled for each delivery area. Finally, volunteers from East Jordan Rotary and East Jordan Elementary spent a summer morning delivering the books to a bunch of excited and grateful kids.

2 area bats found infected with rabies

Two bats were confirmed to have been infected with rabies in Northern Michigan this week, prompting public health officials to remind residents and visitors to reduce their exposure to rabies. The infected bats were in Alpena County and Antrim County.

Rabies vaccine prevents rabies from developing in people who have been exposed to an infected animal. Once rabies symptoms begin, there is no treatment and it is nearly always fatal. Treatment for rabies consists of four anti-rabies shots over 14 days.

Exposure to rabies is not an emergency, but decisions must not be delayed. According to Joshua Meyerson, MD, medical director for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, if persons are bitten or clawed by an animal, they should wash the area thoroughly and contact their health care provider immediately to see if treatment is needed. Next, call the local health department office to determine the need for rabies vaccination.

"Before we recommend rabies vaccine, we'll review the type of your exposure, the animal you were exposed to, as well as laboratory and surveillance information for the area where the exposure occurred," he said.

Raccoons, skunks, and bats are most often tested for rabies, and bats are responsible for most rabies exposure. Squirrels do not cause rabies among humans. Bites from squirrels, chipmunks, mice and other small mammals are usually not considered a risk of rabies.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention defines an exposure to rabies as an animal bite penetrating skin, contact with an animal's saliva or nervous system tissue, or contamination of open wounds, scrapes, and mucous membranes such as mouth or eyes.

"Bites and scratches from small animals like bats can be difficult to detect," Meyerson said. "If there is a bat in a room with an unattended child, or someone who's been sleeping or intoxicated, it's sometimes hard for them to tell if they've been bitten or not. Make every effort to capture the bat in a container and call us to have it tested. If we can test it, we can determine if treatment is warranted. Without the bat, we have to assume it had rabies, and treatment is crucial to avoid developing the disease. Only one person is on record of surviving rabies."

The best way to prevent rabies is to avoid contact with potentially infected animals. Parents should advise children not to pet or touch wild animals. Never approach or handle any animal that looks or acts ill, or behaves strangely. In addition, vaccinate your pets against rabies.

The Center for Disease Control recommends vaccinating all pet dogs, cats, ferrets and other animals that have frequent contact with humans and to consider vaccinating horses and other livestock to avoid exposure to animals infected with rabies.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality healthcare, address health problems of vulnerable populations, and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

Farmers Market profile:

Crêperie food stand magic for crepe lovers

Gildas Berrou, of Pea & Compagnie, adds cheese to a ham, egg and cheese crepe he is preparing for a waiting customer at the Charlevoix Farmers Market on Thursday.

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

As you stroll the farmers market each week, one of the first noticeable enticement to the senses is the aroma...coming from a simple booth where people seem to be gathering in line. The lines can be long and the weather can be warm, windy or rainy, but that doesn't keep fans of crepes away from the Pea & Compagnie Crêperie food stand at the Charlevoix and Boyne City Farmers Market.

Outfitted with two cylindrical grills, crepe batter and a plethora of delectable toppings, savory to sweet, that catches your eye. You will undoubtedly have to wait while the pouring,

FYI

The bakery, located at 110 Lake St., in Boyne City is open 7 a.m.-2 p.m. daily and 8 a.m.-2 p.m. on the weekends.

spreading, topping and flipping takes place, but it's well worth the wait.

"I make about 150 crepes each market," said Gildas Berrou, of Pea & Compagnie. "There isn't much I can do about the line except make crepes until the people are fed."

Berrou started baking at age 15 and is a "baker by trade," the authenticity of his skills can be tested on your palate on your next visit to the market.

Berrou who harkens from the French province of Brittany has been in the Charlevoix area for the past four years, where he and his wife, Tara, live on a small farm. Tara raises herbs and other items on their micro farm for her husband's authentic French crepes.

The couple keeps chickens for the eggs used in the crepes and other baked goods and they make their own jams. As of last March, Berrou has opened a bakery in Boyne City to feature his crepes and baked goods, always in high demand on the Boyne and Charlevoix farmers markets.

"I can hardly keep up with the demand," Berrou said.

"I get up at 2 a.m. to prepare fresh pastry each day and after the bakery and market hours, I go home and crash," he said.

B Nuts Trail Mix ... 'Life is short. B-Nuts'

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

Ben McMurray knows what it means to need a nutritious snack. In 2009, McMurray was training for the Ironman Triathlon in Madison, Wisconsin.

"I was eating my mom out of house and home and needed more energy for my running...the trail mix in the store wasn't working for me, so I decided to make my own," he said.

Last year, McMurray ran the Ironman Muskoka in Ontario, Canada, and he is convinced that good nutrition is essential in athletics as well as everyday life.

McMurray uses only natural ingredients in his product. There are no preservatives, sulfates, partially hydrogenated oils or high fructose corn syrup in his trail mix; it is made to be both delicious and most importantly, nutritious.

He uses Michigan sourced cherries, blueberries, cranberries and maple syrup.

His business in nuts is a part-time enterprise; McMurray also works at Camp Daggett in the Adventure Center when he isn't selling his trail mix at the farmers' markets.

He lives with his wife Brittany, a Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital x-ray technician, in Petoskey where McMurray has started Hill Valley Farm, raising pigs, laying chickens and vegetables. He holds a biology degree from Alma College.

"My nuts are good for athletes, of course," he said, "but I sell most for people who just want a good nutritious snack."

Lauren Gerber displays some her products available each week at the Charlevoix and Boyne City Farmers markets.

Farmers Market Profile: Gerber's Homemade Sweets real treats

CHARLEVOIX — Pasties, maple syrup, baked goods, and jams, Lauren Gerber is ready to tell her farmers' market clientele all about her products.

Twelve years ago, she started out by selling her jam and now she is at two farmers' markets, Boyne City and Charlevoix, adding baked goods and syrup. Gerber works from a certified kitchen near her home on Pincherry Road.

Gerber's homemade treats and other products are a family tradition she said.

"I learned from experience," Gerber said. "My mother was a good baker and my two daughters like to cook and bake as well when they aren't working their other jobs."

For more information, call Gerber's Homemade Sweets at (231) 348-3743 or (231) 675-8240.

Of deep religious convictions, Gerber adds an additional "blessing" which she prints on each product for those buying the homemade products.

Her husband, Jerry does the bookwork for the family enterprise, her three adult children do the baking of yeast breads, sweet breads, pasties, cinnamon rolls and doughnuts.

Her son, Daniel, makes maple syrup on their property and also helps M. Chris Leese, Charlevoix Market manager, with the financial side of bringing a market to town.

'He was one of the good guys in Charlevoix.'

Shirley Gibson

"Dave got me involved in local politics," Gibson said. "He was one of the good guys in Charlevoix. Very candid, very open and never beat around the bush. He spoke the truth and wasn't afraid to tell you what he thought about an issue. He spoke about it, as he saw it and kept the best interest of Charlevoix in all that he did."

Novotny was very knowledgeable about Charlevoix. He understood the history and the politics surrounding the issues and was there to help guide Gibson in her early years on city council, she added. "He helped me become a more seasoned elected official," Gibson said. "I will miss him and our talks about Charlevoix. He was a well respected man."

Novotny also loved the annual Venetian Festival and was one of six founding directors of the Venetian Festival Board and served on the board from 1999 through 2010, said friend Dan Barron.

"He had an absolute passion for Charlevoix and everyone in the community," Barron said. "He was one of the people who spearheaded keeping the festival going. Dave did what he did out his heart and was never one for fanfare or recognition."

Barron and Novotny became friends in the 1980s when Barron moved to the area, but the friendship developed a strong bond when Barron took the job as his campaign manager in 1990.

"Dave had this unique talent of being able to look out for everyone in this town," Barron said. "From the younger kids to the senior citizens Dave knew the issues and always had the best interest of this town at heart. It was my pleasure to get to know him. The things he did for this town was never for recognition only for his love of Charlevoix."

Nonprofit workshop focuses on fundraising

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation and the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation are again partnering to provide a workshop for area nonprofit organizations.

All nonprofit organizations serving Charlevoix and Emmet counties are invited to attend "How to Effectively Raise Gifts for your Organization."

The workshop will focus on crafting the right fundraising plan for organizations, sharpening fundraising skills, as well as developing strategies for approaching individual donors. The workshop will be at 10 a.m. on Friday, Sept. 23, at the Charlevoix Public Library.

The lead speaker at the workshop is Carole Pence, president of Pence Consulting, a Michigan based consulting firm. Pence is recognized as a philanthropic specialist, and is considered a national expert in the field of fundraising. She has worked with countless organizations throughout the United States including the Thurgood Marshall College Fund, San Diego Foundation, the W.K. Kellogg Foundation and is an instructor at the Lilly School of Philanthropy at Indiana University.

The cost is $10 per attendee and the deadline for pre-registration is Friday, Sept. 16, 2016. To register and pay on-line, visit www.c3f.org.

A date for a recount will be set once the State of Michigan completes its canvass of the election. If the recount is a tie again, Hoadley remains the winner, but if the count comes back as Jess or Hoadley in the lead the ballots are recounted again to determine a winner, Borths said.

Jess vows to continue the race for Hayes Township trustee if he does not emerge the winner after the recount.

"I still plan on beating Paul by running as a write-in in November,"

Jess said. "I have the support to continue this race, including support from the other trustee candidates who lost."

scholarships as well as help promote art education and programs in the Charlevoix community. McGraw explains that it is a tandem organization that has helped students with scholarships, by bringing performances to the area, and that has even bused students to the Denmos Museum to see art exhibits. This is all possible partially due to the proceeds from the art fair.

This year, the art fair has 112 artists registered to show their work in the park. The show has several new artists this year and even draws artists internationally.

"We have had artists from Europe occasionally; we used to have several from Canada, and we have had artists come from all over the country from coast to coast all for this one day show. I find it amazing the talent that comes to the art fair," McGraw said.

The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair is a fine art show which McGraw says both patrons and artists seem to appreciate. The show will feature art in a wide range of mediums including ceramics, pottery, drawing, glass, mixed media, painting and more. All works are original works and if they are reproductions, the artists must mark it as such.

The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair is always the second Saturday in August and this year it will take place 9 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 13 in East Park in Charlevoix.

lot of it very simply was a money issue."

Hiring Issues
Problems arose when Moore retired and the board didn't hire anyone to replace him.

"I went to the board in March of 2014 I went to both townships saying here is a year's notice for my retirement," Moore said. "My last day was July 2, 2016. They didn't find a replacement and that's all I can say."

The question of why the board didn't find a replacement when given two years notice has left many residents upset. During a community discussion at a recent Beaver Island Emergency Services Authority meeting on Thursday, July 14, many residents expressed these sentiments.

"You started saying, 'Well, we could maybe convince him for another couple days.' He (Moore) filed his notice two years ago," said Sheri Richards. "You've had two years. We've been working hard to attract people to this island. There is no other option. What have you done to find other options? They have traveling doctors, they have traveling nurses. I guarantee you there are traveling paramedics. It's just not right."

When a paramedic is on duty, they're on duty at Beaver Island, they're on duty for 24 hours, said Angela LeFevre-Welke president of Beaver Island Airways. For the longest time they were paid $100 a day for a call cycle. It was later raised to $150, she added.

Budget problems
The current services are paid for by millages from each township, she said. Peaine Township brings in about $70,000 and St. James brings in about $47,000, the remainder is billing for services rendered. Their total budget for this year is about $320,000, she said.

At the moment the island still has advanced life support station, LeFevre-Welke said.

"You can only be considered to have advanced status if you have a full-time, resident paramedic. If you lose the paramedic you lose the status," LeFevre-Welke said. "Advanced life support means paramedics can start IVs, administer medicine or perform anything invasive. Basic life support means a patient can be transported to the hospital."

The island is able to keep advanced status because there are two part-time paramedics connected to the island, LeFevre-Welke said.

"Also, since the first meeting in July the EMS has advertised for paramedics and have had two or three candidates come over and cover several days at a time," she added.

To help cover costs both townships have pledged $8,000-$10,000, she said. Coie said he is also pursuing a line of credit.

"What if the millage fails?" LeFevre-Welke said. "Well, I can't wrap my mind around that."

POW WOW JIINGTAMOK AUGUST 13 & 14

THE HISTORY OF THE ODAWA HOMECOMING POW WOW

By Winnay Wemigwase, LTBB Tribal Citizen

The first "Indian Naming Ceremony," which served to honor those who helped Native people and their causes, was held near what is now the Harbor Master's office in Harbor Springs, MI, in 1934. At these ceremonies, non-Indian individuals were "adopted" into the tribe and given Indian names. These ceremonies continued for eight years with one person adopted each year. No ceremonies were held due to the war from 1942 to 1945. The ceremonies resumed in 1946.

On November 9, 1947, the Michigan Indian Foundation, Inc. was founded. The purpose of this group was to preserve Native culture and to help the local Native community. With the continual increase of spectators at the Indian Naming Ceremonies, the foundation initiated construction on an updated amphitheater in the spring of 1948. This outdoor theater would be known as the Harbor Springs Ottawa Indian Stadium.

The naming ceremonies came to an end approximately 10 years later. These large scale events changed from the Naming Ceremonies to a yearly production of the play "Hiawatha." These pageants were described as very elaborate and involved a lot of local Native families, dedication and hard work. The Hiawatha Pageant was performed in the Ottawa Indian Stadium until the 1960s.

In 1992, the First Annual Odawa Homecoming Pow Wow was held at the Ottawa Stadium in downtown Harbor Springs. It was hosted by the Andrew J. Blackbird Museum, and the committee was chaired by Shirley Naganashe-Oldman. It served to bring our people back to the stadium for singing and dancing and to educate the local community about who we are as contemporary Odawak. The Homecoming Pow Wows were held there yearly through 2001. The pow wow moved from the Ottawa Stadium to the current Pleasantview Road location in 2002. The current location brought the pow wow to tribal property and to the center of our community. It sits adjacent to the LTBB Governmental Center and our Natural Resource Department building, both places being central to the daily business of the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians. As hosts of the Annual Odawa Homecoming Pow Wow, the LTBB community continues its tradition of celebrating who we are through song and dance.

MEN'S TRADITIONAL
DANCERS USE STORYTELLING MOVEMENTS TO ACT OUT THE FEARS OF BRAVERY. THEY IMITATE ANIMALS WITH SIDE-TO-SIDE MOVEMENTS AS PART OF THEIR DANCE. A STORYLINE DEVELOPS AS EACH DANCER CHALLENGES THE ENEMY OR REPRESENTS AN ANIMAL.

MEN'S GRASS DANCE
IN THE OLD DAYS, IT WAS THE JOB OF THE GRASS DANCERS TO FLATTEN THE GRASS IN THE ARENA BEFORE A POW WOW. THE NAME "GRASS" DOES NOT COME FROM THE STOMPING OF GRASS, BUT IT COMES FROM THE OLD HABIT OF TYING STRIPS OF SWEET GRASS TO THE DANCER'S SELTS, PRODUCING A SWAYING EFFECT.

MEN'S FANCY DANCE
THE MALE FANCY DANCE IS BASED ON THE TRADITIONAL WARRIOR SOCIETY DANCES. IT HAS EVOLVED INTO A COMPETITIVE DANCE FOR MODERN WARRIORS. DANCERS EXPRESS THEMSELVES BY INTRICATE FOOTWORK, SPINS AND COLORFUL REGALIA.

FEMALE TRADITIONAL
DANCERS KEEP THEIR FEET CLOSE TO MOTHER EARTH. THEIR REGALIA CONSISTS OF BUCKSKIN OR CLOTH DRESSES WITH INTRICATE BEADWORK. THE WOMEN CARRY A SHAWL ON THEIR ARMS AND MOVE CLOCKWISE AROUND THE DRUM OR DANCE ARENA. THIS IS THE OLDEST STYLE OF DANCE FOR WOMEN.

WOMEN'S JINGLE
DRESS IS CONSIDERED A MEDICINE DRESS. DANCERS WEAR 365 SMALL METAL CONES ON THEIR DRESS TO REPRESENT A PRAYER FOR EACH DAY. THIS DANCE STYLE ORIGINATES FROM THE OJIBWAY WHERE A YOUNG GIRL DREAMT OF THIS DRESS TO HELP HER SICK PEOPLE.

WOMEN'S FANCY
SHAWL IS ALSO KNOWN AS THE BUTTERFLY DANCE. WHEN HER MATE IS KILLED IN BATTLE, THE FEMALE BUTTERFLY MOURNS & GOES INTO A COCOON SYMBOLIZED BY THE SHAWL. SHE THEN EMERGES FROM HER COCOON AND SPREADS JOY THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

Rayders hope offseason work leads to playoff run in 2016

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

CHARLEVOIX — A promising 2015 campaign ended in heartbreak for the Charlevoix football team, as a 22-20 loss to Harbor Springs in the season finale dropped them to 5-4 and out of the playoff picture.

As the field goal that spelled the end for the Rayders split the uprights, juniors Jared McLean and Brad Klinger watched helplessly from the sideline.

Two of Charlevoix's most dangerous two-way weapons, McLean and Klinger were both out of the game with injuries and unable to impact the final minutes of the decisive game against the Rams.

The painful memory of that loss to Harbor Springs, and other tough defeats, has given the Rayders ample motivation this offseason, especially in the case of McLean and Klinger.

"The losses to Boyne City, Harbor Springs, Frankfort, Grayling, the plays where we lost those games and the mistakes we made that cost us, those are on all our minds every day," McLean said. "We know how close we were in a lot of those games, and that's driving us to be better and not make those same mistakes again."

Charlevoix's first step toward a playoff return is to find a way to be healthier than it was last year.

Bay View Country Club Member and Charlevoix native Maureen Whitehead became the first golfer to win three titles at the annual Michigan Senior Women's Amateur Tournament.

Charlevoix's Whitehead becomes first three-time Senior Amateur champ

SAGINAW — The Michigan Women's Senior Amateur, in just its 13th year of tournaments, is still relatively new to the state's tournament field.

A Championship match presented by the Golf Association of Michigan only since 2002 — with a two-year hiatus — it's just a baby when compared to the 102 year history of the Michigan Women's Amateur.

But after just 13 Women's Senior Amateur tournaments, it's become clear there's a yearly favorite opposing golfers will be aiming for, and she calls Northern Michigan home.

Maureen Whitehead of Charlevoix, and a member of Petoskey's Bay View Country Club, recently became the first Michigan Senior Amateur three-time champion, as she recently added the 2016 Championship at the Saginaw Country Club to her resume.

"It means a lot just to win it," said Whitehead of winning one tournament, let alone her third. "It all came together at the right time."

Joy to complete 100 holes of golf-in-a-day fundraiser for 10th straight year

CHARLEVOIX — What started as a novel idea for a fundraiser has become one of Charlevoix's most unique and memorable golfing traditions.

For the 10th straight year, Belvedere head pro Dennis "Marty" Joy will undertake his annual quest to play 100 holes of golf in a single day, all to raise money for the Charlevoix County Junior Golf program's continued success.

Wearing his distinctive 1920s-era clothing and playing with his trademark hickory-shafted clubs, Joy plans to start his marathon round at 6:30 a.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 17 at the Belvedere Golf Club, and aiming to finish the feat around 4 p.m.

"I only hope it isn't too hot; if it is that'll probably be the biggest challenge," Joy said in a press release. "I will be motivated by the thought that the game I love will continue to be made available to young people in the Charlevoix area."

To bring in money for the CCJGA, Joy is asking supporters to pledge money for each hole he completes during his 100 hole odyssey, with all funds raised going directly to the Junior Golf Association's operating funds.

Whitehead, who had previously earned back-to-back wins in the Michigan Senior Championship in 2002 and 2003, also earned Senior Amateur wins in both 2005 and 2014.

Despite the success in previous years, Whitehead went into the 2016 event with tamed expectations against the field of 31 Michigan golfers.

"I went in there with no expectations," she said. "I just said, 'alright, just play the golf course and do what you can.' And that's what happened."

"I played pretty good on the second day. The first day I didn't play very good, but I won that and I played a lot better the next day."

Set up as a match play event with seeds based on course handicap, Whitehead opened her championship flight as the No. 2 seed.

Facing Ann Lauer of Auburn Hills to begin championship play, Whitehead came out with a 3&2 win over Lauer.

Donna Benford of Linden, the No. 3 seed, then became Whitehead's next matchup, who she defeated with a strong round of 5&4 in the semifinals.

Barbara Schmid of Grand Rapids pulled a 4&2 upset over No. 1 seed Julie Massa of Holt in the semifinals, making it a Schmid-Whitehead final for the championship.

In the final, Whitehead grew a 6-up lead after the first eight holes, but it would be a lead that would be tough to maintain.

"The girl I was playing with is a real good friend of mine and we tied a couple of holes, then made some bogeys and she made pars," said Whitehead. "She made pars the two times that I made brides, then I proceeded to lose No. 9, 10 and 11, so I went from 6-up to 3-up."

Whitehead's big lead had shrunk through the middle holes of the course, but she wasn't going to let the same happen late.

An opportunity to close out the match came for Whitehead with two holes left to play, but it would be one she wouldn't be able to capitalize on.

"I missed a three footer, lipped it out," said Whitehead. Missed a three foot putt, so I should have won it on No. 16."

A bogey on No. 17 for Whitehead and a par for Schmid kept thing going in an even match heading to No. 18, where Whitehead sealed the win with a par.

Also a member of the Petoskey Bay View Women's 18 Hole group, which hosts Tuesday morning tournaments, Whitehead also has a few wins at Bay View to add to her list of summer accomplishments.

Next summer, though, when the 14th Michigan Women's Senior Amateur rolls around, and competitors look over the field and see Whitehead's name among them, one would believe they'll expect to be chasing the three-time champ once again.

Whitehead on the other hand, will head in with the same expectations as always as she tries for the repeat and a fourth overall.

"I never expect it, but it's always fun when it happens," she added with a laugh.

McLean missed three games with a knee injury after starting strong in his first six outings. Klinger missed all but the first play of the season finale and several other players had to sit out multiple games due to injuries.

With a small roster again this season, Charlevoix can't afford to have too many players miss time, and are taking every step they can to avoid a repeat of 2015.

That starts in the weight room, where the Rayders showed a level of intensity and commitment that head coach Ron Bindi said he hasn't seen in his four-year tenure with Charlevoix.

"The guys who were injured last season, they came back this offseason and really put in the time and effort to get stronger in the weight room, and that attitude has spread to our entire team," Bindi said. "We've got a lineman, Jake Mitchell, who's only missed one day this offseason and that was when he had a bad hand injury."

"Otherwise, he was a rock in the weight room and that attitude was pretty consistent across our guys."

While weight training won't prevent every injury, stronger cores should help Charlevoix's players be more durable and hold up better to the daily grind of the season, and it also comes with other added benefits.

"The intensity level in practice is just night and day," Klinger said. "Guys have so much more energy to work with (thanks to offseason weightlifting) and that's allowing us to push the tempo and get more done every day."

Klinger is making the transition from the team's top wide receiver threat to the quarterback position in 2016, replacing Forrest Noirot. It's a position Klinger is familiar with after starting on the JV two years ago, and he's hoping for a smooth transition.

"The biggest thing is just making sure I'm stepping up and being the leader I need to be," Klinger said. "That means getting all the plays down and making sure everyone is in the right place on the field to run them successfully."

Stepping up is a theme throughout the lineup, as Charlevoix must replace running back Ben Boss but has McLean and Malcom Williams to turn to, and Oliver DeYoung and Cam Alden should fill in for Klinger, Austin Putman and Erik Oshaben as receiving targets.

On the line, Mitchell, Joe McCraney, Ray Cunningham and Caleb Hart give the Rayders an experienced core up front on both sides of the ball.

While line play should be strong on defense for Charlevoix, the true core is the Rayders' secondary, where Klinger, McLean and Cam Alden bring three years of experience and standout play at the position and DeYoung is a strong fourth starter.

"We've been looking to this group of guys for a while as a group with the talent to break through and have a big season," Bindi said. "It didn't happen last year, because of injuries and other factors, but when I see the way this group has bought in this offseason, I'm really encouraged."

"Our schedule is tough, and a lot depends on whether or not we stay healthy, but I think these guys have a lot of potential."

Summer concert series fun for everyone

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — A combination of good weather and popular local talent is helping make this year's Charlevoix Summer Concerts at East Park one of the most successful, according to organizers.

The concerts, which will finish up at the end of August with performances by Ali Reyerson on Aug. 18, and The Jon Archambault Band on Aug. 25, are put on through a partnership between the Charlevoix Main Street Program, Northern Michigan Review, FOX Charlevoix, and Bickersteth Brown & Associates Wealth Advisors.

"Honestly, it's been really well received by the community," said Maureen Owens, Charlevoix Main Street volunteer. "It's been a great turnout this summer. We're really glad to see the community come out and enjoy the live music."

This year, the Main Street Program also has sought out local businesses to sponsor a concert night to give Charlevoix businesses the chance to speak to the crowds about what they are doing in Charlevoix.

"This has made each concert more fun with different giveaways and getting the sponsors involved with the concert night," Owens said. "I just want to thank all of our volunteers and sponsors this year for making this a great concert season."

Food Truck pilot ends Uncertainty remains over future policy

ALEXANDRA RICHARDS
(231) 439-9362 arichards@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Earlier this year, the Charlevoix City Council passed a pilot policy governing food trucks in the city. As summer draws to a close the pilot program is coming to an end and it is unclear whether or not it will be renewed. The policy established permitted boundaries, hours of operations and uses for food trucks throughout the city.

Heydlauff

At Charlevoix's annual Venetian Festival there were plenty of food trucks to be seen however on a day-to-day basis there have been less food trucks set up in the city.

"The Venetian Festival, along with other festivals and special events in Charlevoix, were exempt from the Pilot Food Truck Policy approved by city council," said Mark L. Heydlauff, Charlevoix City Manager.

"These festivals and events are given wide latitude in how they operate and use spaces in the park. Food trucks sometimes are revenue sources for these events as well."

Outside the realms of the festival there are far fewer companies taking advantage of these policies.

"To date, we have received one applica-

$1.2M FAA grant City to add $70,000 for airport runway project

CHARLEVOIX — The Federal Aviation Administration awarded a $1.2 million grant for Charlevoix Municipal Airport Runway 9-27 friction improvement scheduled this fall. The overall project will rehabilitate runways and install a runway guidance system at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport, which includes grooving and overlay along with updated electrical work, said David Joy, "Travelers to and from Northern Michigan rely on the Charlevoix Municipal Airport for safe and dependable transportation," said Sen. Gary Peters. "This funding will help the airport improve overall safety and operations and spur greater economic activity in the region."

Party of life

On Aug. 12, more than 60 people came together for the annual cancer club gathering. The purpose of the cancer club is to end the loneliness and fear that the diagnosis creates by bringing people together who have been just diagnosed with cancer, are in treatment or are survivors to discuss and share with each other their own experiences with the disease. "We share our experiences to aid other people who are just beginning their fight with cancer," said Dave Berry, club founder. "We still have the same hopes and dreams as everyone else, but cancer makes you a little more aware of every day and how precious it is. This is our party of life and this gives us a chance to get together and talk and share our stories."

St. Marys Cement celebrates employee milestone

INGLEBY DEWITT
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — St. Marys Cement plant in Charlevoix has seen many changes over the past 50 years and employee, Mike Borths, has been there every step of way. Borths, who began with St. Marys in June of 1966 as a production worker, is celebrating his 50th anniversary with the company this year.

Now serving as a quarry face operator, Borths said it's seeing the company and its products change over time and the people he's encountered over the years that mean the most to him.

"There has been so much change in this industry," Borths said. "When we started it was the wet process. Now we make dry cement, for quality and strength."

St. Marys Cement, a major producer of cementitious materials in the Great Lakes Region, is known for its workability, water retention, bond strength and durability. It's this type of quality and growth in the industry that Borths has seen during his time with the company.

Quarry face operator Mike Borths began work with St. Marys Cement in June of 1966 as a production worker. Borths is celebrating his 50th anniversary with the company this year.

Borths also contributes these factors to his longevity with the company, as well as the caliber of people he's worked with over the years.

"Being at St. Marys provided me a good education in the process of making cement and working with the fellows was great, I wouldn't have changed that for anything," Borths said.

While Borths felt that working in the control room as an operator was his favorite job held, he notes he left it because he could see so many changes coming along and knew it was time to move on in other areas of the plant where he could work with others and learn different aspects of the job. Now as quarry face operator, he not only has learned a new aspect of the job he's also been able to form new relationships with the group he's working with now for the past eight years.

It's this type of dedication that Borths feels is important when working within any job and guides the advice he would give today's working generation.

"Carry on, and keep going—do your job to the best of your ability. Remember, you get out of it what you put into it," Borths said.

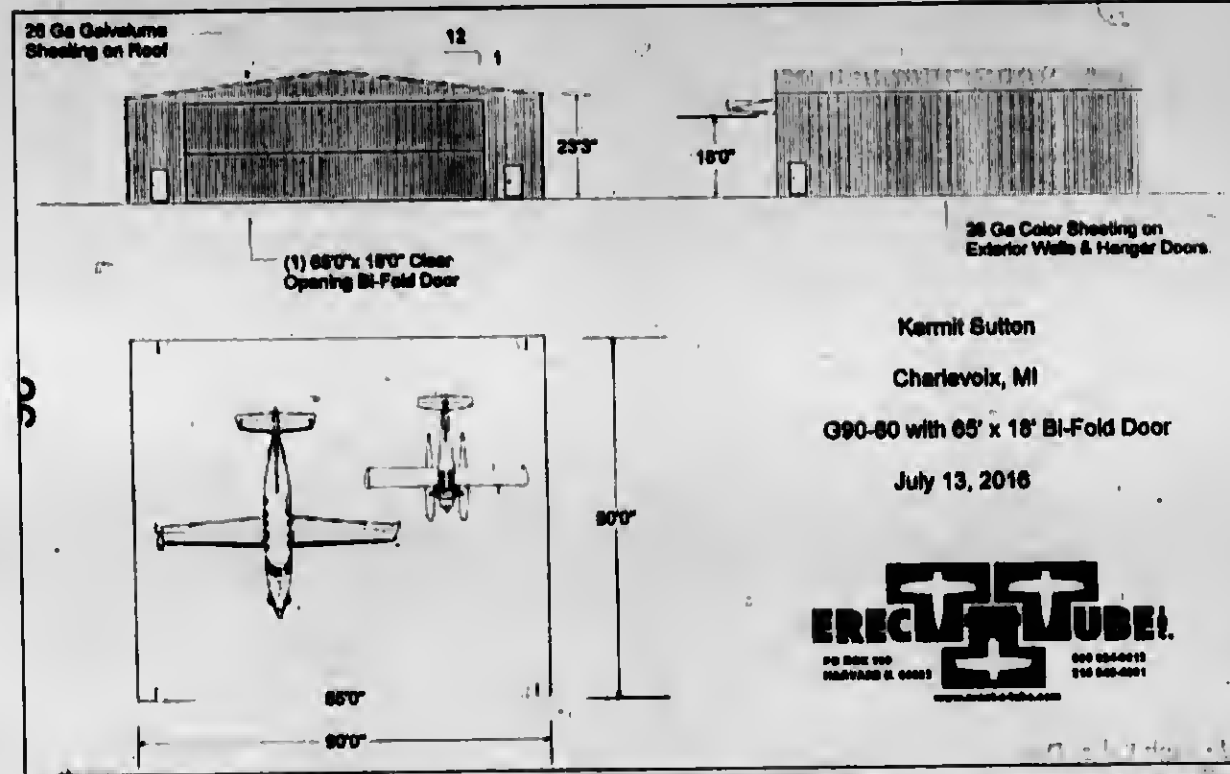

While Borths said he will continue to work until he finally settles down to retire, the changes he's seen in the industry, as well as the faces he's worked with each day, will no doubt contribute to the success of the plant.

Randy Pryor, operations manager at St. Marys, attributes Borths' longevity to his dedication and strong work ethic.

"Working in a cement plant is tough work. Doing it for 50 years as Mike has is remarkable," Pryor said. "Mike has spent some time doing most jobs here in the plant and has a tremendous amount of knowledge and experience. It is a pleasure to work with employees with the enthusiasm and dedication for their work like Mike."

St. Marys Cement is one of the oldest cement companies in North America and is a major employer in the Charlevoix area.

Charlevoix Municipal Airport could see a new private hangar constructed after city council gives approval pending review of airport advisory committee.

Private hangar construction proposed for Charlevoix airport

LOUISE ALLIN
(231) 547-4558
allin@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Municipal Airport could see a new private hangar constructed once city officials give final approval.

Kermit Sutton is requesting permission to construct a 90-by-80-foot aircraft hangar at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport in the vicinity of the current mid-field hangars, a move that is in alignment with the Airport Master Plan regarding airport hangars.

The city currently charges 30 cents per square foot/year as the building land lease rate.

"Construction of hangars will increase revenue at the city airport," said Liz Meyer, airport manager.

The proposed structure was submitted to the Federal Aviation Administration for an airspace study approximately nine months ago and meets the requirements and guidelines for the FAA.

Airport consultant RS&H also has reviewed the proposed project and did not object to the current plan, Meyer said.

An airport hangar building company, Erect-A-Tube, will construct the hangar. The expenses that relate to the building of the hangar, which include site work, utilities, paving, and construction of the proposed hangar will be at Sutton's expense. Sutton also will obtain all zoning and building permits and is required to provide "city proof of liability insurance and workers compensation insurance from the builder."

City council also approved spending $23,600 to Prein & Neuhof to design and provide the specifications for what the city will require in a replacement standby generator at the water treatment plant.

The Charlevoix Water Treatment Plant's standby generator maintains pumping and treatment capacity at the plant in the case of a power failure. The current generator is a surplus unit dating to World War II.

In recent years, it has been prone to frequent malfunction and must be manually powered-on when power is lost, said city manager Mark Heydlauff.

"The replacement of the generator was identified during a plant reliability study in 2105," Heydlauff said.

"Once we know what we need we will seek bids for a replacement standby generator."

Peaine Township approves millage language for November ballot

JORDAN SPENCE
(231) 439-9397
jspence@petoskeynews.com

Voters on Beaver Island will decide whether to implement a new emergency medical services millage on the November ballot.

At its meeting Wednesday, Aug. 10, the Peaine Township Board of Trustees approved ballot language for the millage, which some officials argue is needed to provide adequate emergency services to island residents.

Peaine Township board members joined their counterparts in St. James Township in placing a millage on the November ballot amid concerns about lapses in service.

The Peaine Township board voted 3-2 in favor of placing a request for a three-mill property tax assessment that will be dedicated to EMS operations.

Officials said that will replace the one mill that is taken from the general fund to cover EMS costs, making the net increase for taxpayers two mills.

St. James Township officials approved millage language for two mills to be put on the November ballot at their regular meeting a few weeks ago.

The two dissenting votes for Peaine Township were township clerk Colleen Martin and treasurer Larry Kubie.

The current services are paid for by millages from each township.

Peaine Township brings in about $70,000 and St. James brings in about $47,000, the remainder is billing for services rendered.

The service's total budget for this year is about $320,000.

The millages will help pay for a full-time paramedic on the island. Joe Moore, the former paramedic, retired in July and the EMS authority has been in search of someone to replace him.

LETTERS to the editor

My hand is raised

Editor:
I'd like to ask the gentle reader to raise their hand if they are sick and tired of politics by now. Red or white? C'mon, that was a corrupt "vote" back then. Wait, there was no actual vote back then. How come, if there is still a controversy, and apparently there is one still, how come we cannot compromise? White lighthouse lake side and red lighthouse land side? I think there should have been a committee to study the committee and an actual vote taken, if you know what I mean.

Now, raise your hand if you are sick and tired of all the political signs out now? Anyone else in favor of only allowing political signs on private, not city, property 30 days before the actual election? I prefer only seven days before, but I can compromise... when can we end this sign pollution, Charlevoix the Beautiful?

But wait, there's more: raise your hand if you are wondering what happened to our beautiful petunias that visitors remember us by? We are a tourist town, shouldn't we look like one? Why, Charlevoix the Beautiful, do our streets look so ugly? The weeds? Keep your hand up if you want clean, weed free streets and pretty petunias.

If you raised your hand, and you want to see more for Charlevoix, let your elected officials know. Call your planner about a sign ordinance. Get involved. Come to meetings. If you can't vote, you still have a voice that will be heard and maybe that hand you raised, can help pull weeds.

My hand is raised.

Summer in the north

This summer has been very full so far, and it's not over yet.

We have been exploring the area, attending local events, visiting with friends and family and enjoying our own backyard.

So, what fun things have we been doing in this beautiful piece of Michigan? Dear neighbors, I'll tell you.

We discovered the fountain of youth splash pad in downtown Charlevoix, and have been there several times this summer. It is such a clean and welcoming area, right next to the marina and the peaceful trout ponds in the park. My kids absolutely love going, and it is a great place for all three of them to splash around and keep cool.

Fisherman's Island Park also has become a family favorite. The beach is narrow but absolutely picturesque, with panoramic views of Lake Michigan and fantastic rock hunting, especially for Petoskey stones. The campsites offer lakeside views as well, and if I camped, this would be a definite go-to park.

The live music scene is really excellent in this area as well. I took my kids to a concert in the park in Petoskey — lovely park with huge mature trees offering cool shade to enjoy the performers in the gazebo. We also made it down to Boyne City for their Friday night music in the streets, and that was also a wonderful, family-friendly event. They had free horse-drawn wagon rides around downtown, and many different live musicians and bands performing all over. We loved walking around as the sun was setting over Lake Charlevoix, going from folk, to rock, to new age music all within a block.

It would be easy to over-do the summer events, so we balance the outings with the serenity of our own backyard. We have had several turtles, both snapping and painted, lay eggs in our backyard, which we were able to watch the whole incredible process. My oldest son has caught (and released) some very nice bass right from our dock.

The bald eagles that nest on our lake have flown circles over our backyard, and the waterfowl swoop and dive into the water daily as they catch their meals. A baby fawn was living for a short time in the tall grasses in the back of our yard before the mom moved her. We also took part in rescuing and re-locating a large number of baby toads after a massive hatching all around our house.

This is life in Charlevoix. You can attend a local event practically every day/night during the summer months, or enjoy peaceful serenity at home. We choose to do a little bit of both, and look forward to both attending new events and continuing to swing in our hammock, listen to the loons, and watch the fireflies frolic.

What adventures have you been on this summer, dear neighbors? Share your stories/pictures with me on Facebook and Instagram.

Nature's tourist in Northern Michigan

I was raised in the Pacific Northwest by a father (who taught me Native ways) and I learned the ways of nature through forest immersion. For example, I learned lessons from teachers like bears, mountain goats, and the wind. I learned the importance of nature and that the lessons of the four seasons parallel man's soul. Nature is a great teacher and Charlevoix the Beautiful has an abundance of nature to observe to learn from.

I am currently an on-line Early Childhood student at Bay Mills Community College located in Brimley. I am a naturalist who understands that we live in a world of technology and I believe that many people do not have the opportunity to observe and study nature through the seasons. It is the intent of my column to present events of nature's happenings in Charlevoix so that people can view them on a timely basis. I prefer to call these events of nature "holidays." For example, I would like families to come to Charlevoix to celebrate the holiday of the arrival of the piping plover in the spring or come when the salmon are spawning. Come to Charlevoix and celebrate nature.

In Michigan we are blessed by tourists, but do we think of the area creatures as being a tourist? Well, even some of nature's creatures are short term residents. We have a beach-loving tourist called the lovable piping plover. The plover's stay is for three months and they depart about the middle of August. The piping plover can be found on the beaches of Fisherman's Island State Park in Charlevoix. It is a nesting site for the bird and its best to view these birds by giving them space. So bring your binoculars, and keep your dog away.

We have another short term visitor in Charlevoix who is a threatened species and I was elated when a monarch butterfly fluttered by me and landed on my echinacea plant this week. These beautiful creatures are limited in number, because of their loss of habitat, so please do not destroy milkweed plants in your garden or neighborhood.

It would be quite helpful if everyone could collect seeds from pods or buy seeds from the Internet and sow them anywhere that you can. If you wish to see an old-old milkweed patch visit Mount McSauba and travel down the back side of the ski hill and you can locate this patch of milkweed is at the bottom of the hill on the left side.

This entire area is beautiful and full of nature's wonders; and no matter the season let's get outdoors in Charlevoix.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

In this photo members of the Chicago Club put on a play about the great fire of 1871. The first of Charlevoix's summer resorts, the Charlevoix Summer Resort Association, put down roots in 1878, known later as the Belvedere Club. The second one followed two years later, when the Chicago Summer Resort Company started buying up land on the northeast side of Round Lake from pioneer settler John Dixon. Both resort associations were religiously based, the former with Baptist affiliation from Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, the second out of the First Congregational Church of Chicago.

The resorts have grown into enormously influential and beneficial adjuncts of the community during the past 130-plus years. Even though members are here only a few weeks out of the year, they have left their mark on Charlevoix in the support they have given to scores of local organizations and people, and the employment they have provided. Names, some famous or later to be famous, connected to or associated with the resorts are Adlai Stevenson, actress Constance Bennett, Barry Goldwater, Secretary of State Dean Acheson, author Booth Tarkington, Edgar Rice Burroughs and Eliot Ness. Business and industry are represented by Domino Sugar, Quaker Oats, Steelcase Furniture, and Oldsmobile.

Charlevoix County Community Foundation grant award:

Chamber, visitors bureau receive funding for technology

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and Charlevoix Convention & Visitors Bureau are recent recipients of grant funding that totals $1,500 from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. These funds will support two non-profit organizations to make necessary technology upgrades to their shared office space.

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and Charlevoix Convention & Visitors Bureau are challenged annually with upgrading technology. The two organizations share office space and equipment to create efficiencies in delivery of services and opportunities for collaboration. General fund monies are normally prioritized for business education, marketing and advertising to enhance the community, with rare opportunities for investing in office technology.

"The funding for these purchases provided much needed seed money for the advancement of our office," said Alison Hubbard, president of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. "The more progressive we are with our technology, the better we can serve the community and area visitors."

This partial grant has allowed the organizations to purchase a new phone system, upgrade wifi capability, and purchase a computer for an additional Charlevoix Convention & Visitors Bureau staff member.

"Without the funding from the community foundation, we would have had to put off the process of upgrading technologies again," said Amanda Wilkin, Charlevoix Convention & Visitors Bureau executive director.

The two organizations applied for a grant with assistance from the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance.

"The community foundation is happy to partner with the Charlevoix Chamber of Jean Musilek Char-Em United Way volunteer of the month

Jean Musilek

If you are at an event in Charlevoix, Jean Musilek is most likely there.

Musilek helps out with many, if not most, events in town. She is a person who has really good time management and organization skills, and needs them to keep up with all of things she is involved with, including her own life and family.

For all of these reasons, Jean Musilek is Char-Em United Way's volunteer of the month for August.

In order to spend as much time with her kids as possible Musilek decided she didn't want to work a 9-5 job, but instead has variety of side jobs.

She is a personal trainer at the Charlevoix Country Club, teaches water fitness at the Charlevoix Pool, a real estate agent, event planner from May to October, condo developer, and works for a consultant.

"My children come first" Musilek said, who loves to be there for them.

This is one of the reasons she is heavily involved with volunteering at her daughters' school. Teachers know she is always available to help out where needed.

For the last four years she has volunteered as one of Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce's Ambassadors. Last November she was asked to step up to the chamber's board of directors. She is now serving on that board along with the marketing and promotions committee for Main Street in Charlevoix. Musilek is part of the Lion's club and with that group she helps with blood drives and the white cane event also. She enjoys being at church, so she volunteers there whenever she can as well.

Musilek grew up in Brighton, but would spend every summer in Northern Michigan growing up. She holds a bachelor's degree in business and attended the Ross Business School at the University of Michigan. She now lives in Charlevoix with her two children. She moved up after her first child was born and has now been a resident for 17 years.

If you feel like it's in your heart to volunteer, there are plenty of opportunities. Char-Em United Way's Volunteer Connections matches volunteers with needs in our community. It is through volunteer efforts that we LIVE UNITED and create welcoming communities. For more information, visit www.charemunitedway.org/volunteer.

Northern Michigan Brass Band:

Old-Fashioned Concert in the Park

CHARLEVOIX — The Northern Michigan Brass Band, under the direction of Ralph Schweigert, will present An Old-Fashioned Concert in the Park at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 23 at Odmark Pavilion in East Park.

The 28 piece, British-style brass ensemble will perform a wide range of music that is perfect for a summer evening. Arrangements of Amazing Grace, 76 Trombones, selections from Porgy and Bess and the stirring National Emblem March are sure to thrill all who come out to listen.

When planning a program, Schweigert said he tries to keep in mind that people listen to music in different ways.

"Some people listen with their heads, others with their hearts and still others with their feet," Schweigert said. "I try to include music that will appeal to all these listening styles on any one program."

Since it was organized in January of 1999, The Northern Michigan Brass Band has presented more than 100 concerts throughout the state. The all-volunteer ensemble has attracted enthusiastic adult brass players from across northern Michigan.

"We draw on such a wide area for our membership that we really don't consider ourselves tied to any one community," said Northern Michigan Brass Band president Dr. Edward R. Bahr. "We belong to all of northern Michigan which is why we perform concerts in so many different venues throughout the area."

Lake Michigan Drownings up amid hot summer

ANIELLE BREEN

(509) 732-1111 | abreen@charlevoixcourier.com

NORTHERN MICHIGAN — With a warmer and drier-than-normal summer, Northern Michigan beaches become the go-to summer antidote. This year Lake Michigan has seen an increase in drowning deaths compared with previous years.

According to data from the Great Lakes Surf Rescue Project, there have been 25 Lake Michigan drownings this year as of Aug. 8 compared to 25 total in 2015.

John Tribelner, the officer in charge at the U.S. Coast Guard Charlevoix station, said anyone recreating on the water should check for advisories prior to entering the lake.

"Yes, it's a hot day, you want to go out to the water, you want to enjoy the beach (in) Northern Michigan, it's absolutely gorgeous this time of year (and) you don't want to be stuck inside, but you need to do a little bit of educating yourself before you head out, and those couple of minutes you take to prepare could save your life and your child's life," Tribelner said.

According to data from the Great Lakes Surf Rescue Project, this year there have been no Lake Michigan drowning deaths on the Michigan shoreline north of Grand Haven.

While most Great Lakes drownings occur in Lake Michigan, the majority are in the highly populated southern end of the lake in the Chicago and northern Indiana areas.

There has been one Great Lakes drowning in Northern Michigan this year on Lake Huron off the coast of Presque Isle County earlier this month.

Kayaks and paddleboards

Tribelner said he has seen a recent spike in paddleboard users and kayakers and the Coast Guard treats an abandoned paddleboard or kayak like a missing person.

Tribelner recommends paddleboard or kayak users write their name and contact information on their vessel in case it is found.

"We're having a lot of those blow into the water with the high winds we've been having, and we treat (the situation) as if there (was) somebody on there," Tribelner said. "So, we could spend hours conducting searches for somebody who's not even out there (in the water)."

He said with the contact info, the Coast Guard could reach out to the owner if the vessel is lost or contact family for information in case of an actual missing person search.

Another option Tribelner recommended is a personal locator beacon device that a person can activate in an emergency that sends an alert to the Coast Guard.

"Those are great because you activate that — it goes to satellite to triangulate your position, and the only reason that goes off is if it's an emergency, so we immediately get notified," he said. "A lot of time deaths occur because of the delay (between when) responders (are) being notified that there is something going on."

Tribelner said people are required to have life jackets on board on large lakes like Lake Charlevoix and areas where the Coast Guard patrols.

"I've been doing this for more than 21 years, and, man, there's a lot of kayakers now (and) paddleboarders," he said. "They're all over the place — which is great. It's a great form of exercise, it's a great way to enjoy the water, (but) it's just (we're) trying to get them to do it where they're doing it responsibly."

Male victims

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, males make up 80 percent of drowning victims.

deaths this year in Lake Michigan — one was a woman.

Tribelner said he is not sure why men make up the significant majority of drowning deaths.

"Especially young men, we tend to get this invincibility thing that bad things can't happen to us," Tribelner said. "Well, what happens if you (fall off and) get caught in a current and you're sucked out (from shore) or become exhausted?"

He said hypothermia is another issue recreators should consider — even in 65-degree water.

Tribelner recommended informing friends or family when someone plans to be out on the water.

Alcohol

It is also important to realize the effects of alcohol are magnified in hot weather on the water, Tribelner said.

"Also, people don't realize their levels of tolerance to alcohol changes when you're out in the sun in high temperatures — you're already sweating and dehydrating," he said. "The sun fatigues you, the water and the motion of the water (also) fatigues you — it's not an everyday thing that you spend time on the water — and all that stuff is stress on your body."

The CDC lists alcohol use as involved with up to 70 percent of adolescent and adult drowning deaths with water recreation.

"The main factors that affect drowning risk are lack of swimming ability, lack of barriers to prevent unsupervised water access, lack of close supervision while swimming, location, failure to wear life jackets, alcohol use and seizure disorders," reads the CDC information on drowning prevention.

Drowning may not look 'like drowning'

Tribelner said in the case of rip currents, people should first check for warnings before swimming and if caught, to swim parallel to the shore until the person is out of the current.

"If they are going out to the beach they should check social media and so forth to see if there's any warnings out if the conditions are right to create a rip current," Tribelner said. "You can't fight that rip current. You have to first recognize the fact that you're caught in a rip current, and then not panic and try to signal to shore to somebody that you're caught."

Tribelner said people who are drowning may react differently depending on the situation and individual.

"Some people you don't get much of a signal at all, they kind of lock up," he said. "Other individuals, they'll do the typical waving, screaming, and then there will be others that are going

OBITUARY

Glenn Porterfield

Glenn Porterfield, formerly of Charlevoix, passed away peacefully with his family by his side in Bay City, Michigan on June 23, 2016.

His wife, Romaine, preceded him in death in 2007. Glenn was a member of First Congregational United Church of Christ in Charlevoix and a choir member, who as a tenor, offered his God-given talent to the Lord in praise and worship. Glenn and Romaine loved Charlevoix the beautiful and the many wonderful people they came to know throughout the years. They cherished their special memories of good times at the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, Lake Michigan Beach and their May Street home with family and friends.

Glenn is survived by his children in Bay City:

Robert (Judy) Porterfield; Steve Porterfield; Douglas (Holl) Porterfield; and daughter, Diane (Porterfield) Schumann; five grandchildren; two great-grandchildren. His stepdaughters, Nancy Hauke of Traverse City and Maureen Pobalis of Elk Rapids survive him and stepgrandchildren, Heather (John) Richards of East Jordan and their daughters, Anna and Emma; Michelle (Zachary) Bordeaux-Bottenhorn of Lake Leelanau and their son, Jasper. In addition, a close family friend of Glenn and Romaine's, Pam Beer of Charlevoix, survives him. Glenn will be missed by family, friends, neighbors and pets who knew him as a good man who always enjoyed singing his favorite songs and a friendly conversation.

A memorial service, to celebrate Glenn's life, was held 11 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 13, 2016 at Westminster Presbyterian Church, Bay City, Michigan.

Michigan hits peak rabies season

The Michigan departments of Agriculture and Rural Development, Health and Human Services and Natural Resources urges Michiganders to adopt practices to protect their families, pets and livestock from rabies.

Rabies is a viral disease transmitted by the bite of an infected animal. Once symptoms begin, there is no treatment for rabies.

Rabies is fatal to humans if proper treatment is not received. Preventive treatment is given to people who are exposed to a potentially rabid animal. Treatment is not necessary if an animal tests negative for rabies. Mammals can be infected with rabies and several species of wild animals serve as rabies carriers, including bats and skunks. Bats are the species most frequently found with rabies in Michigan.

"If you discover a bat in your home, carefully confine the bat and get in touch with your local health department to determine if you could have been exposed to rabies," said Dr. Eden Wells, Michigan Department of Health and Human Services chief medical executive. "Save any bat for testing if there is even the slightest question of exposure, especially if the bat was found in a sleeping area."

As of Aug. 8, there have been 21 animals in Michigan confirmed as rabies infected. Four skunks and 17 bats were found in the counties of Alpena, Antrim, Calhoun, Eaton, Genesee, Ingham, Jackson, Kent, Kalamazoo, Missaukee, Newaygo, Oakland, Saginaw and Washtenaw. An up-to-date rabies map can be found at www.michigan.gov/rabies.

"It is never a good idea to handle wild animals," said Dr. Dan O'Brien, acting Department of Natural Resources state wildlife veterinarian. "It's also important to teach children never to touch wild animals, no matter how cute or tame they seem."

"Normally, wild animals have a healthy fear of humans," O'Brien added. "If they aren't acting afraid, it's often because they're sick. If someone has been handling a wild animal or is bitten by a wild animal, that animal may have to be euthanized in order to be tested for rabies."

Anyone bitten by an animal should seek medical care immediately. If possible, collect the animal and consult with local health authorities to determine if rabies testing or an animal confinement period is necessary.

If pet or livestock owners suspect their animals may have had contact with a potentially rabid animal or has been bitten, they need to contact their veterinarian for the appropriate course of action, even if the pet or livestock animal is currently vaccinated against rabies.

"Rabies can be prevented by vaccinating dogs, cats, ferrets, horses and select livestock," said Dr. James Averill, Michigan Department of Agriculture and Rural Development state veterinarian. "It's crucial animal owners work with their veterinarian to ensure their animals are protected from rabies."

Anyone who finds a wild animal suspected of potentially having rabies should contact their local health department and DNR office.

Women Can/Women Do announces online auction

Women Can/Women Do is an annual fundraising luncheon that supports Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan programs and services. This year's event will take place from 11 a.m. - 1:45 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 14, at Bay Harbor Yacht Club-Lange Center.

The event features a luncheon, more than 60 elaborately designed tables and a silent auction with a variety of diverse items. The silent auction is an important fundraising element of the event and features items such as a ride along for two in a city of Petoskey police car, a flower arranging class for eight with William Santos of Monarch Garden and Floral, a five course Italian or French dinner for eight, a dozen Tom's Mom's Cookies each month for a year and many other gift certificates, services and items.

"We've nearly outgrown our space for the silent auction at this event," said Sarah Matye, Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan fund development/grant writer. "The Women Can/Women Do committee decided to move some of the auction items online to start the bidding earlier and provide a way for those who are unable to attend the event to still be involved."

Online bidding on selected auction items will take place beginning Monday, Aug. 15, until midnight on Sunday, Sept. 11. Items not sold during the online auction will be available at the silent auction held during the Women Can/Women Do luncheon fundraiser. Those interested in viewing and bidding on items may register at www.biddingowl.com/wrcnm. Also new this year, artist Mary Bea McWatters will create a painting at the Women Can/Women Do luncheon which will be part of the silent auction for guests to bid on during the event. McWatters is a professional artist from Petoskey. Her love for the outdoors along with a passion for creating unique and colorful paintings has guided her through 20 years of professional art experience.

The Women Can/Women Do fundraiser helps support the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan 24-hour crisis line, domestic abuse and sexual assault program, Safe Home, counseling, educational and employment services and children's educational programming.

Eye in the sky looks at Great Lakes wrecks from new angle

COLLEEN OTTE
Capital News Service

LANSING — When spotting submerged shipwrecks proved difficult, researchers oddly looked to the sky.

Shipwrecks can threaten the Great Lakes environment if remaining onboard fuel leaks or they harbor invasive species that like to stick to them.

A recent study in the Journal of Archaeological Science suggests that satellite imagery can be used to locate these potentially hazardous wrecks that may otherwise go unnoticed.

Shipwreck searchers rely on sonar in deep waters and airborne laser systems in clear waters. But neither method is as effective for near shore areas with cloudy, shallow waters, according to the study.

The study unveiled a new option: shipwrecks generate telltale plumes of sediment that can extend for nearly 2.5 miles. That is long enough to be identified in satellite imagery.

"The ability to detect submerged shipwrecks from satellite remote sensors is of benefit to archaeological scientists and resource managers interested in locating wrecks and investigating processes driving their evolution," the study said.

Although the plume identification method has not yet been applied in the Great Lakes and other smaller water bodies, satellites have been used to spot the wrecks themselves, according to experts at the Thunder Bay National Marine Sanctuary in Alpena.

"I've looked on Google Earth to find shallow shipwrecks, or more likely to confirm the location of some shipwrecks," said Stephanie Gandulla, media and outreach coordinator for the sanctuary. "But at this stage it isn't really a tried-and-true method to go out and discover them. It's another tool in our toolbox to investigate and look into shipwrecks."

The method could prove useful for the sanctuary's goal of protecting shipwrecks, Gandulla said. The shipwreck preserve is a cultural resource not only for the community to appreciate. It draws tourism for the community's economic development.

Additionally, "fish and other lake wildlife like to use them," she said. "They like the structure of the shipwrecks, and it almost provides an artificial reef for fish and other critters to call home."

An environmental downside is that invasive species will also call them home, said Sean Ley, development officer for the Great Lakes Shipwreck Historical Society, which operates the Great Lakes Shipwreck Museum at Whitefish Point in paradise.

In all the Great Lakes except Superior, zebra and quagga mussels affix themselves to shipwrecks. That makes them look like reefs, although reefs' marine life occurs only in saltwater, Ley said. Lake Superior is so cold that those invasive species can't inhabit it.

"That means the wrecks in Lake Superior are pretty much pristine," he said.

They are also largely undisturbed by people because strict laws preventing divers from tampering with them, Ley said. That makes the shipwrecks and the artifacts that sink with them valuable to the study of marine histories.

"If anyone is wondering just how things were done in the maritime world 100 to 200 years ago, the answer lies on the bottom," he said. "And now we have the technology that can go down and explore these wrecks."

The historical society estimates there are about 6,000 known wrecks in the Great Lakes, and that some 30,000 lives were lost in those wrecks, Ley said. Most are in Lakes Michigan and Huron because the vessels were used primarily near population centers when shipping became popular.

"In Lake Superior there are about 600," Ley said. "Our focus is eastern Lake Superior near Whitefish Point, where our museum is, because that's the greatest concentration of wrecks in Lake Superior. About one-third of all the wrecks are right around Whitefish Point."

Locating these vessels is important because they're navigational hazards, said Laura Rocchio, a member of NASA's Landsat communication and public outreach team. The Landsat program archives images of Earth so scientists can assess changes in its landscape.

"There's a lot of expense involved in that," Rocchio said. "But at least they know where it is, and then it's a decision if any cleanup could be done."

Also, pinpointing the wrecks allows for the monitoring and rectifying of pollution from corroded metals and leaking fuel.

"Any shipwreck can

Rocchio said sediment plume identification method could be applied anywhere the water is shallow enough for sediments to reach the surface during tidal swings. The sediments need to be suspended near the surface to be revealed in the satellite imagery.

Initially, the researchers were studying what impact the offshore wind turbines in the English Channel would have on the surrounding area, and they discovered sediment plumes originating from the structures, Rocchio said.

They started realizing that even small things were making plumes that could be detected.

"That's where they got the idea for the study, and they started with where they knew the ships were," she said.

Cherries, berries and beyond

ARND KILLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

Rocky Top Farms brings its unique cherry and berry products to the Farmers' Market each Thursday in Charlevoix. The farm is located off of U.S. 31 S on Essex Road in Ellsworth. Its legacy was established by Tom Cooper 35 years ago when he, tired of the rat race of the corporate world, decided to come to Northern Michigan and buy a farm.

The farm is 300 acres consisting mainly of cherry orchards planted on the indigenous drumlin hills of Antrim County, land created by the glacier that once covered the region. Into the second generation, Cooper's son Mike, along with his wife Heidi, now run the farm, which is world-famous primarily for its cherry products: preserves, fruit butters, salsas and chutneys. Peaches and other berries and fruits also find their way into the farm's giant copper kettle. Many of Rocky Top's gourmet fruit products are served by bed and breakfasts, restaurants, hotels, and sold in health food stores and specialty shops around the country.

The farm has other amenities and is a destination for tours and family groups who want to explore a working cherry orchard. A small farm shop can be found on the premises where Rocky Top sells its fruit products for those who visit. There is also a workshop where handcrafted crates are constructed out of cedar for packaging which can be as simple as a crate or as elaborate as a design that can be turned into a birdhouse with a little tweaking.

Bill Hott, a former test driver for General Motors at the Milford Proving Grounds and his wife Gaye, a former employee of Bloomfield Hill Schools are both retired, have lived in Ellsworth for two years. The couple now work part time for the Coopers by selling at the farmers markets.

"We love to meet people and get out in the community," the Hott's explained.

"And we love that Rocky Tops' jams and jellies are being enjoyed by people all over the world."

One can rent a log cabin at Rocky Top or take advantage of several "Glampsites," according to the Hott's. Glampsites provide ready-to-go camping for individuals or families who want to camp without the hassle of getting the tents, sleeping bags and other essentials organized and packed for the experience. Rocky Top also provides a wedding venue and has hosted music festivals on the property.

'We make everything from scratch'

Twenty five years of experience in grocery stores including 13 years with Glen's Market, eight of which he served as baking department manager, led Louis Grabowski to go off on his own and start a baking business.

His products can be found at the Charlevoix Farmers' Market, but he and his wife, Jenny are a bread baking team, sharing in the preparation and sales.

"I really enjoy myself," Grabowski said. "I do the farmers markets in Boyne City and Charlevoix during the summer months and work as pastry chef at Boyne Mountain in the winter. There's no sleep in the summer."

For sourdough bread, the process takes three days. Day one, a starter is used to make the bread dough. On day two, the dough relaxes in the refrigerator, and on day three, the bread is baked and packaged to take to market. Sourdough is only one of the breads offered at the market. In addition there are crusty baguettes, a selection of multi-grains, berry nuts, focaccia and English muffin bread to Got brown crud?

Increasingly, a brown substance has been coating the bottom of water rocks and sand of a number of our beautiful Northern Michigan lakes, turning portions of the lakes from a beautiful blue to a murky brown.

What is it?

A particular type of algae known as golden brown benthic algae or GBA for short.

Although brown benthic algae is not an invasive species, is not toxic and does not itself degrade water quality, the brown buildup detracts from the aesthetic appearance of the lake. This type of algae is naturally occurring in our lakes but has been increasing dramatically in recent years.

So what is causing the increase?

There is some evidence that nutrients such as phosphorus and nitrogen entering the lakes by way of groundwater are causing the increasingly prevalent brown coating. This could be caused by more people living year-round on or near the shores of our lakes and by failing septic systems due to age or improper maintenance.

Phosphorus is a prime nutrient entering groundwater through a failing septic system. Streams and rivers within the watershed of a lake containing heightened concentrations of nitrogen and phosphorus from fertilizers carried by upstream agricultural runoff are also possible causes. Other potential contributing factors include higher water temperatures and increasing sunlight reaching the lake floor due to increased water clarity caused by invasive species such as zebra mussels. What are local lake residents doing about it?

Last summer, the Three Lakes Association embarked on a collaborative pilot study to explore the relationship between groundwater nutrients, in particular phosphorus and nitrogen, and the proliferation of golden brown benthic algae in Torch Lake.

The study is continuing this year with the goal of expanding the number and distribution of sampling sites in Torch Lake and the possible addition of sites in Clam and Bellaire lakes. Details and updates of the study can be found at www.3lakes.com.

tion," Heydlauff said. "The pilot policy approved by council as a result of this committee created more opportunities for food trucks to park on publicly owned lands, but also created a fee and application process for this."

"Some food trucks have begun operating on private property (which was previously permitted) and perhaps this has diminished demand to set-up on public property," Heydlauff added.

Maureen Owens, a member of the Charlevoix Food Truck Committee, noted that the best thing to come from the policy was the ability of businesses on opposite sides of the argument to compromise.

"The brick and mortar restaurants have very real concerns about the affect food trucks would have on their businesses," Owens said. "The food truck industry is certainly growing and those owners were hoping for another outlet in which they could grow. Through conversation and consideration, the two were able to construct a policy that was reasonable and fair."

Heydlauff also was pleased with the ability the stakeholders in the food truck discussion were able to reach an agreement.

"When council appointed a committee to study the issue, we hoped to strike a balance between food truck operators and those who have restaurants-especially in the downtown," Heydlauff said. "I think the process of having stakeholders on different sides of the issue come together to address the matter was fruitful."

As the pilot program comes to a close it appears the fate of the food trucks in Charlevoix still hangs in the balance.

"Based on discussions this spring, I anticipate the Food Truck Committee will reconvene in November to discuss what, if any, changes need to take place for the future of a food truck policy," Heydlauff said. "They may recommend council make this pilot program permanent or suggest other options to consider."

With safety harnesses attached, due to the precarious perch, cousins Billy (left) and Mike Winkieblack, of Mihm Enterprises, use rollers to apply the final coat of red paint to the side of the Charlevoix Lighthouse, Tuesday, Aug. 16. The project has involved power washing and scraping the old paint, caulking all seams and a primer of white paint that had people wondering what color the lighthouse was going to be. The Winkieblacks used ladders and scaffolding to apply the paint. The final coat is a fade resistant red color that should last 20 years.

Administration as a part of the Runway Incursion Mitigation Program.

The FAA will pay 90 percent of the costs and the Michigan Department of Transportation Aeronautics will pay 5 percent, which is 95 percent of the project. The city will match 5 percent, which is about $70,000.

City officials awarded the construction bid to Elmer's Crane and Dozer, Inc.

"This investment will make traveling to and from Northern Michigan safer and more efficient," Sen. Debbie Stabenow.

"Safe and reliable air travel will also help encourage businesses to invest in the region and create jobs."

Construction is expected to begin in September for a three-week period and grooving will occur at night in October, which will cause night runway closures, said city manager Mark Heydlauff.

"The scheduled runway closures should not impact travel to and from Beaver Island," Heydlauff said.

The Runway Incursion

Management program helps airports reduce the risk of runway incursions. Incursions occur when an aircraft, vehicle, or person enters the protected area of an airport designated for aircraft landings and take offs. The FAA has developed an updated inventory of airport locations where runway incursions have occurred and is now working with airports on mitigation strategies.

manager.

This year the fair will take place Sunday-Sunday, Aug. 21-28 and will kick off at 3 p.m. on that first Sunday with pony and draft horse pulls. The 4-H members and their animal entries also will arrive over the weekend to get ready for the week.

With the carnival starting on Tuesday, Aug. 23, the fair has daily events and activities for people of all ages including the monster truck show, autocross, 4-H barns, rides and more. This year, the fair is also bringing in a number of new things including tractor pulls, silent disco, and firefighter demonstrations.

Going through the week, there is a large event every day for people to take part in.

"Tuesday we have several 4-H animal shows and one of our new events which is the truck and tractor pulls in the grandstand," Shaw said.

Shaw explains that the tractors participating in this event are not your ordinary tractors; they are beefed up diesel tractors.

"Wednesday we have another new event called silent disco," Shaw said. "This is going to be under the grandstand in a tent. People can come in after they pay the entry fee and get a pair of headphones with three different genres of music they can listen to."

Wednesday will also have a dog agility show at noon and a kids pedal pulling contest for kids ages 3-12. Shaw also explains that Home Depot will have a "build" where they will be bringing in kits for kids to make different things like a birdhouse or feeder. Last year, the fair had around 160 kids participate in the Home Depot activity.

"Thursday is a good comeback day for the monster truck show. We will have six monster trucks and some mini-monsters which will be driven by our staff in a pseudo race," Shaw said.

Before the monster truck show, kids also will have an opportunity to enter a new contest that they can create a poster for to show their favorite truck. Shaw explains that the truck drivers will judge the entries and kids will have a chance to win different prizes like T-shirts, hats, or other merchandise from the various trucks.

The Friday of the fair brings in the motocross race to the grandstand as well as a 4-H alumni party which will take place on the backstage. The party is open to anyone who has been in 4-H. According to Shaw, the 4-H extension office has already received more than 400 calls from people who plan to attend the party.

Saturday night brings in Parolee and Love & Theft, two country music acts that will be co-headlining a concert starting at 7 p.m.

"We thought we would bring in music on both fronts and think this will be a super concert because they are both excellent artists," Shaw said.

Closing the fair, the carnival will continue through the day with special armband pricing to commemorate the last day of the fair. Wednesday and Thursday also will act as armband days, which allows anyone of any age to enter the fair and ride carnival rides as much as they want for $20.

The fair is also accessible to anyone and everyone and Shaw explains that they pride themselves on being ADA accessible.

"The whole fair is ADA accessible. Our barns, grounds, buildings, and grandstands. We pride ourselves in that because we feel it is important that people can come and visit the fair and get around comfortably," she said.

The Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair is held at the Emmet County Fairgrounds just west of the U.S. 31/131 intersection in Petoskey.

Rayders have long-reaching assets

Height, experience key as Charlevoix team chases district three-peat

JAMES CHRISTENSEN
(231) 439-9343 • jchristensen@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — In just a few seasons as Charlevoix's volleyball coach, Audra Randall has coached several fantastic players, including back-to-back Petoskey News-Review players of the year Maddie Boss and Emily Zabawa.

But Randall never has been blessed with the kind of height the Rayder coach has at her disposal heading into this season.

Between six-foot-three sophomore Ellie Louiselle and six-foot freshman Elise Stuck, Randall believes she finally has the tools to match up with a Traverse City St. Francis squad that has dominated the Lake Michigan Conference and made a Class C semifinal run last season behind 6-4 middle hitter Julianna Phillips.

"We've had a lot of talented players come through here, but all under six feet tall, and those inches and arm length really do make a difference on your power as a hitter and the kind of blocker you can be," Randall said. "St. Francis is still going to be incredibly tough to beat, but height is one area where we've really struggled in that match-up in the past couple of years."

"With Elise on the varsity and Ellie showing the level of growth she did over the summer, it feels like we have a fighting chance in that department now."

Height isn't the only reason to be excited about Charlevoix's prospects on the volleyball court, as the Rayders boast a deep and experienced lineup across the floor.

The Rayders return nine of 11 players from a squad that repeated as district champions last season, including senior setter Becca Moon, who blossomed into one of the area's most versatile talents over the course of 2015.

Outside hitters Kenzy O'Leary, Beth Veenstra and Nichole Hart also return, and along with Stuck and Louiselle will give Charlevoix plenty of options as it looks to replace its two leading hitters from last season, Zabawa and Hannah Zipp.

Mnon and O'Leary will split the setting duties with junior Emily Shrift to give the Rayders more offensive options up front.

"Becca's a great setter and ordinarily I would have her focus on that, but she's too good of a hitter to not get chances at the net, so we've worked Kenzy and Emily into the position as well," Randall said. "This way we can get more out of two setters who also happen to be great hitters, keep those players rested and also make ourselves a little less predictable offensively for opponents."

In the back row, senior Ali Jarema and junior Kelsey Crandell-Marfuta give the Rayders experienced options defensively and should help Charlevoix overcome the loss of senior Grace Sutherland in a leg injury.

Julia Doskoch, Charlevoix's libero last season, will also start 2016 on the bench as she recovers from her own injury, but Doskoch hopes to return by midseason and should give the Rayders another asset in the back row.

JV call-ups Courtney Streeter, Kelsey Robinson and Raigan Novotny and senior newcomer Danielle Prate round out the roster for the Rayders and have the talent to provide quality minutes at their positions as substitutes.

"It's a big group, and one that's got well-rounded skill sets and no holes," Randall said. "Oftentimes, you have teams with too many back-row players and not enough attackers, or vice versa, but this group really has a nice mix across the positions and fills every niche."

"It's exciting because I look at this team and I don't see any real weaknesses. Our players are all capable of covering for each other and every role is filled on the court."

With several players back from last year's title team, Randall's biggest concern has been avoiding the highs and lows that come with being a successful squad.

"When you have a streak like the one we're on, the biggest danger is that your success leads to pressure or complacency," Randall said. "You want those titles to be inspiring and motivating, not a source of stress or arrogance."

"We've spent a lot of time this summer talking about our mental state and our attitude, and using our success to our benefit. We're lucky to have some great leaders on this team and I think they've got us on the right track."

Charlevoix travels to Pellston this Saturday for a season-opening tournament, with their first home matches coming on Tuesday, August 23.

New division holds opportunities, challenges for soccer squad

JAMES CHRISTENSEN
(231) 439-9343 • jchristensen@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Over the past several years, Charlevoix has built its soccer program into one of the finest Division 4 has to offer, culminating in a strong showing in last year's state tournament.

This year, big changes are coming for the Rayders, who will no longer compete in the division it has called home for over a decade.

Enrollment growth has pushed Charlevoix up into Division 3 and out of its traditional district with rival Harbor Springs, making it possible for both teams to be district champions for the first time in several years.

On the surface, the move up to Division 3 is a positive change for the Rayders, who no longer have to face their arch-rival Rams in the district and avoid state soccer powers Leland, Grandville Calvin Christian and Muskegon Western Michigan Christian in the regional.

But there are still plenty of tough opponents waiting for Charlevoix in Division 3, including another long-time rival, Elk Rapids, in district play and 2015 district champions Gladwin and Freeland in the regional.

"The easy assumption to make is that it's going to be an easier path for us, but the more I look at it the more I'm not sure that's true," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "Elk Rapids is always one of the toughest games on our schedule, and there's a lot of quality teams on our side of the bracket in general."

The Elks host this season's district, which also includes Boyne City, Cheboygan, Grayling and Kalkaska.

With change a fact of life

ABOVE: The 2016 Charlevoix boys soccer team, which opens the season at home today, Friday, at 5 p.m. against Traverse City West. RIGHT: Charlevoix's Christian Matye is hoping to lead the Rayders to another LMC and district title this season, and a deep state tournament run in Division 3.

for the Rayders this year, Charlevoix is focusing on the things it can control, which includes getting the most of a talented roster that returns 10 of the 11 starters from a team that was a penalty shootout loss away from beating a Western Michigan Christian team that went to the Division 4 semifinals last year.

The Rayders do have to replace graduated senior Walker Drost, who scored 19 goals and assisted on 10 more last year, but return several strong offensive weapons, including first team all-state Christian Matye, who led Charlevoix with 25 goals last season, as well as forwards Wesley Crandell and Graham Kroon.

Midfielders Nick Bradley, who scored the game-winning goal in Charlevoix's district final win over Harbor Springs last year, and Noah Carson, a dual-sport athlete who also runs cross country, are also potent offensive threats for the Rayders.

Defensively, Charlevoix has one of the best corps in the area, led by third team all-state Kevin Pearl and flanked by junior Danny Nesburg and fellow seniors Matt Good and Cameron Clark, with midfielder David Ritter providing support and forming the link between the Rayders' backline and their attacking players.

In net, the Rayders have experienced options in junior Jacob Harrod and senior Collin Turkleson that have both come through in the clutch in big games, with Bailey Bales also getting time at the position.

Drost's graduation will provide opportunities for younger players to see the field and potentially some action for a small but strong group of newcomers that includes freshman Blaise Snabes, the younger brother of former Charlevoix soccer star Nick Snabes.

The biggest key for Charlevoix is not letting previous success go to its squad's head, and continuing to stay hungry heading into the season.

"We've been in a situation like this before where we had a big senior class coming off a great junior year, and it didn't go well," Boss said. "They didn't put forth the same effort they had a year before and believed success would just keep coming, and instead of achieving their goals, they ended up falling short."

"We have to stay motivated and realize that the only way we're going to do better than last year is to push ourselves even harder."

Along with the state tournament, Charlevoix will battle to repeat as the Lake Michigan Conference champion, battling perennial contenders Harbor Springs and Elk Rapids and a resurgent Grayling squad, among others, for the crown.

And, where do they look to find the best deals?

Newspaper media—in print and online.

Eight in ten adults with children in their household used the newspaper and took some action as a result of an ad in a print newspaper in the past month.

LONNIE ALLEN/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

A weekend of activity

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-4558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

Despite the rainy morning, Charlevoix was buzzing with activity Aug. 13 with a trio of events taking place in downtown. The morning kicked off with the annual Waterfront Art Fair, which completed its 58th year in East Park. The juried art show featured 112 artists registered in East Park offering a variety of art mediums that included ceramics, pottery, drawing, glass, mixed media, paintings and more to the hundreds of patrons maneuvering through the multiple booths.

Another fun event that took place in downtown was the Charlevoix Circle of Arts second annual, Art from the Attic: II, silent auction/buy it now fundraiser. The event Friday and Saturday offered a variety of items ranging from fine art, vintage goods, furniture, jewelry, decorative accessories that were auctioned off to raise money for the art center.

For lunch people could enjoy another tradition taking place in downtown that Saturday — Christ Episcopal Church chicken salad luncheon. The luncheon is a long-standing Charlevoix tradition involving generations of women working together on this fund-raising project.

"We look forward to this lunch each year," said Cathy Silberhorn. "It's a very family friendly lunch and very accommodating to the little ones of the group. We enjoy it."

Lunch is served either outside along the sidewalk on the side of the church or in the parish hall in air-conditioned comfort. Lunch participants feast on chicken salad, made from a traditional church recipe, along with fruit, muffins, cookies and iced tea as they examine their art purchases. Artists who are showing their wares take a break at the church or have take-out chicken salad delivered to their art booth.

"We've been very busy taking orders and making deliveries since we opened this morning," said church volunteer Ann Puffpaff.

The chicken salad luncheon is fundraiser and the money is used for community donations like the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry and other causes throughout the years, organizers said.

Art fair patrons visiting downtown also were greeted by members of the Charlevoix Lions Club as they collected donations for the annual White Cane Days, which features local Lions asking the community and guests to "Help the Lions help the blind."

City EMS director pay tops other area public employees

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — When an ambulance leaves the Charlevoix firehouse on State Street to go out on a call, there is a good chance Bob Roloff will be in it.

Roloff is the EMS director and assistant fire chief along with classification as a paramedic, and a hard working one at that, with a paycheck to prove it.

In an analysis of public employee salaries, it was determined that Roloff makes more than any other city employee. No one earned more in 2015 than Roloff.

Along with his $55,000 salary, Roloff pocketed an additional $50,283 for working on-call shifts and holidays, as well as other payments.

The more than $105,000 he was paid in 2015 tops city manager Mark Heydlauff's contractual annual salary of $85,688.

Roloff leads a one-man department and is the primary first responder on emergency calls that occur during his regular 40-hour work week. To fill after-hours shifts, Roloff has a pool of people he uses to make sure a crew is available when there is a need, whether that be late at night, on weekends or on holidays. Except, Roloff says, he has trouble filling those shifts and frequently has to work them

Will Northern Michigan see a harsh winter? Predictions for the 2016-17 winter are out and some sources say yes while others not so much.

Almanac predicts an 'active storm track'

SEAN MILLER

(231) 439-9378 smiller4@petoskeynews.com

Living in Northern Michigan it's inevitable. As the popular TV series Game of Thrones famously declares, "Winter is coming."

Winter may still be a few months away but it seems already to be on the minds of people locally and nationally as both the Farmers' Almanac and National Weather Service have made predictions, and put their input forward, about how winter will be this year. However, exclamations about the state of winter seem to differ depending on who you talk to.

Predictions made by the Farmers' Almanac point to some snowy and cold conditions in mid-November through the Midwest, including Michigan. However, it is also predicted that the frigidly cold temperatures are not expected until later in the winter season but will make for a "numbing cold and snowy winter."

The almanac also predicts that "an active storm track will deliver above-normal precipitation, especially in February."

Somewhat differing from the almanac is the National Weather Service. Although weather experts from the agency's Gaylord office say it is still too early to start making

Council OKs Petoskey firm for design concept of new facilities building

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The City of Charlevoix approved an agreement with a Petoskey firm to perform services for a new public services facility to house the Department of Public Works and Electric Department.

Council choose to enter into an agreement with Northwest Design Group, LLC for $17,500 to come up with a site selection, needs analysis, and a conceptual design during their special meeting on Aug. 23.

"All of them were equally qualified to handle the project, but NDG was the most competitive bid," said councilperson Luther Kurtz. "They also have several employees who live in our community."

Before the selection members of city council along with city staff reviewed presentations by four firms who bid on the job.

The other three firms were Environment Architects, of Traverse City, John Dziurman Architects Ltd., of Charlevoix and Rochester Hills, and Straub Pettk Yaste and Beckett & Raeder, of Clawson, Ann Arbor and Petoskey.

"The four firms we brought to council were the best qualified to handle this work," said City manager Mark Heydlauff.

Charlevoix city manager receives contract extension

LOWME ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — In a sign that the city intends to stay on its current course, the Charlevoix City Council approved an extension to city manager Mark Heydlauff's contract through 2019.

Council members unanimously approved the extension for Heydlauff that included a 2 percent increase to his salary we've begun to address the backlog of infrastructure projects and have been able to move forward on other projects."

Heydlauff

in July. "City council and I have a good working relationship," Heydlauff said. "Together and with city staff

Heydlauff came on board as city manager in July 2015. One of the first goals he tackled was to make Charlevoix a better neighbor in the eyes of surrounding township officials. To do this, Heydlauff reached out to the township leaders to develop stronger relationships, which was noticed by city council.

"We think that he's doing a good job for the city," said mayor Gabe Campbell. "The past year he's helped us out tremendously and he's gotten a lot of things underway and gotten them off the ground himself."

Heydlauff also has helped the city target good bond rates and worked with the Downtown Development Authority to get that organization's bond refinanced. Heydlauff credits most of the work toward the fact the city council and city staff have been able to work well together to get things done.

"He follows the direction from city council," Campbell said. "Any ideas that we have, he actually takes the time and looks for avenues for us to have those ideas come to life. He is a team builder."

During the July meeting, council members gave Heydlauff a good job review. Council members wrote that they liked his management and communication style in describing him as "an effective leader." They also credited him for preparing a fiscally responsible city budget.

"I am very appreciative of council's support," Heydlauff said. "I enjoy Charlevoix and we do good work because we have a good staff on the front lines serving the people of this city every day."

Golf outing, auction raises money, hope for foundation

Alexandra Richards
arichards@petoskeynews.com (231) 439-9362

On Aug. 6 Dunmaglas Golf Club held its 9th annual Golf Outing and Auction to raise money for Kali's Cure for Paralysis Foundation.

Kali's foundation was founded when Kali Pung was in a tragic swimming accident on Crooked Lake which left her with a C1-C2 spinal fracture and paralyzed from the neck down. Despite doctors giving her parents a grim outlook for recovery, Kali was determined to continue living her life and to help others who had received similar injuries which led her to set up Kali's Cure for Paralysis Foundation. So far the foundation has raised over $2 million dollars to go toward helping paralyzed individuals.

With the money raised from last year's annual Golf Outing and Auction Kali's Cure used the money raised to donate to the Rehabilitation Institute of Michigan Fund who purchased two X-AR arm machines to research regeneration, the training for and purchase of restorative neurological devices to assist in motor control through electrical stimulation. The foundation also purchased two track chairs to assist paralyzed veterans in West Michigan through sports rehabilitation.

Earlier this year, at an event for 200 wounded veterans the foundation co hosted with several others, all volunteer non-profits in Washington D.C., Kali's Cure donated two Paramobiles which are adapted golf carts, to Fort Belvoir in Virginia for its paralyzed and amputee veterans, offering independence and rehabilitation through sports.

This year, the foundation purchased a Paramobile to have at the Golf Outing and Auction and invited the paraplegic pro-golfer who invented it to attend so donors could see the device in action. Originally the foundation's intention was to place the Paramobile somewhere in Michigan, but after two generous donations during the auction of two more Paramobiles they are now in the process of deciding where to place three Paramobiles.

This year, Pung and the foundation board went into the event planning on donating $50,000 to Dr. Raymond Onders of University Hospitals in Cleveland, Ohio, to continue his work and research relating to diaphragmatic pacing. Onders has played a big part in Pung's experimental medical treatments.

"We will continue to make donations throughout the year," Pung said. "We are always looking for somewhere new and innovative, that meets our mission and shares our goals to support; however, along with many other places, we remain proud supporters of our wounded veterans (to whom we have donated 15 all-terrain track chairs, many right here in Michigan), as well as the RIM Fund out of Detroit."

So what is next for Kali's cure? After all their success, it appears that Pung doesn't plan on slowing down anytime soon.

"Now that our ninth event is behind us, the planning for the 10th annual golf outing and auction on Aug. 5, 2017 at Dunmaglas Golf Club is underway," Pung said. "Our goal was to surpass $2 million by our 10th year but, since we just accomplished that goal a year in advance, new goals are being set and plans for a special anniversary event are underway."

The foundation are also looking forward to a televised episode of Michigan Golf Live with Bill Hobson, centered around Kali's Cure that is in production and will air this September on Fox Sports Detroit.

"Hopefully it will bring more awareness to our organization and allow us the opportunity to both raise more funds and support organizations across the country who are making amazing strides in the fight for a cure for paralysis," Pung said.

Looking Back

Another successful Charlevoix summer has come to an end, and with it another successful season of music provided by the Charlevoix City Band. This group has existed for more than a century now, and has been providing free weekly summertime concerts in East Park for the past several decades. The City Band is one reason people from all over treasure the seasonal Charlevoix experience, for what can better express a small vacation town than a summertime concert in the park? It is traditional Americana at its best.

Most likely, we've all felt the frustration at one point. Northern Michigan summer traffic is at a crawl and you have places to be. It's bumper to bumper going through Charlevoix and you come up behind a cyclist on the roadway. Traffic is too tight for you to safely go around, and you wonder why Tour-de-Francers here isn't using the wheelway for his ride. You honk your horn in an attempt to get him to move over. "There are bike trails, use them," you say to yourself.

That's true, there are bike trails. But what's also true is that cyclists have the right to use the road.

Over the past year, I've gained a new appreciation for cycling and cyclists. Minneapolis where I live is one of the friendliest cities toward cyclists in America.

There are designated bike paths that weave all across the city. There are designated bike boulevards. Many streets have wide bicycle lanes. The city makes cycling so easy and convenient that many people commute year-round on their bike. And while cyclists and vehicles coexist in near harmony, I still see plenty of instances of road rage caused by some driver frustrated at the expense of sharing the road with a commuter on a bike.

I got into cycling here for a number of reasons — I got sick of running all the time for exercise, I figured I could get where I was going by bike faster than by car in many instances (and save money on gas and parking while helping the environment), and for the delusional vanity of tight shorts. However, as much as I enjoy being able to ride from point A to point B on two wheels, it's easy to be freaked out when some drivers think they own the road.

While laws differ state to state, most state laws do give bicycles full access to the road. However, few roads are designed to accommodate

Rachel Brougham
How I see it

bicycles. And yes, with the speed differential, it does mean that sometimes bikes slow traffic. Inattentive drivers aren't the only problem. I see plenty of cyclists running stop signs as if they are some immortal fool, or flying between cars parked at a light. But that does not mean cyclists deserve intimidation by drivers.

Whenever there's a car vs. cyclist accident, a lot of people make the point that if cyclists were to ride on designated paths, it would be safer for everyone.

That may be true to an extent, but studies in Minnesota, Hawaii and Arizona have shown drivers are at fault in more than half of cycling fatalities. Plus, cyclists often go faster than 20 mph, which isn't always easy on designated paths where there are also walkers, runners and children. And paths aren't always an option for getting exactly from point A to point B.

Cycling is a sensible response to our changing environment. It betters public health, offers an alternative to traffic congestion and lowers emissions. It's a response to changing society, but with it we must also change our attitudes.

Moving forward, if you're a cyclist, every time you get on your bike, obey the law so drivers view cyclists as users of the road who deserve respect.

And each time you get in your car, remember that even the slightest inattention can injure or kill a cyclist who was just out enjoying a legal form of transportation.

Drivers and cyclists can peacefully coexist. The Share the Road campaign offers these tips for drivers:

— Be patient when passing a bicyclist — slow down and pass only when it's safe. Allow clearance of at least 3 feet.

— Look before you merge — check mirrors and blind spots before changing lanes.

— Be on the lookout — watch for and yield to bicyclists before making a turn.

— Use extra caution around young bicyclists — children's movements can be unpredictable.

— Be respectful — don't speed past a bicyclist to make an upcoming right turn. It's easy to misjudge how fast bicyclists are traveling.

— Exit your vehicle safely — look for bicyclists before opening your car door.

— Think before you honk — honking may startle a bicyclist and cause a crash.

— Stay alert and avoid distracted driving — put away mobile devices, food and makeup.

The Share the Road campaign offers these tips for cyclists:

— Follow the law — obey all traffic signs and signals. Ride in the same direction as traffic.

— Be predictable — maintain a straight course and avoid weaving between parked cars.

— Communicate your intent — look, yield to traffic and signal before turning or changing lanes.

— Use extreme caution near commercial vehicles — pass only on the left and recognize drivers' blind spots.

— See and be seen — wear bright colors, reflective gear and use head and tail lights.

— Protect yourself — wear a helmet.

— Stick to roads and trails — sidewalk riding puts you at risk for crashes at driveways and intersections. Always yield to pedestrians.

— Avoid distracted bicycling — put away mobile devices and headphones.

Supplemental Security Income for children battling cancer

Social Security provides benefits for children who suffer from many disabling diseases, including some forms of cancer.

These benefits could help with the additional costs of caring for an ill child. Although children haven't paid Social Security taxes and, thus, cannot be covered for Social Security disability benefits, they may receive disability benefits through the Supplemental Security Income program. The program pays benefits to disabled children who have limited income and resources.

If you wish to apply for benefits for your child, you'll need to complete an application for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and a Child Disability Report. The report collects information about your child's disabling condition, and about how it affects his or her ability to function.

The SSI program has strict limits on the amount of income and assets you can have. It is a "needs-based" program for people who have low family income and resources. Contact Social Security at (800) 772-1213 between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. business days to find out if the income and resources of the parents and the child are within the allowed limits. If yes, you will make an appointment to file the SSI application. Before the scheduled appointment, go to www.ssa.gov/disabilityssi/apply-child and fill out the online Child Disability Report. At the end of the report, we'll ask you to sign a form that gives the child's doctor(s) permission to give us information about the child's disability. We need this information to make a decision on your child's application.

Understanding the difference Hospice care vs palliative care vs home health care

A new medical term has caught the attention of those interested in quality of life in health care — palliative care. This is not a new term to the hospice side of medicine. For the last 30 plus years, palliative care has been provided by hospice programs for dying Americans. Home health care also can have a palliative approach dependent upon the individual patient needs. To palliate means to make comfortable by treating a person's symptoms from an illness. Where these three programs differ greatly is in the timing, payment and eligibility for services.

Hospice care services focus on comfort and caring, not curing. This focus is on preventing and relieving suffering of the physical or emotional pain of disease symptoms and supporting patients with an anticipated life expectancy of six months or less. Hospice always provides palliative care, but it is targeted to those patients who are no longer seeking curative care. Hospice also includes services not dependent upon insurance coverage such as volunteers, bereavement, and quality of life items that provide additional patient safety and comfort. Hospice care is covered by Medicare, Medicaid and other insurances under the hospice benefit.

Palliative care services focus on reducing the severity of the disease symptoms, preventing and relieving suffering of patients at any stage of a serious illness and can be used in coordination with curative care. It is not dependent upon a prognosis. This type of care is intended to be used to support the patient and family during and after treatment. Some treatments and medications may be covered by Medicare or Medicaid. Private insurance coverage varies and each item can be billed separately, just as they are at hospital or doctor visits.

Home health care services help you get better from an illness or injury. The intention is to help you regain your independence and become as self-sufficient as possible. It is usually less expensive and more convenient than care you would receive in a hospital or skilled nursing facility. Some treatments and medications may be covered by Medicare or Medicaid. Private insurance coverage varies.

All of these services can be provided in the home, including teams of individuals working together on behalf of the patient and family. Some providers can provide all of these services seamlessly where others can only provide them separately. This can be confusing to patients and families so it is important to know what is available and what is included by asking the important questions.

You have a choice. Be sure to choose the appropriate care service or services that work together to provide quality of life in a peaceful, dignified, supportive transition process for loved ones and family members.

Veteran of month

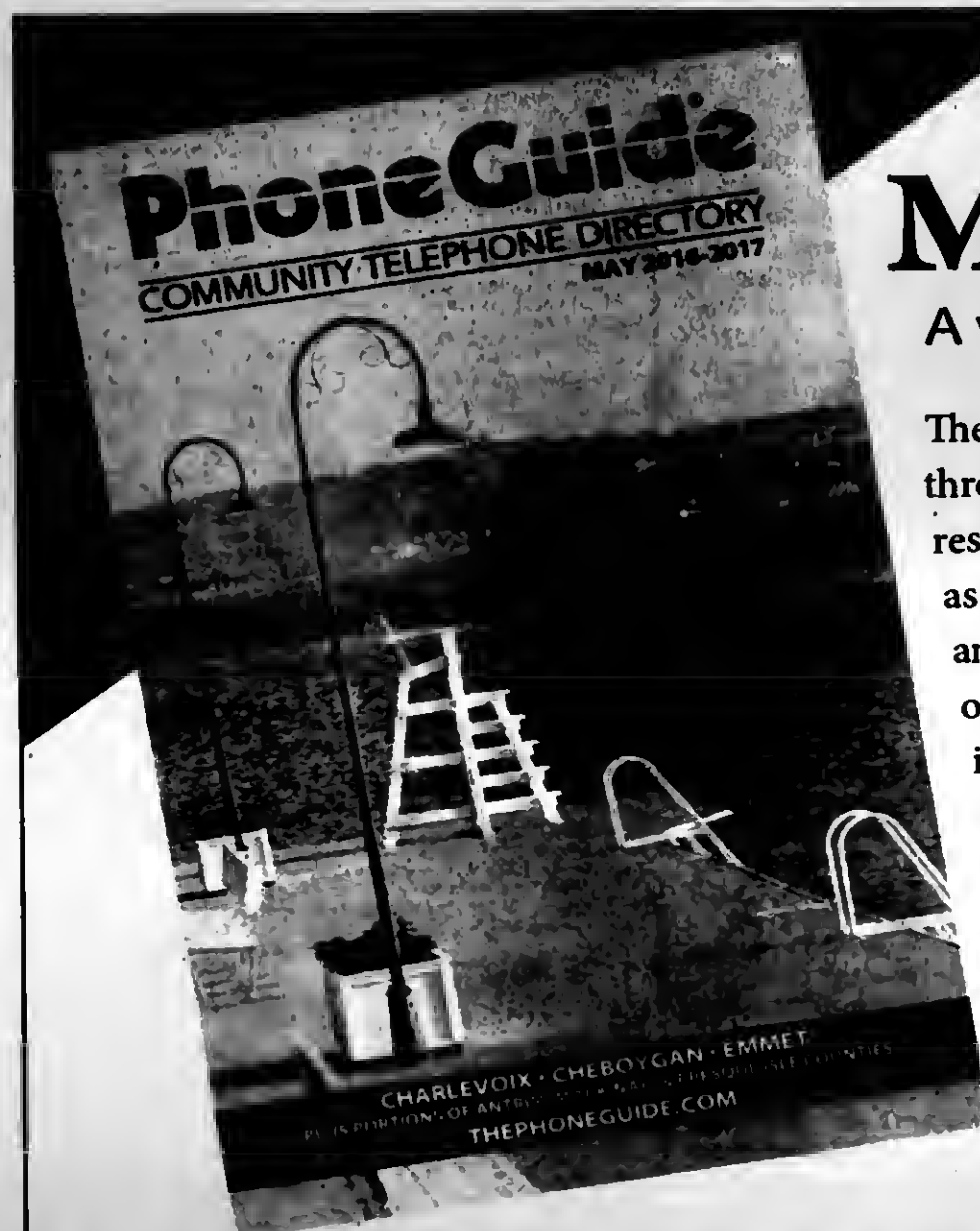

Edward Hugh Hennessey

The "Veteran of the Month" for August 2016 is Edward Hugh Hennessey who was born Aug. 31, 1920, in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. On Sept. 5, 1942, he enlisted in the U.S. Naval Reserve, as an Aviation Cadet, and was on active duty, during World War II, from Dec. 28, 1942, until Aug. 19, 1943.

In 1943 Hennessey married his high school sweetheart Irene Reichlin in Detroit. Following his discharge from the U.S. Navy, Hennessey joined the Merchant Marines and then served as a Detroit Police officer for 13 years and was the polygraph examiner for the department. Later he opened his own investigation company and worked in corporate security for J.L. Hudson Company and Ford Motor Company. Retiring in 1981 to Boyne City, Hennessey became active in the community with memberships in the American Legion, was on the board of directors of Camp Quality and Camp Daggett, was a Fourth Degree Knight of the Knights of Columbus, a member of the Boyne Valley Lions Club, was on the Boyne City Airport Board, the Boyne Christmas Basket Committee, was a member of St. Matthew Catholic Church and Eucharistic minister and was a founding lifetime member of the Michigan Polygraph Examiners Association.

The person Hennessey lived to be is to be remembered every bit as much as the things that he did. As one close friend said of Hennessey "I never heard anyone say anything negative about Ed Hennessey." On May 29, 2016, Edward Hugh Hennessey answered the final call and is being honored by his family, his many friends and comrades with whom he shared his life.

City to investigate EMS director pay

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 • allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — City council members requested an independent investigation into the Charlevoix EMS director's salary after it was revealed that he made $105,000 last year, which is nearly twice his annual salary and more than any other city employee.

During a special meeting on a separate issue Tuesday, council members asked Charlevoix city manager Mark Heydiauff to take a further look at EMS director Bob Roloff's pay, which included more than $50,000 in payments for working on-call shifts and holidays.

"Considering the recent article in the (News-Review) I think it is a good idea to have our city manager look into the EMS director/deputy fire chief position," said council member Luther Kurtz. "But we should make an effort to reserve judgment until we gather all the available information."

Council member Shane Cole said he heard from a number of city residents who expressed concern about the director's pay.

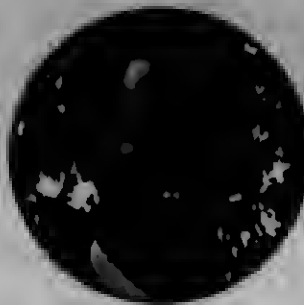

"After some phone calls that I received regarding Mr. Roloff's salary and his (on-call pay) I would like this looked into a little further," said council member Shane Cole. "Bob does an awesome job and I am not saying there is something wrong, but the phone calls I have had are questions about (his pay)."

In a recent analysis of public employee salaries, it was determined that Roloff makes more than any other city employee, including Heydiauff, who is the city's top official. In 2015, Roloff earned $105,000. His base annual salary at the time was $55,000. The additional $50,283 came from his on-call shifts and holidays, as well as other payments.

Roloff said he has trouble filling other shifts, so whether it be during the day, late at night, on weekends or on holidays he frequently has to work them himself. As a result, his average pay is significantly more than East Jordan EMS director Jay Peck, who makes an annual salary of $60,500, Emmet County EMS director Larry Hansen, who makes an annual salary of $63,000, and John Lamont, Boyne City's EMS director, who is paid an annual salary of $57,296.

Each council member agreed that Roloff does "a great job" and puts in extra effort to cover shifts that no other qualified personnel wants. But, they said, being good stewards of the public's money requires them to at least have an outside entity look at this matter to calm public concern.

"Bob works very hard at his job," said council member Shirley Gibson. "But council has to do what is in the best interest of the city. In this case we have to address the public concern."

It wasn't immediately clear when Heydiauff would consult outside officials to look at the matter, but said the city will handle the analysis externally.

"Council wants the public to know that they take these matters seriously," Heydiauff said. "They believe it is worth looking into and the city will follow through with council's direction."

Charlevoix has three ambulances along with another emergency response vehicle available to staff, but the city has trouble filling the paid-on call shifts. Bob Roloff leads a one-man department and is the primary first responder on emergency calls that occur during his regular salaried work week.

PAY

"I only receive on-call pay after my scheduled shifts," Roloff said. "So actually, I save the city money on the primary day's shifts because I am already scheduled to be here."

In a comparison to EMS directors in the area, Roloff, who now makes an annual salary of $56,100, is in alignment with other director salaries from East Jordan, Emmet County and Boyne City, but Roloff is the only director who is allowed to supplement his salary with paid on-call shifts.

East Jordan EMS Director Jay Peck makes an annual salary of $60,500 and does not receive on-call pay when he is out on an after-hours ambulance run.

"It is part of my salaried position to cover on-call shifts," Peck said. "I am not paid extra when I volunteer for a shift."

Emmet County EMS director Larry Hansen makes an annual salary of $63,000 and also does not receive extra wages when he is on call or helping out his department.

"Each run is part of my salary as director," Hansen said.

John Lamont, Boyne City EMS director, is paid an annual salary of $57,296. He also does not receive extra pay for covering shifts he volunteers for.

"I'm a working paramedic and ambulance runs are part of my salaried position," Lamont said.

There is no city policy that prevents Roloff from scheduling himself for paid on-call shifts, said Charlevoix Police and Fire Chief Gerard Doan.

"Who else is going to cover those shifts?" Doan said. "We do not have the people to volunteer for those shifts."

In 2015, Roloff alerted city officials that he was unable to find people to fill EMS shifts because the city does not pay enough for them.

"We cannot get people to volunteer for our primary and backup shifts," Roloff said. "There is a shortage of qualified people in the area."

In 2015, Charlevoix City Council raised the on-call pay from $6.66 per 12-hour shift to $50 per 12-hour shift for medics and $25 per 12-hour shift for EMTs, hoping the pay increase would help solve the staffing problem.

"We did see some more interest early on last year," Roloff said. "But it fell off and we are still struggling to find qualified people to volunteer for these shifts."

In July, Charlevoix City Council members again gave an increase to EMS workers to help with coverage for holidays and special events in the city.

"People want to spend time with their families and they are not signing up for those shifts," Roloff said. "The increase should help us recruit from outside the area."

But there has not been more interest. Instead, officials continue to struggle with filling the EMS schedule, which prompted the Courier to look into the staffing shortage claims.

Roloff, along with his wife, Audrey, and paramedic Dawson Matter are the only workers signing up for the primary ambulance shifts, according to city documents acquired through the Freedom of Information Act. Those who sign up for primary shifts — meaning they will be the first crew to respond to an emergency — are paid more than workers who sign up to be paid as a secondary crew member.

"I cannot get people to sign up for primary shifts," Roloff said. "Each month I send out a schedule and people pick the shifts they want. No one is picking the primary shifts. That is why Audrey, Dawson and myself are on those shifts. It's not because we want them, it is because no one else will sign up for them."

Because Roloff has trouble filling shifts, Roloff, his wife and Matter on average make more than any other EMT or paramedic in the county, according to city documents.

Per diem pay from June 12 to July 7 in 2016 for Audrey Roloff was $4,075 gross from the city — $1,900 for monthly standby, $1,965 for ambulance pay, $100 holiday standby pay, $60 holiday ambulance pay, and $50 special events pay. Matter received $3,175 gross from the city — $1,680 monthly standby, $1,245 ambulance pay, $140 holiday standby pay, $60 holiday ambulance pay, and $50 special event pay. Bob Roloff made $4,060 — $1,725 for monthly standby, $1,965 for ambulance pay, $200 for holiday standby pay, $120 for holiday ambulance pay, and $50 for special event pay.

Adding Bob Roloff's $4,060 per diem pay to his regular salary, he made $6,716.44 on his July 15 paycheck from the city. His 2016 year-to-date salary before taxes is at $63,548, which is more than the annual salary for his counterparts in Emmet County, Boyne City and East Jordan.

Doan said he sees no problem with the higher wages earned by Roloff, his wife and Matter.

"I review each per diem Bob submits and provide oversight for his department," Doan said. "There is nothing unusual going on."

Doan provides oversight on all per diem pay coming from the EMS department because in the past Roloff was incorrectly utilizing the call-in pay provisions, which resulted in an overpayment of $18,106 from 2006 to 2012, according to city documents.

In 2013, at the time this error was discovered, former city manager Rob Straebel requested an internal investigation of Roloff's compensation. The investigation resulted in Roloff admitting he made a mistake by paying himself for ambulance runs while also receiving an hourly wage from the city. That was before Roloff was promoted to a salaried position as EMS director, which occurred in 2015.

Roloff signed an agreement to pay the city back the $18,000 overpayment in March 2013. The agreement deducts $139.28 out of each paycheck until March 23, 2018.

"I felt terrible about it and wanted to make it right," Roloff said.

Back-to-School Begins Here

This year, parents with school-aged children are projected to spend more than $27 billion on back-to-school shopping.

And, where do they look to find the best deals?

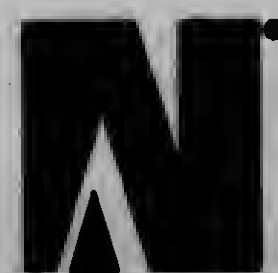

Newspaper media—in print and online.

Eight in ten adults with children in their household used the newspaper and took some action as a result of an ad in a print newspaper in the past month.

Newspapers make back-to-school shopping as easy as 1, 2, 3.

Farmer White's carries on family tradition

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

It all started in 1958 with the late Grandfather Versil White and his wife Jane. Farmer White's has been family owned and operated farm located in Williamsburg, Michigan since then, and has expanded its operation beyond the roadside stand into a red roofed white barn with a market and kitchen.

If you do not wish to make the drive to Williamsburg to pick up the many products offered you are in luck. Each week Farmer White's brings its produce, jams, preserves and baked goods to Charlevoix and other local farmer's markets.

Tim Cooper, grandson of Versil, can be seen at Charlevoix's Farmer's Market each Thursday behind the array of seasonal fruits and vegetables the farm produces on its 100 acre farm. Farmer White's also transforms much of their harvest into gourmet jams, jellies, butter, salsa pickles, dried fruit salad dressing, pie, cakes, cookies and muffins.

There is a selection of farm inspired goods and hand crafted gifts from which to choose as well. Currently, according to Cooper, the farm is producing peaches, soon to be followed with apples, but another fruit is the farm's top seller.

"Our biggest season is cherries," he said.

There are 10 acres of sweet and 50 acres of tarts on the farm.

"During the busy season, we work 14 hour days, seven days a week... to harvest the cherries," according to Farmer White's website.

Cooper works year-round on the farm, tree trimming, doing maintenance and planting in the spring. He has been helping out at the market for 5 years.

The Farmer White's family is all about building relationships with its customers.

They hope connect with people through providing them with nourishing, local produce and look forward to having their guests make return visits to their market in Williamsburg or at the farmer's markets in Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Petoskey.

Community pool fundraiser off to a brisk start

CHARLEVOIX — On Saturday, paddlers of all levels came together and participated in Paddle 4 The Pool, a new fundraising event for the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

"We were very excited for this first year event to go off without a hitch and we had a great group of participants and volunteers on the waters," said Carissa Mullaney, event coordinator. "Weather predictions were not in our favor leading up to the event, but we kept a close watch and lucked out with a window of good weather coinciding with the exact timing of our event."

The Lake Charlevoix event started and finished at Ferry Beach in the morning. The 4-mile course was open to paddlers on SUPs, kayaks and canoes.

The predicted time contest required paddlers to provide an estimate for how long they thought it would take to complete the course. Those that finished closest to their prediction were the winners. No time pieces were allowed. The first place winner, Emily Beynon, a kayaker from Houston, Texas finished 4 minutes, 4 seconds away from her prediction. Second place went to Kathy Vance of Grand Rapids, while Greg DeNio of Charlevoix finished third.

"All of the paddlers finished faster than what their estimates were and now that we have the results up on the event website, I expect that next years' participants will have an even better gauge for predicting their time," Mullaney said. "The distance proved to work well for all levels of paddlers with everyone finishing under an hour and a half."

Donated giveaways were also part of the fun, with Boaz Selinger of New York winning the Beaver Island Boat Company Tour Package, Charlevoix's Ed Russell winning a kayak, and Kristen Coyne of Chicago winning an Aquaglide Tube Package from Summertime Rentals.

Smart paddling as it relates to water safety is a big concern for the area, and this event was developed with several precautions in mind. All participants were required to wear personal flotation devices and Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital was on site for first aid. Five spotter boats oversaw the course, with two certified lifeguards on board. Local kayakers Debbie and Paul Gelderblom, specially trained in safety and rescue, assisted and gave guidance to participants along the course. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources, U.S. Coast Guard, and Charlevoix County Sheriff's Marine Division also were alerted of the event.

"We were pleased with the first year turnout and the excitement garnered through volunteers, sponsorships and giveaways. This was a great fundraiser for the pool and we only expect it to grow as word spreads about how fun it is to participate," Mullaney said. "We had more than 20 area businesses support this event either through sponsorship, donations or volunteering, and the pool would like to thank everyone that helped make it a success."

A list of sponsors can be found on the event website. The mission of the pool is to provide a predictions, all signs are pointing toward a normal winter.

"It is a little early for us to be making predictions but indications show this year we will have a normal winter. This winter will be, from what we are looking at initially, a normal winter," said Mike Boguth, meteorologist for the Gaylord office of the National Weather Service.

Boguth continued explaining that at this time there is currently no support that it will be a particularly harsh winter.

"We usually hold off until September or early October before we really look at this and make our predictions. As a preliminary look, though, indications show this will be a normal winter but not as extreme in terms of cold. It looks like it could fall right in the normal range as far as temperature and snowfall," Boguth said.

One factor that will contribute to how winter will play out for Northern Michigan is El Niño and La Niña conditions. According to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, El Niño and La Niña are the warm and cool phases of recurring climate patterns across the tropical Pacific. These patterns can shift every two to seven years and create predictable disruptions of temperature, precipitation and wind.

According to The Weather Network, with

La Niña installed in the tropical Pacific, we should expect a more active storm track that will have an above normal precipitation and cooler weather over a wide sector of the Pacific Northwest. However, positive precipitation anomalies would also extend through the west, and across sections of the north plains and into the Great Lakes region, which includes Michigan.

For those who have lived in Northern Michigan for any amount of time, experts seem to confirm what is already generally accepted — it will eventually get cold and snow.

Your Child's Well-Being Comes First.

The importance of back-to-school health checkups

The new school year is fast approaching, so don't wait until the last minute to make appointments with your children's healthcare professionals. After all, they could contribute to your children's success at school.

DOCTOR

In addition to a physical examination, your family doctor will ask about your children's eating and sleeping habits. If they don't eat well or get enough sleep, they may experience concentration problems that can have an impact on their grades. Do they have allergies? Do they take a particular medication? Are their vaccinations up to date?

DENTIST

Some studies have shown that good oral hygiene and regular dental checkups have a positive influence on students' academic success. Also, if your children play sports, tell your dentist, he or she will be able to recommend a mouth guard adapted to your child's sport and teeth.

AUDIOLOGIST

Does one of your children only answer you when he can actually see you? Does he ask you to repeat instructions? Does he tend to turn up the volume on the TV? Has he had several ear infections? If you answered positively to any of these questions, think about consulting an audiologist. Even if they're hard to detect, these symptoms can lead to learning delays.

OPTOMETRIST

An estimated one in four students experience vision problems. Untreated problems not only affect the learning abilities of your children, but they can escalate into more serious health issues.

As a parent, it is your responsibility to look after your children's health. Make sure you get things taken care of before school starts.

Doctor, dentist, optometrist and audiologist: they can all help in promoting the academic success of your children.

CHARLEVOIX — Line play doesn't attract much attention from casual football fans, but any coach worth his salt knows that championships are won and lost by the quality of play in the trenches.

So nothing could bode better for Charlevoix's hopes of returning to the playoffs after narrowly missing out in 2015 than the excitement head coach Ron Bindi displays when talking about his offensive and defensive lines this season.

"We've got a core of five or six guys, juniors and seniors that were in the weight room every day this offseason, and looked really good at veer camp over the summer," Bindi said. "The experience all of these guys got last year is a huge plus, and the way they've stepped up to the plate and put the work in to get to the next level as players has made a huge difference."

Three starters return offensively in seniors Jake Mitchell and Joe McRaney and junior Ray Cunningham, and senior Caleb Hart and junior Jake Cox also have plenty of experience up front as well.

Juniors Colin Davis and Kyle

Balch will help fill out the depth on a unit that should be much improved from an uneven performance last year, when all of the players were stepping into meaningful roles for the first time.

Defensively, those same players should fill out a fear-

Football season in Northern Michigan has always come with an eagerness not often found in other seasons.

There's a fever for football and Northern Preps is once again here to help.

The website brought to you by the Northern Michigan Review and its selection of newspapers — the Petoskey News-Review, Gaylord Herald Times and Charlevoix Courier — is taking a step up this season, though.

What began as the best place to find area scores, game updates and standings back in 2014, has now evolved into so much more.

Northern Football fanatics will now be able to find schedules, stories, photo galleries, rosters, statistics, in-game and final scores and track season long stats all in the same place, at Northern-preps.com

"Our organization has what I believe is pound-for-pound the best sports team in the state, and this is a tremendous way to organize our team's talents for what has been and will continue to be the go-to spot for football coverage," Jeremy Speer, the Northern Michigan Review Sports Director said. Rayders rally from opening loss to finish 2-1

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 - jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix volleyball team might not be in midseason form just yet, but there's no denying the squad has grit.

After suffering a heartbreaking loss to rival Boyne City in five sets on its home floor to open Tuesday's first Lake Michigan Conference quad, the Rayders rallied to beat Kalkaska and Elk Rapids to finish the night at a solid 2-1.

Those victories included another five-set thriller with Elk Rapids, as Charlevoix overcame a two-set deficit (17-25, 19-25) to beat the Elks in the next two sets 25-20, 25-18 and rolling through the decisive fifth set 15-4 to end the night on a high note.

The Rayders also swept Kalkaska 25-23, 25-21, 25-9 in another impressive close-out performance.

Those two victories came on the heels of a tough loss to the Ramblers, as Charlevoix couldn't close out Boyne City despite a two set lead of their own after winning the first two sets 25-18 and 25-11.

The Ramblers took a hard-fought third set 25-23 to stay alive, then rode that momentum to a 25-19 fourth set victory as well before closing out the Rayders by a narrow 17-15 margin in the deciding fifth set.

Rather than let that loss break them, however, Charlevoix bounced back and learned from its defeat, excelling in both deciding sets against the Blazers and Elks.

"It was a long night in a lot of ways," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "To see them fight through everything and come back from two sets down to win that third match is really a testament to what this team can become."

GRAYLING — After qualifying for the state meet as an individual last year, it's no surprise seeing Petoskey's Grace Kelbel near the top of the leaderboard at the season-opening Grayling Invite on Monday.

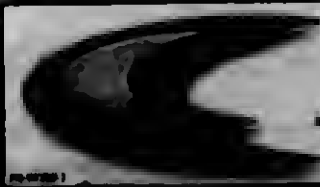

On the other hand, seeing Charlevoix, just three years into its existence as a program, near the top of the standing is a bit of a shock.

The Rayders showed how far they've come in a short span of time by opening the season with a round of 389, edging Harbor Springs' 390 to finish second behind defending Division 1 state champion Traverse City West and first overall among Division 3 and 4 teams at the event hosted by Grayling Country Club.

It's the first trophy of any kind for the Rayders in their three-year history as a program.

Rayders shine at season-opening Ryan Shay Invitational

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CENTRAL LAKE — Last season was a great one for Charlevoix's cross country teams, and with so many runners back, there was little doubt that the squads would pick up where they left off.

Those teams didn't disappoint in Saturday's season-opening Ryan Shay Memorial Invitational hosted by Central Lake, with the Charlevoix girls winning the Division 3 title and the Rayder boys taking second.

The Rayder girls dominated behind a strong day from returning all-stars Michelle Bollini, who won the race in 12:34.0, and Isabel Hess, who took third in 14:01.2.

Along with their top two, Charlevoix freshman Emma-line Peterson (fourth, 14:24) also placed in the top 5 for the Rayders and her addition should give Charlevoix a chance to improve on its 18th place finish at last year's D3 state final.

Katie Mousseau was sixth in 14:52.9, Hannah Solomon took eighth in 15:00.6, Kaitlin Schwenke took ninth in 15:01.0 and Rachel Nesburg finished in 12th with a 15:25.0 for the Rayders, who will look to the four returners to provide depth in challenging races against league foes T.C. St. Francis and Harbor Springs to come.

In the boys race, Charlevoix settled for second behind a strong Grant squad, but the Rayders showed the strength of their core, with returners Noah Carson (fourth, 11:11.2), Luke Buday (fifth, 11:24.2) and David Rlitter (seventh, 11:27.7) all earning top 10 finishes.

Charlevoix's Michella Bollini races in Saturday's Ryan Shay Invitational in Central Lake. Bollini brought home the Division 3 individual title in the race.

The addition of freshman Ben Lentz, who finished 11th in 12:38.0, gives the Rayders a formidable top four, and now the focus comes on developing a reliable fifth runner to give Charlevoix a shot at duplicating its top 10 finish at the Division 3 state final last season.

Several runners are contending for that honor, including juniors Caleb Kenwablise (19th, 13:00.7) and Camden Musilek (20th, 13:06.1), sophomore Braeden Richards (22nd, 13:28.9) and junior Joshua Carlson (14:00.4).

The Rayders will contend for the Lake Michigan Conference title once again, with its toughest competition coming from a Harbor Springs squad that rolled to the Division 4 title at the Ryan Shay meet and returns six of its top seven runners from a team that finished third in the state in Division 4 last season.

Boyer City travels to the Benzle Central Invite on Saturday for its next meet, and will be in action against all its Lake Michigan Conference foes but Traverse City St. Francis at East Jordan's annual Invitational on Sept. 3.

some front seven for Charlevoix, which also boasts one of the best secondaries in Northern Michigan.

Senior Brad Klinger intercepted seven passes as a free safety last year to lead the squad, and talented safety Jared McLean and cornerback Cam Alden also bring experience to the position, with senior Oliver DeYoung rounding out the decorated unit.

"In Brad, Jared and Cam we've got three guys who've been starting since the playoff game against Negaunee in 2014, and they've experienced just about everything," Bindi said. "Oliver is actually the least experienced of the four, but he's still seen plenty of action in the secondary and has had a great summer."

Malcom Williams is the team's leading returning tackler and will move between defensive line and linebacker as a pass-rushing threat, with Tyler McCallum also returning to action at linebacker as well.

Offensively, the Rayders have the weapons to take advantage of their improved line, starting with McLean, who averaged 10 yards a carry and rushed for 674 yards and seven touchdowns in just five games of action last season.

Williams will provide another weapon out of the backfield after a strong season last year, giving Charlevoix a potent one-two punch.

At quarterback, Klinger takes over for graduated senior Forrest Noirot after spending last year as one of the Rayders' top receivers. DeYoung, Alden and Jordan Chernauckas will be Klinger's targets of choice in the passing game, with junior Garrett Seese taking over for leading receiver Austin Putman at tight end.

Staying healthy will be key for the Rayders this season, as McLean, Klinger and Williams all missed time with injuries last season and neither McLean or Klinger played in the 22-20 loss to Harbor Springs in the final game of 2015 that knocked Charlevoix out of playoff contention.

Avoiding a similar fate this year was Charlevoix's number one goal this offseason, with players spending significant time in the weight room trying to get stronger and build durability.

"After I got hurt, I started re-playing the whole season leading up to my injury in my head," McLean said. "All the mistakes I made, all the things I could have done better and how I could have avoided getting hurt, I spent a lot of time reflecting on everything."

"That allowed me to develop a plan for this offseason to make sure it doesn't happen again, and I've been focused on that."

The path to the playoffs will be tough for Charlevoix in a new conference. The Rayders open with tough nonconference contests on the road against Elk Rapids and Boyne City that will set the table for the season to come.

Matchups with Maple City Glen Lake in Week 5, Onkama in Week 7 and Frankfort in Week 8 loom large for the Rayders' playoff hopes as well as its quest for its first conference title since 2000.

Pistons finish strong to claim CCIJA team title

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association's team league concluded with a thrilling finish on Aug. 14 at the Belvedere Golf Course.

With all four teams entering the event with a chance to win the title, the Pistons eked out two close match wins to secure the crown over the Sharks, Yanks and Sox.

The Pistons, made up of Tyler Ostrum, Austin DeYoung, Jack Kita and Ben Penfield, finished with eight points, beating out the Sharks' seven for the title.

The Yanks finished with five points, and the Sox with four.

standings, schedules and content I was interested, but this aggregates all of that information into a good-looking format. A good football team has speed, style and substance, and this site delivers it all."

The website will focus on its core group of teams, which include Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Gaylord, Harbor Springs, Inland Lakes, Johannesburg-Lewiston, Petoskey and Gaylord St. Mary.

Each team will feature their own individual page, containing everything a fan could want.

"The website is something that will change the way other mid-size news organizations look at their local sports coverage," Digital Media Leader Matt Wenzel said. "I think it is that big of a deal."

Along with an already strong print section, the site will offer a digital aspect where fans are just a click, a touch or a tap away from all of the news and updates on their team.

The website will also feature weekly video previews and in-season All-Area and Player of the Year race updates, along with up to the minute updates on league races for the Big North Conference and Northern Michigan Football League.

"The creativity and talent of our team — Petoskey sports editor Drew Kochanny, Gaylord sports editor Brandon Folsom, Petoskey sports writer James Gensterblum, Petoskey sports intern Evan Sasela and digital media leader Matt Wenzel — will be evident throughout our digital and print products this fall," added Speer.

Links to the Petoskey News-Review Sports and Herald Times Sports Facebook pages, as well as Twitter accounts, will also be available.

Statewide scores will also be posted Saturday mornings for those keeping track of the statewide playoff race.

The site will launch this Wednesday, Aug. 24, just in time for the start of the 2016 season and Thursday's season opener for area teams.

"Our newspapers have arguably one of the best sports teams in the state," added Wenzel.

"My goal was to take the excellent coverage and translate that to a digital product worthy of the brand and I think we are on our way. It's something that the entire organization can be proud of."

And just another reason to be eager for some football.

Rayders start the season 1-1 with win over Buckley, loss to T.C. West

EVAN SACHLA

CHARLEVOIX - The first game of a new season gives coaches a chance to gauge where their team is at heading into the long season.

Charlevoix boys' soccer head coach Jonathan Boss made sure to do that by scheduling a game-one matchup with Division I-power Traverse City West.

The Rayders fell to TC West 5-1 on Friday night at Charlevoix High School. Dalton Michael scored four goals to lead the Titans.

Charlevoix made it a game in the first half, highlighted by a Titans' penalty kick stopped by goalkeeper Jacob Harrod.

Ten minutes in, the Titans' Dalton Michael received a pass from his brother Donovan and beat Harrod to put TC West up 1-0.

The Rayders came back to tie it. Christian Matye scored a header from Kevin Pearl to tie the game at 1-1 and stop the clock with 12:26 left in the half.

"Christian is going to be our offensive leader and Kevin is our defensive leader," Boss said. "They're the two big guys on our team. We play a lot through them and really expect a lot out of them. It was good to see them get that connection the first game of the year."

With the score tied at 1-1 at halftime, the Titans blew the game open with the help of Dalton Michael. He scored three straight goals off assists from Ethan Vandertmolen, Alex Gioshen and Donovan Michael. Dalton donned a yellow penny and sat on the bench for half of the second half with a 4-1 lead, courtesy of him.

TC West head coach Matt Griesinger said adjustments to his midfield helped create a stronger unit in the second half, but said he was impressed with the play of Dalton. "He did well to vary his runs," Griesinger said. "The fact that he can add that other dimension, and not just be that one-dimensional run and had three-to-four runs that he can make, made him dangerous."

Mitchell Hebblewhite capped the scoring with 16:25 left off an assist from Cobe Lund to give TC West a 5-1 advantage.

"Traverse City is an extremely talented, very fast team," Boss said. "They move the ball well and they control the ball well. They have a few players on their team that can work well with each other. They're a really good team. It was a challenge for us but they came out on top and they deserved it. They outplayed us in the second half."

Boss said he was pleased with the Rayders' ability to push and move the ball in the first half, but added they tired out as the game progressed.

"We looked good out there but then the second half came around and being the beginning of the season a lot of guys aren't in as good as shape as what we need to be," he said. "We had a few goals scored on us and then we kind of let down a little bit. We just need to work on keeping the pace and intensity of the entire half, no matter what happens."

Like Boss, Griesinger wanted to have a marquee matchup in his team's first game, and embraced playing Charlevoix.

"The big thing with the first game for me was I wanted to make sure we found a side that was going to be organized," Griesinger said. "This is a storied program and an organized program. They know how to win. This was a quality opponent and a quality game that you've got to have in your first matchup."

Charlevoix 2, Buckley 0
CHARLEVOIX — Two games into the season, the Charlevoix soccer team is still working on finding its form.

The Rayders haven't hit their stride offensively yet, but Charlevoix did enough to pick up its first win on Tuesday, beating visiting Buckley 2-0.

Up against a Charlevoix squad loaded with attacking talent, the Bears played to the strength of their team, their tall, athletic back line, and packed the box, looking to keep the ball out of the net and punish Charlevoix on the counterattack.

The Rayders didn't fall for Buckley's gameplan, limiting them to just a couple of low-percentage chances offensively, but Charlevoix struggled at times to crack the Bears' defensive shell and generate scoring of their own.

"It's a style we're going to see a lot of this year, and we're going to have to learn to handle it," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "We've got the tools to attack defenses like that, and we just need to keep improving our execution."

Although it wasn't Charlevoix's cleanest game, the Rayders were able to get enough done offensively to seal the victory.

Freshman Blaise Snabes scored an unassisted goal, the first of his varsity career, in the first half to break a scoreless tie and give Charlevoix a critical 1-0 edge.

That lead forced Buckley to be more aggressive offensively, and the Rayders took advantage of that opening early in the second half, as Graham Kroon fed Christian Matye who sniped in a goal from outside the 18 and over the goalkeeper's outstretched hand for a goal that gave Charlevoix an unassailable 2-0 lead.

Jacob Harrod and Collin Turkleson combined to earn the win for Charlevoix in the net, handling the few shots that came their way.

"Jacob and Collin combined for a shutout, and that's always a good night, no matter what," Boss said. "They didn't see a lot of action but they both stayed focused and did a good job of paying attention to their positioning and making the right decisions throughout the game, which is important."

Now 1-1 on the season, Charlevoix hosts Boyne City on Thursday to open Lake Michigan Conference play.

The Rayders are the defending LMC champions, and they know that every conference match is crucial to bringing home a repeat title.

"We want to keep working on our possession and just keep getting better as the season rolls on," Boss said. "Right now, we're still working on getting back in sync with each other, and we just have to keep working hard and grinding and that connection will come."

VOLLEYBALL

Freshman Elise Stuck led the Rayders with an impressive offensive performance, tallying 32 kills, 35 digs, 13 aces and six blocks, and senior Becca Moon also had a standout night, adding 16 kills, 24 digs and 15 aces while also leading the team with 71 assists.

Beth Veenstra chipped in 16 kills, 23 digs and four aces, Kenzy O'Leary added 22 assists, 13 kills and 22 digs, and Ellie Louisselle tied for the team lead with six blocks.

Defensively, Julia Doskoch led the Rayders with 51 digs and fellow back row players Kelsey Crandell-Marfuta and Ali Jarema each chipped in 33 and 29 digs, respectively.

Now 6-3, the Rayders are off until next Monday, when it travels to Kalkaska for the second LMC quad.

Pellston Invite

PELLSTON — Charlevoix's volleyball team kicked off the season with a solid start on Saturday, advancing out of pool play at the Pellston Invite.

In an event that included Class B Chebyogan and defending Ski Valley champion Onaway, the Rayders advanced out of their morning pool in first place, and made it through another series of pool play matches to reach the seven-team tournament.

Charlevoix opened the day with wins over the Red Devils (25-22, 25-11) and Hornets (26-24, 20-25, 15-10) in pool play, advancing to the Gold pool in the second round of pools.

There, the Rayders continued their hot streak with a 25-19, 25-17 win over Inland Lakes before falling to Kingsley (17-25, 17-25) to take second in the pool.

That was good enough for the Rayders to reach the bracket, where Charlevoix beat Pellston again 25-17, 17-25, 16-14 to advance to the semifinals before coming up short against Onaway, 10-25, 22-25 to finish tied with Inland Lakes for third place overall.

Senior Becca Moon finished with 35 assists, 15 kills, nine aces and 23 digs to earn all-tournament team honors for Charlevoix on the day, while freshman Elise Stuck had a big debut on the varsity with 32 kills, three blocks, 22 digs and eight aces.

"Becca played very well today, made good decisions as a setter and we'd like to find more ways to get her involved as a hitter at the net," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "Elise is a very balanced player and matched up really well with Becca as a setter/hitter combination."

Beth Veenstra also had a big day for the Rayders with 22 kills, 10 aces, four blocks and 28 digs, Nichole Hart added 10 kills, seven blocks, five aces and 12 digs, and Kelsey Crandell-Marfuta was the team's defensive leader with 46 digs, six aces and one kill.

Charlevoix (4-2) hosts a Lake Michigan Conference quad on Tuesday with Boyne City, Elk Rapids and Kalkaska for its next action, while Pellston (3-3) heads to Cadillac on Thursday for a tournament.

GOLF

"I'm just thrilled by the way the girls played today, and to lift our first trophy is exciting," Charlevoix coach Jennifer Sell said. "For the last two weeks, we've been focusing on our short game and really nailing down our putting, and it paid huge dividends in our players' scores today."

West rolled to the title with a score of 309, putting all six golfers in the top 10. State runner-up Anika Dy led the Titans with a round of 65 to earn medalist honors.

Junior Abbey Scholten carded a career-best round of 87 to finish ninth overall and lead the Rayders, and senior Emily Sabsook added a 95 as well.

Rylynn Sladek shot a 101 and Olivia Jealke a 106 to round out Charlevoix's scoring golfers, and Jane Kelly added a 108 and Annie Joy a 111 as well.

"Emily and Jane spent the summer playing in the Traverse City Junior Golf league, and I think that tournament experience has helped both their games," Sell said. "We've emphasized playing smart golf and playing the course instead of letting the course play you, and I saw our players take that to heart and respond to adversity well today."

When it started the program in 2014, Charlevoix often finished a hundred or more strokes behind Harbor Springs and Petoskey, who finished fourth with a round of 402.

Sell credits the hard work of her players for turning that score around as fast as the Rayders have.

"They've shown a willingness to work hard and really make an effort at the areas we're trying to get them to improve on," Sell said. "Our focus on the short game and being as efficient as possible really helped our players improve their scores quickly, and they put in a lot of time at the driving range working on hitting their tee shots straight and keeping the ball in play."

Charlevoix travels to Mistwood Golf Club on Wednesday to play in the T.C. West Invite for its next match.

WHAT IS THE IMPORTANCE OF CHAR-EM UNITED WAY AND ITS WORK IN THE COMMUNITY?

"I have been involved with United Way personally and through the Frey Foundation for more than 40 years. The thing that it involves really is an extension of the community giving that used to be done by churches. It's about taking care of the underserved population group. I have been part of the United Way donor base and got involved significantly. For the past 6 of 7 years, there has been a rebirth of United Way in Northern Michigan, and it has done a phenomenal job of recycling itself amid challenging economic conditions. The Char-Em United Way is probably one of the most progressive nonprofits that is working on its role to make the community better."

CHARLEVOIX — The results of the August primary election for Hayes Township trustee did not change Wednesday, following a recount requested by a candidate who lost by a lot draw.

Bob Jess finished in third place after a recount panel hand-counted the ballots between him and Paul Hoadley, which after the nearly three-hour process the tie was broken with Hoadley gaining two votes and Jess one vote to bring the total to 155-154 for the two Republican primary candidates.

Hoadley was pleased with the results of the recount, but said the trustee race remains a close one.

"Obviously we prevailed in the lot draw and recount, but November will tell the final count in this process," Hoadley said.

Hoadley will join first-timer Matt Cunningham on the Republican ticket in November. Cunningham received 183 votes in the August primary election.

They will join Democrat contender Jim Rudolph on the ballot.

The process began with Charlevoix County Board of Canvassers validating the seal on the ballot bag. After the seal was validated the seal was broken and the ballots removed from the bag to be counted. From there the ballots were sorted and counted.

Residents voice aircraft noise concerns

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Don Exelby and Del Terrill brought up the issue of aircraft noise affecting the residents of Charlevoix during the airport advisory committee meeting on Aug. 22.

Airport-related problems are nothing new in city affairs but as far as Charlevoix goes, the problem of overnight flight noise is on the increase, according to residents in the city's 3rd Ward.

Exelby requests the advisory committee come up with some type of information that explains the noise issue to operators at the airport more clearly than what the city currently has in place.

"We need something to say noise abatement policy and noise abatement problem," Exelby said. "There should be a procedure that includes an interface between the community and the airport management. There is no interface that the public can go to express (this). I have been totally frustrated dealing with management at this airport when fielding noise complaints."

Advisory committee members have been working with staff to come up with a type of policy and procedure, but have been unhappy with the results, said committee chairman Ken Tough.

"The current information informing airport operators about noise concerns is unprofessional and inadequate," Tough said. "Residents need to know we are hearing their concerns and are searching for a solution that works for everyone."

Airport manager Liz Myer informed residents during the advisory committee that the airport is open 24 hours per day and that 99 percent of those flying in are residents of Charlevoix.

"If we were to have a curfew for plane landings then do you tell homeowners they cannot land before 7 a.m.?" Myer said.

City hires auditing firm to review EMS expenses

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix officials said Tuesday they have hired the Rehmann Group, a financial consulting firm, to perform an independent review of the city's EMS department.

The Rehmann Group has been the city's independent auditors for many years and has knowledge of the city's current financial practices, said city manager Mark Heydlauff in a statement on Tuesday.

"They conduct their work independently and I am confident they will help clear this matter up," Heydlauff said.

In a recent analysis of public employee salaries, it was determined that the city's EMS director Bob Roloff makes more than any other city employee, including Heydlauff, who is the city's top official. In 2015, Roloff earned $105,000. His base annual salary at the time was $55,000. An additional $50,283 came from frequently working on-call shifts and holidays, as well as other payments.

Roloff said he has trouble filling other shifts, so whether it is during the day, late at night, on weekends or on holidays he often has to work them himself. As a result, his average pay is significantly more than East Jordan EMS director Jay Peck, who makes an annual salary of $60,500, Emmet County EMS director Larry Hansen, who makes an annual salary of $63,000, and John Lamont, Boyne City's EMS director, who is paid an annual salary of $57,296. All three of Roloff's counterparts said they do not receive on-call pay for their extra time at work.

The current investigation should not be a reflection of the work performed by the city's EMS department and other first responders, Heydlauff said.

"Our EMS staff and all of our first responders are dedicated men and women who sacrifice time with their families to keep us safe 24 hours a day, seven days a week, every day of the Committee wants to spur private hangar construction

LONNIE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — The proposed construction of a new hangar at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport from a private developer has some wanting to change lease terms for such developments to spur more construction.

During the Airport Advisory Committee meeting on Aug. 22, member Scott Woody suggested the city look at allowing private developers ownership of the constructed hangar.

Ownership of hangars built by private investors reverts to the city after a number of years. The airport advisory committee suggested the city change the practice to allow private hangar builders to keep their investment and lease the land from the city to spur hangar construction and city revenue at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

New exhibit exploring Paul Bunyan legends to open at Charlevoix Circle of Arts

SEAN MILLER
(231) 439-9378
smiller4@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Starting Friday, a new exhibit titled Myths of the Northwoods will open at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts exploring the legends of Paul Bunyan and other lumberjacks.

This exhibit was presented to Gail DeMeyere, the executive director of the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, by James Milostan, one of the contributing artists for the exhibit.

"I think this is just an intriguing exhibit to bring to the Circle of Arts," DeMeyere said.

Through the work of Milostan and four other artists including Mary Fortuna, Matthew Hanna, Meredith Krell, and Fred Ward, the legends and stories are brought to life through their different ways of interpreting them through their different artistic mediums.

According to the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, timber tales of Paul Bunyan began as oral anecdotes in the woods of the lake states. The first attempt to compile these tales from the oral tradition were often vulgar, full of technical language and were too esoteric for the general public. As stories were passed on they were either retained or altered to create the lumberjack myth into conventional literature.

Paul Bunyan became a legendary icon of campfire stories and roadside sculptures. Even local artist Clayton Smith created a Paul Bunyan and Blue Ox tableau for his Nostalgia Museum just south of Charlevoix, which DeMeyere says makes her, and others, reminisce on their childhood.

"I think as a kid you drive around Northern Michigan and you see the Paul Bunyan and Babe the Blue Ox statues which was always an appeal to Milostan, and he never lost that. He has held onto it and portrays that through his work and this exhibit," she said.

DeMeyere continued saying that she thinks the artwork coming in is considered folk art with a primitive feel to it but that it still deeply portrays the folklore and legends of the Great Lakes region.

"I think the nature of it is very topical for this area too. For the show we will have a mix of mediums including sculptures, chainsaw carved planks of wood, and more. All the pieces are not totally defined. There is even an installation piece that requires electricity," she said.

Myths of the Northwoods opens 5-7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 2, with an opening reception which all of the contributing artists will be attending.

"This will be a good time to talk with them and to get to know their work better. It is an interesting group of people and the show draws on the artists and history. It is one of those shows that people can bring back to their childhood from stories or roadside attractions," DeMeyere said.

Myths of the Northwoods will remain up after the opening reception at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts until Friday, Nov. 4.

For more information about the upcoming exhibit visit www.charlevoixcircleofarts.com. The Charlevoix Circle of Arts is located at 109 Clinton Street in Charlevoix.

BASES to celebrate National Recovery Month in Charlevoix

LOREN ALLEN
(231) 547-6558
lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — BASES Recovery Center and Recovery Advocates of Northwest Lower Michigan are joining with Charlevoix community partners to celebrate National Recovery Month.

Marked every September, National Recovery Month is a reminder that treatment for substance use disorder and mental health services are effective, and people do recover and can go on to live healthy and rewarding lives.

"Recovery Month is for celebrating the achievements made by people in recovery, just as we would celebrate someone's improvement in a physical health condition," said Scott Kelly, BASES executive director. "Many people with addiction problems struggle for years in silence. Through effective treatment and support from friends and loved ones, they do recover and enjoy a more productive and enriching life."

In 2013, drug overdose was the leading cause of injury death in the United States, the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reports.

In 2013, substance abuse within Michigan was higher than the national average. Roughly 8 percent of the state population is abusing illicit substances, which is 1 percent higher than the national average, according to the report.

Statistics and other data do not always shine a light on the positive outcomes of those who are in recovery, Kelly said.

"We all have the potential to make a difference and spread the message that recovery is possible," Kelly said.

There are millions of Americans whose lives have been transformed through recovery. Since these successes often go unnoticed, Recovery Month provides a way for everyone to celebrate their accomplishments, he added.

Now in its 26th year, Recovery Month shines a light on those who have reclaimed their lives, offers hope to those still struggling and honors those providing treatment and recovery services, which make recovery possible.

"Our goal is to help recovering people share a positive message about their recovery," Kelly said. "We are not asking people to break anonymity. We are looking to help people define what recovery means in life."

There will be one event each week in Charlevoix to highlight National Recovery Month. The first event kicks off at 9 a.m. on Friday, Sept. 9, at BASES, 208 W. Lincoln St., in Charlevoix, with "Our Stories Have Power." This workshop will provide training for people to learn how to share their message of recovery with friends, family and in all parts of their life.

At 10 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 17, at Odmark Pavilion in East Park, the 2016 Recovery Walk and Picnic will take place. The walk and picnic is for anyone who supports recovery and costs $10, which includes lunch and a T-shirt. Participants will walk from East Park to Ferry Beach, where lunch will be provided along with other activities.

The movie "Grace" will be shown at 11 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 24, at Cinema 111 in Charlevoix. The full-length award-winning motion picture stars Annika Marks. She gives a realistic, believable, and moving performance of someone suffering with alcohol addiction, according to movie reviews.

"This is a free movie for all," Kelly said.

"We also will have a Q and A with the film producer Cindy Joy Goggins after the showing. This is a very good movie for those who are in recovery."

Recovery month wraps up in Charlevoix with a Community Listening Forum at 9 a.m. on Wednesday Sept. 28, at BASES. The format will feature speakers sharing their responses to audience questions to help formulate solutions to roadblock issues surrounding recovery identified by those in the recovery community.

"There are multiple pathways to recovery," Kelly said. "These events will show that prevention works, treatment is effective and people do recover. Let's celebrate recovery by bringing the community together."

Easement Committee announces public information sessions

The Charlevoix Conservation Easement Committee will host a series of public information sessions from 5:30-7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 15, and from 7-8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 27, at the Charlevoix Public Library to encourage citizens to vote yes on a conservation easement in November.

"As a few supporters have pointed out, it's popular to support and protect our parks," John Campbell said. "There are a lot of myths out there that Mount McSaubia is already protected by the Charlevoix City Charter and that just isn't the case. The Charlevoix City Council is leaving the directive in our voting hands and we have a solemn responsibility to do the right thing."

More people signed the petition, to get the conservation easement on the November ballot, than was needed because some people believe that these deeded gifts to the city must be preserved for future generations. The Charlevoix Easement Protection Committee has established a fund for expenses and already has some generous patrons.

"Our goal is $20,000 in donations," Campbell said. "We know it's a lot of money to get proper legal advice and then some money to help educate the public that their land needs their help in November."

The Charlevoix Conservation Easement Committee is working to save two areas — the Lake Michigan Beach Park that was deeded in 1882 to the city and the Mount McSaubia Recreation Area that was officially deeded in 1988. Both are on the shores of Lake Michigan and provide more than just recreation. From wooded areas, sand dunes, nature trails and vistas, visitors enjoy the peacefulness and beauty.

"The public has a right to the facts and a right to vote on our future," Campbell said. "Come out to any of our meetings and you will see that the people of Charlevoix care about our parks and open space."

Contributions can be made to the Charlevoix Conservation Easement Committee — no donation is too small. Checks can be made out and mailed to the Charlevoix Conservation Easement Committee at Charlevoix State Bank c/o Linda Whitley, 111 State St., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Working as a lake monitor

Several times each summer, on sunny, quiet mornings, I'll take the cover off my little utility boat, load my science kit aboard, pull the starter rope on the four-cylinder Mercury and head out to a spot mid-way between Evergreen Pointe and Olds Point in the west basin of Lake Charlevoix to test the water.

When I do this, I'm continuing a practice that was begun more than 20 years ago by Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. The goal is to gather baseline data on the health of Lake Charlevoix. Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council is now monitoring three different sites on Lake Charlevoix and has monitors like myself at work on most of the lakes in northern lower Michigan.

My testing kit, which I store in a rectangular plastic bucket, consists of a Secchi disk, a 100' measuring tape on a reel, an old coffee can with a handle fashioned from what looks like an old coat hanger in which a one-quart plastic bottle with a hole in the screw-top cap is embedded in concrete, a one-pint plastic bottle with an intact screw-top cap, a thermometer on a string and a clipboard with data sheet and carpenter's pencil clasped to its face.

ON GUARD

Lake Charlevoix Association

I motor out to my spot, make notes about the weather, record the air temperature and then tie the thermometer to one of my stern lines and put it over the side to take the water temperature. I hook the Secchi disk to the measuring tape, lower it into the lake until it disappears from view and record the depth where it just goes out of sight. I attach the coffee-can apparatus to the tape, slowly lower it to twice the depth I recorded for the disk and bring it slowly back up to the surface. The hole in the top of the collecting bottle slowly emits a string of bubbles as water enters the bottle;

the idea is to have it just be reaching a state of fullness as I bring it back to the surface. Once surfaced, I transfer 1 pint of the collected water to the smaller bottle, retrieve the thermometer, crank up the engine and head back to my dock to finish the task.

At home in the basement, I set out my sampling equipment and run 240 cc's of the collected water through special filters which collect the particles which were suspended in the water column. These filters get placed in a test tube, labeled, wrapped in aluminum foil and stored in my freezer until the collection season is over at the end of August, when I deliver them, along with my data sheet, to Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council headquarters in Petoskey. The whole operation takes about an hour and produces a sense of satisfaction which lasts for days.

Tom Darnton is a member of the Lake Charlevoix Association and each month a member of the association will submit a Lake Charlevoix Association column that is intended to educate and inform residents about the watershed. For more information, visit lakecharlevoix.org.

Guiding kids during the school year

Lush green foliage on the edge of turning, humming cicadas, and cooler nights ... summer is starting to fade away, making its descent into the waiting arms of fall, which means back to school for most children.

I am not a parent who rejoices when my kids are back to school, but I don't mind getting back to our school year routine of bedtimes, specially packed school lunches and hearing the playground tales over an after school snack.

There is a viral video circulating of a mom crying after dropping her son off at kindergarten, agonizing about how he will ever survive being at school without her. "His teacher doesn't know he needs 15 kisses every 45 seconds," she laments, as she contemplates going back to get him from school.

We can all relate. As parents, we worry, that comes with the territory. We do our best to make decisions that will help our kids be as happy, healthy, well-rounded, confident and successful as possible. It is the most important thing we will ever do in our lives, and it's something, dear neighbors, if you have learned anything at all about me by now, that I take very seriously.

When our children are with us, we can watch, listen, observe and react to whatever is happening around us. When our kids are at school, we lose that vantage point, and only get to see the results of their day when they choose to share.

It's not the teachers or the school—I love Charlevoix Elementary and cannot say enough positive things about our experiences there. Teachers can't see and hear everything that takes place each day, nor can they be expected to. It's all part of the social aspect that going to school provides. Even with all of the public and media focus on anti-bullying, it's still happening. The very best thing we can do for all children is simply talk them.

Encourage your kids to talk about their day, friends, victories and struggles. We have to be our children's advocate, and they need to know they have capable adults who stand behind them and will not discount what they say because they are a kid.

Our kids will all be the winners and the losers, the fastest and the slowest, the bully and the bullied. It's up to us to help teach, guide, encourage, console, support and discipline our kids. They all will make their mistakes, but we can't turn a blind eye to when they may victimize another child. Growing up has its challenges for everyone, and it's our job to help guide our kids through those rough waters.

What do you and your families do to prepare for the beginning of the school year, dear neighbors? How does your family take the time to talk about your day together? Share your stories with me on Facebook or Instagram.

Bringing the past into the future

LOOKING BACK...

It's that time of year again when school looms on the near horizon for Charlevoix's younger generation. By 1893-94, the town's school population had increased so much that some classes had to be held in the village hall on the corner of Antrim and State streets. So two elementary schools were put up to relieve the congestion in 1895, the Washington School on the corner of Burns Street and Petoskey Avenue, now the site of Barron & Engstrom Attorneys at Law, and the Lincoln School on East Garfield where Dr. Brian Kwaplsz has his dental practice. They were one-story, two room buildings, mirror image twins of one another. One housed grades one and two, the other grades three and four. Pictured are the Lin-

Kate and I moved to Charlevoix in the fall of 2014 after I accepted a job as district executive for the Boy Scouts of America. Tasked with finding a home central to the five county district I serve, we ended up finding a great seasonal rental on Cedar Street in the Mount McSaubu/North Point area. This city was everything we could imagine as the neighborhood was beyond our wildest dreams, though the home extended our means.

The trails of North Point served as the perfect backdrop that first winter, welcoming us with an Eagle Scout project sign that served as an all too coincidental symbol of the love we would soon hold for this community. Next to hold our attention that winter was the chalet, the house that brings the magic of Christmas alive, putting smiles on all those who should happen across it as Mount McSaubu towers over all.

The occasional winter surfer was yet another example of the random wonder that fills this area. Finally, the frozen fortress of ice lining the lake was our last bit of exploration that winter. The beautiful blue broken chunks sparkling in front of our eyes like sapphires, calling out to be photographed for all the world to see.

As winter broke and spring began to bloom the beachfront unveiled itself, breathing forth a second wind that would firmly cement this neighborhood as our place of peace. We started to explore more and more as warmer weather took hold.

Walking the trails as they slice through the woods, bringing our dog Dali to swim, and climbing the mountain to witness the spectacular sunset that will forever be burned into our mind's eye, all moments in this wonderful journey that I hope to never forget. The spring, as it does, brought renewal but also a major life change as a completely new objective was set before us.

The summer season quickly took shape and we were forced with a task foreign to both of us; finding a permanent home in Charlevoix where we could begin to let our dreams take root. It was a venture filled with both promise and sorrow. Pulling us away from the place that had so very quickly morphed from seasonal rental to home. A new hope; however, was on the horizon.

The McSaubu area became our happy place. The place to relax, catch a breath, tan, hike, view another amazing sunset over Lake Michigan, and so much more. A place where you can not only see, but feel the majesty of this community. It is a shining example of the potential held within Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Munson-Charlevoix Primary Care welcomes 2 new physicians

CHARLEVOIX — The staff at Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Primary Care (formerly Pine River Medical Associates) welcomes Benjamin J. Edwards, MD, and Chris A. Loewen, MD, to its medical staff.

"The need for additional primary care providers has been an ongoing challenge throughout Northern Michigan," said Lyn Jenks, CEO of Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital. "We are thrilled to add Dr. Edwards and Dr. Loewen to our growing medical staff and welcome them to Charlevoix. With our hospital and local clinics growing and expanding, we are proud to be able to continue to offer the high quality, compassionate health care that our patients expect and deserve."

Dr. Benjamin Edwards is a graduate of Michigan State University. He completed medical school at Michigan State University College of Human Medicine and a residency at Mountain Area Health Education Center in Asheville, North Carolina. Having spent two years living in Traverse City while attending MSU's College of Human Medicine, Edwards and his wife, Emily, fell in love with the Northern Michigan. They are excited to be making their home in Charlevoix, where Emily Edwards will teach second grade at Charlevoix Elementary School.

Dr. Benjamin Edwards

Dr. Chris Loewen is a graduate of Brandon

Dr. Chris Loewen

University in Manitoba, Canada, and completed his internship at Ross University School of Medicine in Dominica. Moving to Grand Rapids for his residency at Grand Rapids Medical Education Partners wasn't his first introduction to Michigan. His wife of 11 years, Cristina, grew up in Traverse City where her family still resides.

Dr. and Mrs. Loewen and their children (two boys and two girls, ages 1, 3, 5 and 7) have made their home just north of Charlevoix.

Both doctors say what drew them to Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital was the small town atmosphere within the framework of a larger health care system. They believe that patients are able to benefit from access to a wider range of specialties than would normally be offered at a small hospital.

Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Primary Care will be home to both Dr. Edwards and Dr. Loewen, who are taking new patients. They are passionate about getting to know and care for the entire family. Helping families live healthy lives is something that inspires both of them and they are excited about joining an already thriving team of providers.

Medicine drop off scheduled for Boyne City

BOYNE CITY — To help citizens properly dispose of unwanted or expired medicines, there is an upcoming prescription and over-the-counter drug drop-off collection in Boyne City on Saturday, Sept. 10.

Residents can drop off unwanted medications and personal care products at the Boyne City Road Commission garage, just east of Boyne City Public School football field, from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on Sept. 10. This collection event is held in conjunction with the Charlevoix County Household Hazardous Waste event.

Improper disposal of unwanted and expired medicine can pose a significant danger to our Northern Michigan's waters, community, and families. The best solution is to dispose of old and expired medications through Northern Michigan's Prescription and Over-the-Counter Drug Drop-off program.

"Properly disposing of unused medicines at the upcoming POD collection event reduces the risk that prescriptions will be mishandled and end up on the street, prevents avoidable poisoning of both children and adults and prevents contamination of water resources," said Jennifer McKay, policy director, Tip of the Mitt

Watershed Council. "This is an environmentally-safe, convenient and free way to dispose of your unwanted and expired medications."

Residents are encouraged to drop off prescription medicines and over-the-counter pharmaceuticals. Pills, liquids, ointments, lotions, and even pet medications are all accepted. It is requested that residents keep the medicines in the original container for easy identification of the medicine but erase or black out all personal information from the prescription bottles.

The service is made possible through cooperation of Boyne City Police Department; Charlevoix County Conservation District; Charlevoix County Road Commission; HARBOR, Inc.; Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians; and the Health Department of Northwest Michigan.

Those who are unable to attend the collection event on Sept. 10, may utilize permanent POD drop boxes located at law enforcement agencies throughout Northern Michigan for proper disposal.

For more information or the locations of the POD boxes, visit www.PillsInThePOD.com.

I attach the coffee-can apparatus to the tape, slowly lower it to twice the depth I recorded for the disk and bring it slowly back up to the surface. The hole in the top of the collecting bottle slowly emits a string of bubbles as water enters the bottle;

the idea is to have it just be reaching a state of fullness as I bring it back to the surface. Once surfaced, I transfer 1 pint of the collected water to the smaller bottle, retrieve the thermometer, crank up the engine and head back to my dock to finish the task.

At home in the basement, I set out my sampling equipment and run 240 cc's of the collected water through special filters which collect the particles which were suspended in the water column. These filters get placed in a test tube, labeled, wrapped in aluminum foil and stored in my freezer until the collection season is over at the end of August, when I deliver them, along with my data sheet, to Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council headquarters in Petoskey. The whole operation takes about an hour and produces a sense of satisfaction which lasts for days.

Guiding kids during the school year

Lush green foliage on the edge of turning, humming cicadas, and cooler nights... summer is starting to fade away, making its descent into the waiting arms of fall, which means back to school for most children.

I am not a parent who rejoices when my kids are back to school, but I don't mind getting back to our school year routine of bedtimes, specially packed school lunches and hearing the playground tales over an after school snack.

There is a viral video circulating of a mom crying after dropping her son off at kindergarten, agonizing about how he will ever survive being at school without her. "His teacher doesn't know he needs 15 kisses every 45 seconds," she laments, as she contemplates going back to get him from school.

We can all relate. As parents, we worry, that comes with the territory. We do our best to make decisions that will help our kids be as happy, healthy, well-rounded, confident and successful as possible. It is the most important thing we will ever do in our lives, and it's something, dear neighbors, if you have learned anything at all about me by now, that I take very seriously.

When our children are with us, we can watch, listen, observe and react to whatever is happening around us. When our kids are at school, we lose that vantage point, and only get to find out the story of their day they choose to share.

It's not the teachers or the school—I love Charlevoix Elementary and cannot say enough positive things about our experiences there. Teachers can't see and hear everything that takes place each day, nor can they be expected to. It's all part of the social aspect that going to school provides. Even with all of the public and media focus on anti-bullying, it's still happening. The very best thing we can do for all children is simply talk them.

Encourage your kids to talk about their day, friends, victories and struggles. We have to be our children's advocate, and they need to know they have capable adults who stand behind them and will not discount what they say because they are a kid.

Our kids will all be the winners and the losers, the fastest and the slowest, the bully and the bullied. It's up to us to help teach, guide, encourage, console, support and discipline our kids. They all will make their mistakes, but we can't turn a blind eye to when they may victimize another child. Growing up has its challenges for everyone, and it's our job to help guide our kids through those rough waters.

What do you and your families do to prepare for the beginning of the school year, dear neighbors? How does your family take the time to talk about your day together? Share your stories with me on Facebook or Instagram.

CHARLEVOIX
HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Building our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

It's that time of year again when school looms on the near horizon for Charlevoix's younger generation. By 1893-94, the town's school population had increased so much that some classes had to be held in the village hall on the corner of Antrim and State streets. So two elementary schools were put up to relieve the congestion. In 1895, the Washington School on the corner of Burns Street and Petoskey Avenue, now the site of Barron & Engstrom Attorneys at Law, and the Lincoln School on East Garfield where Dr. Brian Kwaplsz has his dental practice. They were one-story, two room buildings, mirror image twins of one another. One housed grades one and two, the other grades three and four. Pictured are the Lin-

Kate and I moved to Charlevoix in the fall of 2014 after I accepted a job as district executive for the Boy Scouts of America. Tasked with finding a home central to the five county district I serve, we ended up finding a great seasonal rental on Cedar Street in the Mount McSaub/North Point area. This city was everything we could imagine as the neighborhood was beyond our wildest dreams, though the home extended our means.

The trails of North Point served as the perfect backdrop that first winter, welcoming us with an Eagle Scout project sign that served as an all too coincidental symbol of the love we would soon hold for this community. Next to hold our attention that winter was the chalet, the house that brings the magic of Christmas alive, putting smiles on all those who should happen across it as Mount McSaub towers over all.

The occasional winter surfer was yet another example of the random wonder that fills this area. Finally, the frozen fortress of ice lining the lake was our last bit of exploration that winter. The beautiful blue broken chunks sparkling in front of our eyes like sapphires, calling out to be photographed for all the world to see.

As winter broke and spring began to bloom the beach front unveiled itself, breathing forth a second wind that would firmly cement this neighborhood as our place of peace. We started to explore more and more as warmer weather took hold.

Walking the trails as they slice through the woods, bringing our dog Dall to swim, and climbing the mountain to witness the spectacular sunsets that will forever be burned into our mind's eye, all moments in this wonderful journey that I hope to never forget. The spring, as it does, brought renewal but also a major life change as a completely new objective was set before us.

The summer season quickly took shape and we were forced with a task foreign to both of us; finding a permanent home in Charlevoix where we could begin to let our dreams take root. It was a venture filled with both promise and sorrow. Pulling us away from the place that had so very quickly morphed from seasonal rental to home. A new hope; however, was on the horizon.

The McSaub area became our happy place. The place to relax, catch a breath, tan, hike, view another amazing sunset over Lake Michigan, and so much more. A place where you can not only see, but feel the majesty of this community. It is a shining example of the potential held within Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Munson-Charlevoix Primary Care welcomes 2 new physicians

CHARLEVOIX — The staff at Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Primary Care (formerly Pine River Medical Associates) welcomes Benjamin J. Edwards, MD, and Chris A. Loewen, MD, to its medical staff.

"The need for additional primary care providers has been an ongoing challenge throughout Northern Michigan," said Lyn Jenks, CEO of Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital. "We are thrilled to add Dr. Edwards and Dr. Loewen to our growing medical staff and welcome them to Charlevoix. With our hospital and local clinics growing and expanding, we are proud to be able to continue to offer the high quality, compassionate health care that our patients expect and deserve."

Dr. Benjamin Edwards is a graduate of Michigan State University. He completed medical school at Michigan State University College of Human Medicine and a residency at Mountain Area Health Education Center in Asheville, North Carolina. Having spent two years living in Traverse City while attending MSU's College of Human Medicine, Edwards and his wife, Emily, fell in love with the Northern Michigan. They are excited to be making their home in Charlevoix, where Emily Edwards will teach second grade at Charlevoix Elementary School.

University in Manitoba, Canada, and completed his internship at Ross University School of Medicine in Dominica. Moving to Grand Rapids for his residency at Grand Rapids Medical Education Partners wasn't his first introduction to Michigan. His wife of 11 years, Cristina, grew up in Traverse City where her family still resides.

Dr. and Mrs. Loewen and their children (two boys and two girls, ages 1, 3, 5 and 7) have made their home just north of Charlevoix.

Both doctors say what drew them to Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital was the small town atmosphere within the framework of a larger health care system. They believe that patients are able to benefit from access to a wider range of specialties than would normally be offered at a small hospital.

Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Primary Care will be home to both Dr. Edwards and Dr. Loewen, who are taking new patients. They are passionate about getting to know and care for the entire family. Helping families live healthy lives is something that inspires both of them and they are excited about joining an already thriving team of providers.

Medicine drop off scheduled for Boyne City

BOYNE CITY — To help citizens properly dispose of unwanted or expired medicines, there is an upcoming prescription and over-the-counter drug drop-off collection in Boyne City on Saturday, Sept. 10.

Residents can drop off unwanted medications and personal care products at the Boyne City Road Commission garage, just east of Boyne City Public School football field, from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on Sept. 10. This collection event is held in conjunction with the Charlevoix County Household Hazardous Waste event.

Improper disposal of unwanted and expired medicine can pose a significant danger to our Northern Michigan's waters, community, and families. The best solution is to dispose of old and expired medications through Northern Michigan's Prescription and Over-the-Counter Drug Drop-off program.

"Properly disposing of unused medicines at the upcoming POD collection event reduces the risk that prescriptions will be mishandled and end up on the street, prevents avoidable poisoning of both children and adults and prevents contamination of water resources," said Jennifer McKay, policy director, Tip of the Mitt

Watershed Council. "This is an environmentally safe, convenient and free way to dispose of your unwanted and expired medications."

Residents are encouraged to drop off prescription medicines and over-the-counter pharmaceuticals. Pills, liquids, ointments, lotions, and even pet medications are all accepted. It is requested that residents keep the medicines in the original container for easy identification of the medicine but erase or black out all personal information from the prescription bottles.

The service is made possible through cooperation of Boyne City Police Department; Charlevoix County Conservation District; Charlevoix County Road Commission; HARBOR, Inc.; Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians; and the Health Department of Northwest Michigan.

Those who are unable to attend the collection event on Sept. 10, may utilize permanent POD drop boxes located at law enforcement agencies throughout Northern Michigan for proper disposal.

For more information or the locations of the POD boxes, visit www.PillsInThePOD.com.

Tobacco use discouraged by public health officials

As students head back to school, public health officials encourage parents and health care providers to talk to kids about tobacco use and to remind kids that spit tobacco and e-cigarettes are not a safe alternative to smoking cigarettes. Providing a tobacco-free example and home environment also can help to protect kids from tobacco use and secondhand smoke exposure.

According to the recent Youth Risk Behavior Survey, 11.8 percent of Michigan high school students currently smoke cigarettes, 6.9 percent use smokeless tobacco, and 10.7 percent smoked cigars. Each year 8,100 Michigan kids under age 18 become new, daily smokers, and 213,000 children alive today in Michigan will eventually die from tobacco-related disease, according to health officials.

In addition, e-cigarette use among U.S. middle and high school students is on the rise. In 2015, 16 percent of U.S. high school students and more than 5 percent of U.S. middle school students reported using e-cigarettes in the past 30 days.

Youth are sensitive to nicotine and can feel dependent earlier than adults. Nearly nine-out-of-10 smokers start smoking by age 18, and because of nicotine addiction, about three-out-of-four teen smokers end up smoking into adulthood, even if they intend to quit after a few years.

"Although we have made significant progress in protecting our youth from tobacco-related health harms, we still have a long way to go," said Erika Van Dam, director of community health at the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "Far too many of our children are still using tobacco and are being exposed to the health harms caused by secondhand smoke. It is essential that we address e-cigarette use among young people, and do everything we can to prevent youth tobacco use, which can lead to a lifetime of addiction to a deadly product."

For young people who have already begun to use tobacco and want to quit, the Michigan Tobacco Quitline provides services for Michigan youth of any age. Young people can call the Quitline at (800) 784-8669 or (800) QUIT-NOW and receive free telephone counseling to help them quit tobacco. In addition, the Quitline offers a free text messaging program and a self-guided online program to help youth quit tobacco. The Smokefree Teen website available at teen.smokefree.gov/ provides tools to help young people quit.

For additional information regarding preventing youth tobacco use, contact Katie Joyce, family and community health nurse at the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, at (231) 350-2064.

New publication supports Lake Charlevoix watershed

Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council and the Lake Charlevoix Watershed Advisory Committee announced a new publication. The "Lake Charlevoix Homeowner's Guide: Simple, Practical and Water-Friendly Ways to Protect Lake Charlevoix." is now available for distribution.

This free, 21-page publication features information about the Lake Charlevoix Watershed and introduces homeowners to some of the low-impact development, or green infrastructure, techniques they can implement at home to protect their local watershed. These techniques are intended to reduce the impacts of residential stormwater runoff and erosion on nearby surface waters. They include rain gardens, greenbelts and permeable pavers to name a few.

"We are pleased to make this resource available to residents of the Lake Charlevoix Watershed," said Jennifer Buchanan, restoration ecologist at the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. "We believe shoreline residents, in particular, will find the information valuable to their efforts to protect Lake Charlevoix."

Funding for this publication was generously provided by Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

If you are interested in obtaining a copy of this new publication, feel free to stop by the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council's office, located at 426 Bay St., Petoskey or call the office at (231) 347-1181.

Candy Winn describes her friend, Veronica Ramos, as her best friend. They love doing things together, and these days that includes shopping, hiking, biking and other fun outdoor activities. Weight loss surgery dramatically changed both of their lives.

Veronica had her surgery first. As Candy watched her mother's sleep apnea vanish and her life improve in every way, she decided it was right for her, too. "It's the hardest thing you will ever do, but it's the most life-changing and rewarding decision you will make," she said.

Before weight loss surgery, Candy rarely ventured outside. Now, she's looking forward to her first 10K race with her mom this summer.

It all began by attending a bariatric seminar. Are you ready for a change?

Farmers Market profile: Mike's Mustard more than a job

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Mike Washburn left a manufacturing job to work in food service at Charlevoix Public Schools becoming the food service director, but his latest endeavor came as a surprise.

FYI

Even to him.

"Who'd have thought it would come to this?" I remember Jim and Beth Hater asking me," Washburn said of his burgeoning mustard business.

Hater was Washburn's boss at Charlevoix Manufacturing in 1976, the year that Washburn, tweaked a mustard recipe his mother Betty, then a Petoskey News-Review writer, had cut out of the paper, and stirred some up for himself.

He started taking in samples of his mustard along with dipping pretzels to the guys in the machine shop and was encouraged to keep making more, which he did.

Washburn left Charlevoix Manufacturing in 2002 and joined the support staff at Charlevoix Public Schools.

"At first I was a 'lunch lady,'" he said. "Then, in 2009 I became their food service director."

When he founded "Mike's Mustard" in 2004, he viewed mustard making as a summer job, selling his product at farmer's markets. That all changed as his mustard's popularity grew. Washburn encourages his customers to share recipes and serving ideas for his mustards so that he and his followers can enjoy and share them.

Today he cooks up four varieties of the original tweaked recipe in his commercial kitchen at home, sells at five farmer's markets, supplies his product to eight local supermarkets and specialty stores, can be found at one down state location, and has an on-line option for mustard lovers. Washburn and his wife Brenda, juggle schedules to keep up with the demand, Brenda doing the bookwork and accessorizing his farmer's market booth. Mike operating out of the kitchen in the lower level of his home in Charlevoix.

Overheard by a customer at last week's Charlevoix Farmer's Market where Washburn was selling gift sets of his mustards: original, cherry, lemon dill and jalapeno as well as individual jars. "This is going to be a 'Mike's Mustard Christmas.'" Not a bad idea.

Farmers Market profile: Farmer's Daughter carries on mouth-watering tradition

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — The Farmer's Daughter representing Interwater Farms in Williamsburg bring their fresh fruit to the farmer's markets in Boyne City, Petoskey, Traverse City and Charlevoix each week.

The 800-acre farm near Elk Rapids grows cherries, peaches and apples seasonally and right now is bagging fragrant, succulent peaches for their customers. Apples will soon follow and apple connoisseurs are awaiting the farm's Sweet Tango crop. Interwater Farms is one of only a few Sweet Tango producers in the area. Following upon the Honey Crisp craze, Sweet Tangos rival that variety in popularity for sweetness and crispness. The farm also produces the Honey Crisp along with Macintosh, Brookfield, Gala and Red Cortlands.

Jo Ann Brown represents the third generation of farmers at Interwater Farms. She and her four brothers are all part of the Interwater Farms family which began with her grandfather Vernon White, and continued with her father, Jack White.

market, but have an enterprise of their own. The two set up their own stand at the Grand Traverse Commons on Mondays during the summer where Sage sells her homemade pesto made from the herbs and garlic she grows in her garden, and Leland, his jams that he makes with JoAnn's mother, Barbara.

For Sage farming is not so much hard work, but just part of everyday living, she said.

"(Farming) always been part of my life," Sage said.

Her favorite farm fruit?

"Sweet Tango apples," she replied with only a moment's hesitation.

Class No. 3 is China, Friend or Foe, on Sept. 29, facilitated by Mark Gaylord of Petoskey. Gaylord holds a PhD in Sociology and is a Fulbright Scholar. In addition his credentials include: Peace Corps volunteer, professor and author. Gaylord lived and taught in Hong Kong for 14 years.

Class No. 4 Turkiye, the real Turkey, on Oct. 19, with Volkan Yildirim, an international student from Northwestern Michigan College. Yildirim will give us a look at all aspects of Turkish culture.

All classes begin at 1 p.m. and will run approximately 90 minutes. If one signs up for Class No. 1 or Class No. 2, one is signing up for the entire series. The library will provide a Great Decisions briefing book published by the Foreign Policy Association as its resource along with updates using PBS video segments. Briefing books are available upon registration. There is no charge for these

Myer came up with the 99 percent resident landings statement.

"I would like you to support that 99 percent statement," Terrill said. "That is a false statement. You prove that to us. That is not a factually true statement."

Most of the aircraft landings causing the noise complaints are people not coming to Charlevoix, but heading north toward Bay Harbor or other communities, Terrill said. "We have to work on legitimate facts," Terrill said.

Terrill has put together a community petition to come up with a voluntary curfew at the airport.

"I would like to see some action on this petition before you," Terrill said.

Tough suggested the committee benchmark with other airports with information provided by Terrill and Exelby about the airport noise.

"We will not have an overnight solution to this issue, but we will keep it a priority with this committee," Tough said.

The existing lease agreement includes a reversion clause — after 25 years, ownership of hangars built by private investors reverts to the city. Woody said removing that clause would allow developers to be in charge of their investment, and give them the ability to recoup some of that money if they sell their plane.

"If we provide a lease that keeps the hangar their property and set up a renewal after 10 years or so with the option of first rights to the city if the owner sells we may create an environment for private hangar construction," Woody said.

If and when a change is made that would allow people to build private hangars and maintain them privately in perpetuity while perpetually leasing the ground to where those building stand the city could increase airport revenue," said city manager Mark Heydlauff.

"Currently after a period of years, hangars built privately revert back to city ownership and city maintenance in perpetuity," Heydlauff said. "Changing lease terms to what the committee suggests, in theory, could reduce the city's long-term costs on hangar maintenance and provide greater incentive for people to build hangars on our airport. Hangar leasing is one of the primary ways the city can make money at the airport."

Hangar construction has been an ongoing topic at Airport Advisory Committee meetings throughout the year. Each month the committee has requested information about possible construction from airport manager Liz Myer, who kept informing members she was waiting on an airspace study from the Federal Aviation Administration to make sure new construction meets the requirements and guidelines for the FAA.

Kermit Sutton recently requested permission to construct a 90-by-80-foot aircraft hangar at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport in the vicinity of the current mid-field hangars, which was approved by the FAA and airport consultant

RS&H not object to the current plan, Myer said.

Erect-A-Tube will construct Sutton's hangar. The expenses that relate to the building of the hangar, which include site work, utilities, paving, and construction of the proposed hangar, will be at Sutton's expense.

Sutton also will obtain all zoning and building permits and is required to provide the city proof of liability insurance and workers compensation insurance from the builder.

Committee members are pleased about Sutton's plan to build a new hangar, but expressed displeasure Myer did not come to them before bringing the proposal to Charlevoix City Council.

"Each month we have requested updates about possible hangar construction and the airport manager produced nothing," said committee chairman Ken Tough. "We wanted to help advise future hangar construction to bring the best result forward for all stakeholders."

Myer informed committee members she was working with city staff on the process and didn't think it would be an issue to move forward.

"If there was a problem I felt staff would have informed me," Myer said.

said the extra votes were found because the ballot-casters possibly checked the oval next to the candidate instead of filling in the circle as directed.

"The ballot machine didn't recognize the check," Browe said.

Three recount team members and three members of the Charlevoix County canvassing board joined Browe in the chambers. A half-dozen residents watched the process, including Jess and Loadley.

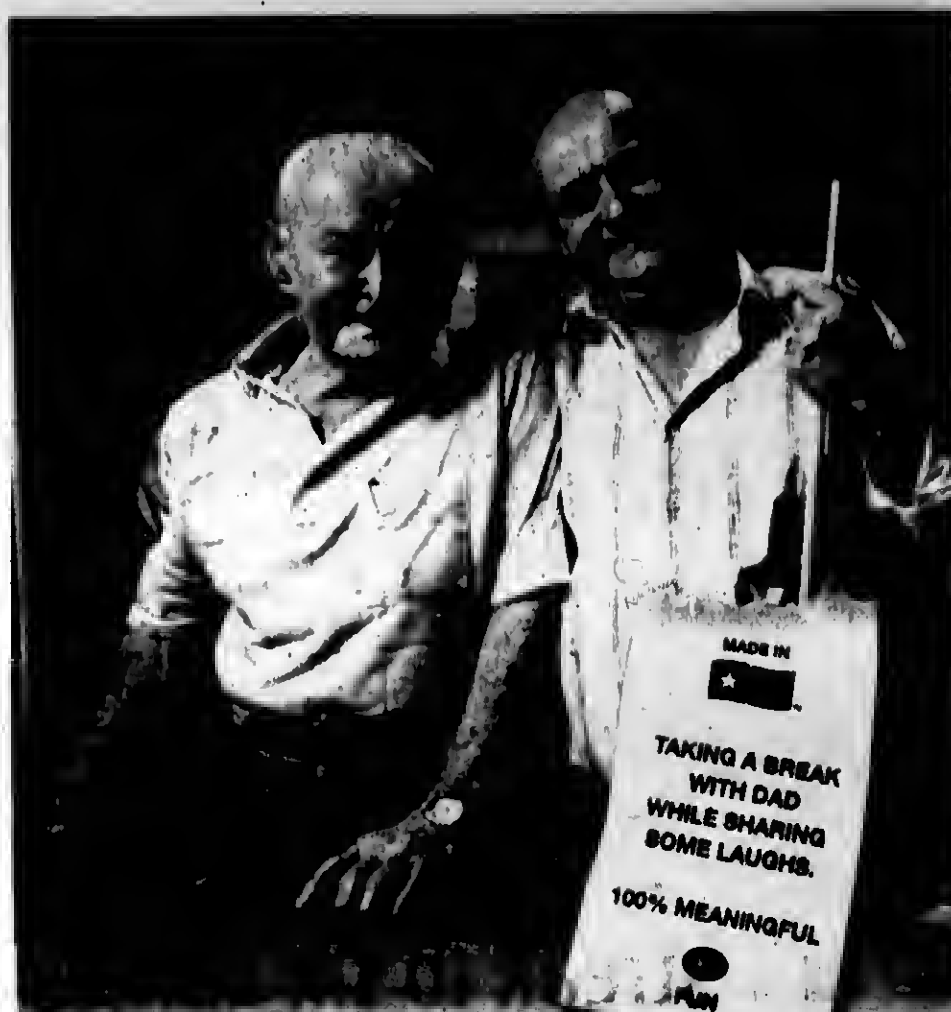

After the recount ended and the results were announced, Jess said he plans to run in November as a write-in candidate. He said he commends the recount team on their "thorough and fair" work.

"I want to thank everyone for their efforts in this democratic process," Jess said.

ELK RAPIDS — There aren't many better feelings on the football field than the rush you get after sacking the quarterback.

"It's hype," Charlevoix defensive tackle Joe McCraney said. "On the defensive line, we're not a playmaker position the way linebackers and defensive backs are, so when we get the chance to do something that makes an impact, it fires us up and it fires everyone else up as well."

McCraney and his fellow defensive linemen, seniors Caleb Hart and Malcom Williams and junior Ray Cunningham, got to experience that high a lot on Friday, as the front four finished with seven sacks in Charlevoix's 45-13 road win over Elk Rapids to open the 2016 season.

True to the unit's goal every game, the Rayders had a party in the Elk Rapids backfield, keying a defensive unit that held the Elks' spread attack scoreless until late in the third quarter when, up 33-0, Charlevoix started moving players around and subbing extensively.

Williams finished with three sacks on the night and Hart, Cunningham and Mc-

"(Elk Rapids) is in the situation we were last year, breaking in a lot of new guys on the line, and on our side we're blessed with some ex-

MAPLE CITY — The Charlevoix boys soccer didn't let any momentum from a big weekend go to waste on the road on Tuesday.

Jumping out to a 4-0 advantage at halftime and taking a 7-0 lead in the second half, the Rayders beat host Maple City Glen Lake to run its unbeaten streak to six games.

"Everything's starting to click, and you can see our players are more comfortable on the field with each other," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "The first couple of games are always a little rough, because you've got guys figuring out how to play with each other and getting in sync with each other, but we've moved past that stage and everything seems to be flowing well."

Senior Christian Matye scored three times in the first half for the Rayders, bringing his team-leading total to nine for the season, and Nick Bradley added two goals and assisted on two more.

Kevin Pearl opened Charlevoix's scoring early in the first half with a goal, assisted by Bradley, and then Matye netted the next three, with assists by Blaise Snabes, Danny Nesburg and Nate Pearl.

Nesburg also assisted on one of Bradley's second-half battles and making plays up front."

That level of execution is something the Rayder defense has been working toward all summer, McCraney said.

"We've got Coach Prokop who played in college as a lineman coaching us, and he's drilled us on all sorts of techniques, from using our leverage to moves to get off blocks," McCraney said. "Everything he's taught us paid off tonight and helped us make plays."

The Rayders' speed off the edge also made a big impact on special teams, as Charlevoix blocked two punts, one less than a minute into the game that led to a one yard touchdown run by Williams for the Rayders' first points, and another that Oliver DeYoung returned for a touchdown late in the first half.

Along with a blocked extra point, those plays helped Charlevoix turn a strong early start into a decisive margin of victory by halftime.

Offensively, with short fields created by the defense and special teams, Charlevoix didn't have as much chance to shine, but the Rayders showed impressive execution nonetheless.

Williams rushed for 97 yards on 13 carries and added three touchdowns, including scores of 26 and 32 yards in the second half to go with his one yard score to start the game.

In his first start at quarterback, Brad Klinger finished an efficient 9 of 12 for 154 yards, completing a 13 yard touchdown pass to Jared McLean and a 32 yard score to Aiden to finish with two touchdowns through the air, and also showed his athleticism on a 38 yard touchdown run.

ders leading receiver, catching four passes for 87 yards, and McLean caught four passes as well for 41 yard to go with 30 yards on six carries on the ground and an interception defensively.

"I was really happy with our execution tonight offensively, because we were able to establish the run and then take advantage of the opportunities that opened up in the passing game, which is what we're shooting for," Bindi said. "We've still got some things to work on and correct, especially up front, but this was a solid foundation for the rest of the season."

Charlevoix (1-0) has some momentum heading into a huge week two game with archrival Boyne City, but have a tough test ahead of them to get to 2-0 on the road.

"We know it's not going to be like tonight, and we're going to have to be prepared for a much more physical game against a team that's going to be bigger than us," Bindi said. "The most important thing for our squad is we can't get caught up in tonight's victory and let it take away from our focus on next week.

"We've got to put this one out of our minds by Sunday and hit the field with our thoughts completely on our next opponent and being as prepared as possible for next Thursday."

Registration open for flag football season

CHARLEVOIX — Fall means football season, and that means Charlevoix's annual flag football program for first through fourth graders is about to get underway.

The first practice is on September 7, 2016 at the Carpenter Street Ball Fields, and teams will participate in four games, on September 14, 21, 28 and October 5.

Children in the league will also have the opportunity to participate in a flag football game at half-time of Charlevoix's varsity football game against Frankfort on October 14.

To register for flag football, please visit the recreation department's website at charlevoix.recreation.com. The total cost for the program is $25 and all registration must be completed by Sept. 7 to be eligible to participate.

All questions about the flag football program should be directed to the Recreation Department at 231-547-3253, or recreation director Tom Kirinovic at tomk@cityofcharlevoix.org.

goals, as did Noah Carson, and Snabes added a goal to his assist as well.

"We got everybody into the game tonight and were able to get our whole bench a lot of quality minutes, which was great to see," Boss said. "It was nice to see us take the momentum we earned from playing well in the Petoskey Invite this weekend and keep it rolling."

Charlevoix is 4-1-2 overall, 1-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference, but its one loss and both ties have come against Division 1 opponents.

The Rayders take on Kalkaska on Thursday, looking to build off a win to open conference play over Boyne City last week and stay atop the standings as Charlevoix chases a repeat LMC title.

"We're approaching it the same way we do every conference game, that it's an important one and one we have to bring our best effort for," Boss said. "We're going to continue to work on our possession and on chaining together passes on the ground to control the field and set up opportunities."

Petoskey Invite
PETOSKEY — The annual Petoskey Soccer

Charlevoix's Christian Matye (left) celebrates a goal as his teammates rush in to congratulate him during the Rayders opener.

Invitational has always been a showcase of some of the best soccer talent in the state of Michigan, regardless of class.

That was once again on display this year, when six teams from across the state impressed, including the Northmen and one other area program looking to become a state-wide contender.

Along with host Petoskey, Charlevoix put on an impressive display of soccer against Class A and B programs, as the smallest school by over 350 students on Saturday at the Click Road Soccer Complex.

The Rayders came away with a 1-0-2 record on the day, showcasing why many see the Rayders as a potential state competitor in Class C.

"Our guys played out of their minds," Charlevoix coach John Boss said. "We really played well. We picked up where we left off at the end of last year when we played Western Michigan Christian. We knew it was going to be a tough weekend and our guys just came to play."

Charlevoix opened play on Saturday with a 1-1 tie against Stoney Creek, with Christian Matye scoring the lone goal of the game on a beautifully placed free kick from 40 yards out, followed by a fist pump from Matye himself.

"He put it right on frame and it was above the goalie's head, so he went up and got his hands on it, but we had someone in front of him that pressured him a bit and it went right in," added Boss on the goal.

In game two, the Rayders earned a 3-3 tie with Fraser, with Kevin Pearl getting in on all of the action offensively, while impressing against a program four times the size of Charlevoix.

Pearl opened the game with a goal, then assisted on scores by Graham Kroon and Blaise Snabes, which came off a header.

Charlevoix saved their best performance for last on Saturday, earning a 1-0 win over Notre Dame Prep.

Matye again picked up the lone goal, scoring off an assist from Snabes, while the defense did their part to earn the shutout.

"We knew we were going to be an underdog against the bigger schools, so to get out and play and be as successful as we are, we're definitely ecstatic with it," added Boss.

Charlevoix 5,
Boyne City 1

CHARLEVOIX — A couple days' hard work in practice paid off for the Charlevoix soccer team in its LMC opener against visiting Boyne City on Thursday, as the Rayders found their groove offensively in a 5-1 victory.

Five different players scored for the Rayders in their best offensive outing of the season, including freshman Blaise Snabes, who brought home his first varsity goal off an assist from senior Christian Matye.

Snabes was reported to the Courier as scoring his first goal against Buckley on Tuesday, but that goal was actually Matye's. The freshman didn't have to wait long to put one in the back of the net for real, though.

Matye added a goal shortly after, assisted by Noah Carson, bringing his team-leading total to four in three games, and Carson also scored a goal of his own, assisted by Nick Bradley.

Bradley also assisted on a goal scored by midfielder David Ritter, and Graham Kroon scored an unassisted goal as well as the Rayders put in more goals in this outing than their two previous matches combined.

"I thought we played really well offensively, and particularly in the second half," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said.

"We've been working in practice on spreading out the field, making better touches and getting more guys involved and it paid off tonight."

With a veteran lineup, the emergence of Snabes as a legitimate scoring threat up top figures to make Charlevoix even harder to defend as he keeps improving.

"We're excited about what Blaise has contributed so far and what he's going to do in the future," Boss said. "To crack the starting lineup on a team with this many returning players as a freshman is impressive, and he's someone who works hard and is really passionate about soccer."

"It's been great to see Christian as an experienced guy take Blaise under his wing and see the chemistry those two are already developing on the field, and that bodes well for us moving forward."

Runway closures begin next week

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Work on the first phase of Charlevoix Municipal Airport's million-dollar runway improvement project will begin earlier next week with the closure of runway 9-27.

The closure will begin Sept. 12 and 13 to prepare the runway for work that will officially commence on Sept. 14. This project will conclude on Sept. 29. The construction work is not expected to affect airline operations to Beaver Island. Air traffic will be diverted to the unpaved runway 4-22 during the closure of 9-27.

"A combination of asphalt overlay and partial reconstruction has been carefully phased to minimize the time Charlevoix's main runway is closed or shortened during improvement work," said David Joy, RS&H aviation and engineering consultant.

The $1.2 million project will rehabilitate runways and install a runway guidance system at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport, which includes

Funding OK to replace aging retaining wall

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — An aging retaining wall on Eaton Avenue will be replaced this year after the City Council approved a bid to complete the work by Dec. 1.

Earlier this year the City Council allocated $28,000 to remove the existing wood retaining wall on Eaton Avenue and replace it with a modular concrete block retaining wall system.

"It is a similar concept to what we have on State Street now," said Pat Elliott, Department of Public Works superintendent. "But it is a different scale because we're repaving much less earth with a much smaller block."

The wall will be a manufactured block produced in Charlevoix, Elliott said.

"It is preformed concrete block with a textured face on

Scam alert: Sheriff warns of bogus phone calls

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider is again warning area residents of an ongoing telephone scam that has his office has had several complaints about recently.

Schneider said the scam involves the caller portraying a grandchild in trouble and needing a cash bond.

"We have had two separate victims who sent large amount of funds or gift cards to pay for the bogus bond," Schneider said in a news release. "The fraudulent callers know how to upset citizens, especially senior citizens, with emergency situations or embarrassing situations such as accidents, arrests, etc. After they have played on the citizen's emotions, the caller will advise the amount of money it will take to help the family member, grandchild, etc."

Schneider said people who receive such a call should not give out any personal information over the telephone. Do not send funds of any kind without checking with local law enforcement.

CHARLEVOIX — Harwood Gold is a new cafe located in Charlevoix run by Amber and Phil Munday. Harwood Gold began on Parsons Farm in Charlevoix where the couple would sell their maple syrup products from their little shop located on the farm, they also would sell their products at local farmers markets.

However as demand increased and their product line grew it became clear that the business needed to expand.

"Having a store front in Charlevoix was always our vision," said Amber Munday.

So three weeks ago "they took the plunge" and opened up Harwood Gold cafe, taking the place of the old Muddick's

Paddling pals photo promotes Northern Michigan

AMIE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

Linda Linklater of Charlevoix and her friend, Brenda Korthauer, a Petoskey resident, had no idea that a photograph of the two women kayaking in Little Traverse Bay taken by Christina Rohn, a photographer for Lake Street Media shooting for the Petoskey Area Visitor's Bureau, would "go viral" five years later.

"We were just returning to the harbor next to Irish Boat Shop in Harbor Springs after kayaking in Little Traverse Bay when a photographer asked if she could take our picture. We had matching green kayaks at the time and were probably laughing and having fun. I guess she thought we looked cute," said Linklater.

"She had us sign a release right there in the boats, 'just in case they would ever use it for marketing purposes,'" she said. "We really didn't think much about it after that."

Then four years ago, in 2012, a photo of the kayakers along with the slogan "More summer smiles" appeared in a promotional Petoskeyarea.com advertisement in Parade Magazine in Kalamazoo.

"We were surprised and flattered when we saw it," Linklater said.

Thinking that they had achieved their one time claim to fame, the women continued sharing their 40-year-old friendship and 15-year-old kayaking summer recreation pastime. That was until last April, when their photo was spotted on a billboard leased by the Petoskey Area Visitor's Bureau on U.S. 131 North near Reed City.

Since then, the photo has been sighted in a variety of locations in four states by family, friends and acquaintances.

"People keep calling us to say that our paddling photo is on billboards, and posters and even buses," said Korthauer. "They send pictures to us. I guess you can say we're famous and infamous at the same time."

The photo has been used promotionally in publications including Midwest Living Magazine and AAA Magazine along with outdoor advertising locations in Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

"We're five years older now, but in the photo, we're forever young, at least from a distance," Korthauer said.

The reaction to the photo of Linklater and Korthauer is proof that good photography is timeless and petoskeyarea.com marketing is being noticed, according to Diane Dakins of the Petoskey Area Visitor's Bureau.

For Linklater, kayaking is a "relaxing and contemplative activity;" for Korthauer it is a "centering experience," to be out paddling on the lakes, enjoying the water at a slow pace and drinking the beauty in nature along the way. Their "to do" list of

"We are just into kayaking for the fun of it," Linklater said. "We have relatively inexpensive boats and have ventured with them to some beautiful locations including Munising, Cross Village, Wycamp Lake, Walloon, Charlevoix and Lake Michigan."

'The Diaries of Adam and Eve' closes at Charlevoix Circle of Arts

EMILY M. HENNINGER
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Circle of Arts reached the finale of "The Diaries of Adam and Eve," a tale made from the amalgamated parts of two stories written by Mark Twain that has been adapted into a show, presented by the Armchair Theatre at 109 Clinton St. in downtown Charlevoix.

What it lacked in costume and set design, it made up for in talent, and beautifully presented words and gestures, shown by the two seasoned, stage veterans, Adam (Hugh Hansen) and Eve (Desiree Kaiser).

Director Ruth Willis and Trent Kutsh stage manager/assistant director, showcased the two-act play, in an arena-type delivery. Their efforts highlighted the conflicts between married couples and their differing points of view.

"I never realized that the interpretation of events from the 1890s are the same as now," said Kutsh. "The views of men and women are definitely different. It's definitely about the creation. I think that both the actors have done an amazing job showing those differences."

The age old biblical tale was transformed, first by Mark Twain, then by the playwright David Blum who wrote the actual script.

"It was a great opportunity to present Mark Twain, and to stage it in an arena and to work with these two professional-level actors," Willis said. "It was difficult because of the range from Eden when they despised each other to The Fall when they loved each other."

The Armchair Theatre offers productions to the Charlevoix community throughout the year. For more information about Charlevoix Circle of the Arts events, call (231) 547-3554.

By the 'Light of the Silvery Moon'

An evening of a clear sky and full moon in Charlevoix can create memories that last a lifetime.

Whether you take a night walk in a wooded area or travel on water, the experience you might have is an awesome and soul lifting one.

The extra light at night creates an exciting event that will prove to be an unforgettable experience for any adventurer. If you have children they will be excited about taking a moonlight walk or a boat ride, which includes the thrill of staying up after their bedtime.

If your moonlight walk is in the forest — especially in the winter — you will be surprised that everything has a silvery shine that envelops your soul with soft whisper of awe that seems to include a touch of heaven. Furthermore, in the winter time there is the thrill of ice fishing on frozen Lake Charlevoix illuminated by the light of a full moon.

It also is a delight to listen to forest creatures and observe their movements because of the brilliant light. There are native stories about animals during a full moonlight running into each other with confusion because of the intense light and seagulls have been known to squawk all night.

Included in a silvery moonrise is the reflected moonlight trail floating on the waters of Lake Michigan that takes my breath away. To view this water event in Charlevoix people can walk on the beach and observe the beauty of the full moon or plan to travel by boat on Lake Michigan. It is awesome to be in a boat and follow the moonlight path on the lake.

In addition, it is the fisherman that should visit Charlevoix during a full moon and I have heard fish tales that this is a night to catch large-mouth bass. To find out more information about night fishing or fishing in particular asking our local fisherman who are often found at Pine River Channel near our picturesque lighthouse may be helpful.

On Nov. 14, 2016 the moon (super moon) will come closest to the earth (of the 21st Century) and the moon won't come this close again until the full moon of Nov. 25, 2034. This is a great time to observe a full moon in Charlevoix the Beautiful. If you plan to visit Charlevoix during a full moon check a lunar calendar for the full moons of the month on the internet or in the many almanacs available.

At the end of an evening of enjoying a full moon in Charlevoix you can peek out your bedroom window with drowsy eyes and say "Good-night Moon."

In Roloff's defense

Editor:
I was dismayed to read of the Charlevoix City Council's decision to have an outside entity look into EMS director Bob Roloff's pay. While everyone seems to state that "Bob does a great job," and nobody is saying "that anything is wrong," I want to rise to Bob's defense.

The article is quick to state that Mr. Roloff makes significantly more than his contemporaries, in actuality his base salary is lower than EMS personnel in surrounding communities. Your article states that East Jordan EMS director makes an annual salary of $60,500. Emmet County EMS director makes $63,000 and Boyne City's EMS director makes $57,296. Mr. Roloff's annual salary is $55,000. Did anyone on our council check the overtime and additional compensation for the surrounding communities? Has anyone looked at how many calls we have in relationship to those communities? How big is the Charlevoix EMS staff compared to the other communities?

These are answers that can easily be obtained without an investigation of an outside entity. Once we have those facts, next steps can be determined, if even needed.

I have had personal experience with Mr. Roloff in action. I am so thankful that he was there to care for me during a very serious and traumatic situation. In the face of an emergency, I believe that all Charlevoix citizens would be thrilled that we have such a dedicated, professional and caring individual overseeing our emergency services. The concern of our citizens and council should be how can we help Mr. Roloff find ways to fill the gaps in his support team, so that he doesn't have to work all of these hours. I am certain that he would be thrilled, not to mention much more rested.

It's up to us

Editor:
As students begin their school years and we approach the fall in our community, it is important for us to remember the impact of education in our homes, schools and communities. For decades, research has shown that when students participate in the arts as a part of their education, they go on to succeed in school, work and life.

Designated by Congress in 2010, the week beginning with the second Sunday in September is National Arts in Education Week, a national celebration of the transformative power of the arts in education. We are celebrating here in East Jordan, and would encourage all supporters of arts, culture, and education to join with us, as well as our elected officials and education leaders.

Recently, in Washington, D.C., the new Every Student Succeeds Act was signed into law — replacing the No Child Left Behind. This new bill fully supports the arts as part of every student's well-rounded education. It provides the flexibility for students to learn creatively and for local districts and states to create schools that embrace the arts. What we know is simple — students attend school more often when they have access to the arts, parents and families engage with the schools when schools embrace the arts, dropout rates decrease, grades increase — and the halls are filled with artwork, songs, drama and dancing.

And, I'm not alone in this belief. According to a recent public opinion poll, released in March, nine-out-of-10 Americans believe that the arts are essential to a student's well rounded education.

However, so often we see that access is not there in communities across our state and the country. In that same public opinion poll, 67 percent of Americans believed that there was not sufficient access to the arts for their students to reap the benefits. Additionally, there is study after study that indicate the opportunity gap in arts education, specifically along racial and socio-economic lines. We must stand together to fight for equity in access and delivery of arts education to the young people in our community our state, and the nation.

As we celebrate National Arts in Education Week, we should take pause to cheer for our accomplishments, but we should also remember the work we have to do. How can our district help provide equitable opportunities for all of our young people? How can we use the new law to create arts-rich schools? How can we support parents, families and the community and provide more opportunities for engagement? It's up to us — the arts education community — to take a stand and

LOOKING BACK...

The 101-foot Chequamegon excursion vessel was built in Manitowac, Wisconsin in 1903 and at first operated mainly out of Milwaukee into southern Lake Michigan and to Whitefish Point in Door County. She also was sent into Lake Superior for use in the Apostle Islands. The Ojibwe word means "place of shallow water," more specifically applied to sand bars, and was used to name a bay on Lake Superior. The boat was renamed the Pere Marquette 7 in 1911 when she changed ownership to be used mainly for the Lake Michigan summertime excursion business. Here the Chequamegon is shown entering our channel before the name change and before the lighthouse was transferred to the south pier in August of that year. The high metal trestle enabled the lighthouse keeper to gain access to the light without having to contend with waves washing over the pier in foul weather. The trestle also became a favored walking spot and promenade for residents and visitors alike. The Pere Marquette 7 was transformed into a tug and renamed the Robert C. Pringle in 1919. She sank on June 19, 1922 off Sheboygan, Wisconsin while towing a larger vessel. It is not known if the pictured entrance into Charlevoix's channel was the only time the once lovely Chequamegon entered our harbor.

Caldwell starts MPA board presidency early

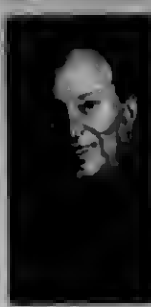

Doug Caldwell, Northern Michigan Review, Inc. president and publisher, a Michigan Press Association board member since 2010, stepped up to assume his impending board presidency a bit earlier.

Caldwell, the current Michigan Press Association board president-elect, took the reins of the Michigan Press Association presidency on Sept. 1. He replaced Joe Warner. His term will last through 2017.

Warner recently announced he is leaving the newspaper business to pursue other personal and professional interests.

"I'm looking forward to meeting with the other publishers. The board has set a plan in place that will help the transition with the departure of Joe, and I'll do my best to fulfill my role," said Caldwell.

Caldwell is excited about working with Michigan Press Association executive director Jim Tarrant. "Jim has taken a hold of the association with a strong leadership for Michigan newspapers. I feel very confident that when you meet Jim, publishers, editors and advertising directors will appreciate his contributions to the world of journalism."

"I'm looking forward to meeting with the other publishers. The board has set a plan in place that will help the transition."
Doug Caldwell

Caldwell oversees operations at the Petoskey News-Review, Gaylord Herald Times, Charlevoix Courier, as well as four Phone Guide operations, magazines and other special publications and the company's printing department.

Caldwell comes from an extensive newspaper background. His parents, Cliff and Millie, were owners of a pair of weekly newspapers in Illinois, and he cut his teeth in the reporting, advertising and composition departments.

He has been a publisher at a number of papers, including the Du Quoin (Illinois) Evening

Call, Marion (Illinois) Daily Republican, Rensselaer (Indiana) Republican, Columbia City (Indiana) Post and Mail, Ottumwa (Iowa) Courier, Somerset (Pennsylvania) Daily American and the Petoskey group. He was president and publisher in Somerset, in addition to the Michigan publications.

Caldwell has seen a lot of things change in the business during his career, but the mission of the local newspaper and association remains the same.

"The importance of local content and advertising that has value and matters to the people in our communities is the same for larger dailies and weekly papers. We are the watchdog, cheerleader, provider of important information and a historical document. It is vitally important that we keep local governments honest and transparent. As we work to provide a blend of print and digital, we will focus on our role as being the number one advocate for the citizens of Michigan."

Caldwell is married to Mary Ann and has three sons — Michael, of Omaha, Nebraska; Curtis, of Lewistown, Pennsylvania; and Colin, a junior at St. Michael Academy in Petoskey.

Veteran of the Month

Betty and Frank Joseph Strehl

Frank Joseph Strehl

The "Veteran of the Month" for September 2016 is Frank Joseph Strehl. Born on Feb. 1, 1920, in Mancelona, and as an infant moved with his family to East Jordan, where he attended school graduating in the class of 1936.

Strehl was inducted into the Army on Nov. 26, 1941 entering into active duty at Fort Custer, Michigan and was assigned to Company F, 12th Infantry Regiment, 4th Infantry Division. After training for the Normandy invasion and being promoted to Technical Sergeant and squad leader, Strehl's unit departed the U.S. on Jan. 18, 1944 arriving in the European Theater of Operations on Jan. 29, 1944 and was in the first wave of men to go ashore at Utah Beach, France participating in campaigns in Normandy, Northern France and the Rhineland. Wounded twice by shrapnel on June 15, 1944 and again on June 19, 1944, he recovered from his wounds and returned to his unit.

On Nov. 30, 1944, during movement near the Slegfried Line in Germany, Strehl stepped on a land mine taking off one foot and severely wounding the other foot. Departing the European Theater of Operations on Jan. 1, 1945 and arriving in the U.S. on Jan. 12, 1945, he was sent to Percy Jones Army Hospital in Battle Creek, where it was decided to amputate the other foot. It was at the hospital that Strehl met the love of his life, Betty Jo Clined from Jackson. They were married on Oct. 20, 1945.

Strehl received an Honorable Discharge on Dec. 2, 1945 at Percy Jones Hospital Center, at Fort Custer, and received the following decorations and citations: The Purple Heart with Two Oak Leaf Clusters; The Combat Infantryman Badge; The Good Conduct Medal; American Defense Service Ribbon; American Theater Ribbon; The Victory Medal; European African Middle Eastern Campaign Ribbon and Three Bronze Campaign Stars.

The couple returned to East Jordan to make their home and Strehl had learned watch making and repair through the Veteran Administration and had his small shop in Hites Drug Store in East Jordan, now known as Busy Bridge Antiques. Strehl was a member of Saint Joseph Catholic Church, American Legion Post No. 227, and VFW Post No. 7500 all in East Jordan.

He enjoyed hunting, fishing, snowmobiling and golf. He never let his disability slow him down. On April 4, 2011 Frank Joseph Strehl answered the final call and is being Honored by his wife Betty Jo, sister Margaret Turcott, cousin Bob Strehl and their families.

To honor a veteran, call (231) 588-0067 or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 between 9:30-8:30 p.m. The ceremony may be witnessed at 6:15 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month in front of The American Legion Post located on the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City.

BookTalkers releases fall schedule

CHARLEVOIX — As autumn approaches and BookTalkers, the Charlevoix Public Library's book discussion group, prepares for the upcoming book club discussions that will give locals an indoor option to escape the weather.

BookTalkers is a group of readers who like to read different books that may challenge or delight. They gather monthly for lively discussions led by adult services librarian Beth Strawbridge. The BookTalkers meet at 6 p.m. on the third Monday of each month. New members are always welcome.

The fall schedule is as follows:

Sept. 19: "H is for Hawk" involves Helen MacDonald's devastation over her father's sudden death. To help cope with her grief she turns to an unusual companion — a goshawk she names Mabel. An experienced falconer, Helen sets out to train Mabel and turns to a book written by T.H. White, author of "The Once and Future King," for guidance. Projecting herself "in the hawk's wild mind to tame her" tests the limits of MacDonald's humanity and changes her life. This memoir is three stories: Helen's struggle to overcome the paralysis of grief, a description of the craft of falconry, and her analysis of the tormented psyche of T. H. White.

Oct. 17: "Girl Waits with Gun" is about Kopp who has never quite fit in; she lives an isolated life on a New Jersey farm with her two sisters. In 1914, a crash between the Kopp sisters' horse and buggy and an automobile driven by arrogant factory owner Henry Kaufman begins a disturbing cycle of menacing behavior that causes Constance to face past secrets in order to save her family. Based on actual events, this historical mystery by Amy Stewart packs the unexpected, the unconventional and a serendipitous humor into every chapter.

Nov. 21: "Slaughterhouse" features Billy Pilgrim as he becomes unstuck in time after being abducted by aliens from the planet Tralfamadore. This classic novel by Kurt Vonnegut follows Pilgrim simultaneously through all phases of his life, concentrating on his (and Vonnegut's) shattering experience as an American prisoner of war who witnesses the firebombing of Dresden. Life Magazine called this "Splendid art.... A funny book at which you are not permitted to laugh, a sad book without tears."

Dec. 19: BookTalkers meets for a discussion of "Our Souls at Night" by Kent Haruf. For discussion questions, visit the book discussion page on the library's website: www.charlevoixlibrary.org/books-movies-music-book-discussions. For more information, call Strawbridge at (231) 237-7340.

Hill House artist residency applications being accepted

EAST JORDAN — Crosshatch's Hill House announced that artist residency program applications for the December 2016 through May 2017 are due Oct. 1.

The program supports musicians, writers, theater/ performance, visual artists, and parent artists as well. Artists who apply to the program will go through a jury process. Selected artists are awarded time and space to create new work, stay in a two- to four-week stay in a semi-secluded log cabin near East Jordan. The musician residency also offers a small stipend to emerging songwriters to aid in professional development.

The cabin is surrounded by forest and is within walking distance of the Jordan River. It includes a well-stocked kitchen (with locally sourced food when available), a selection of instruments and some basic recording gear. Artists are invited, but not required, to engage in community outreach through performance, readings and workshops with coordination and promotion help from Crosshatch. The Hill House artist residency accepts parent artists, artists who want to bring a pet, and allows artists from different disciplines to be in residence together. The only cost for an artist to participate in the Hill House residency program is a $25 application fee.

"My Crosshatch Hill House residency provided me an invaluable opportunity to work uninterrupted, connect with the land and deepen my own understanding of what it is to be an artist and human being," said Jeff Morris, one-half of Charming Disaster along with Ellie Binker, (musicians-in-residence, January 2016).

Crosshatch is a nonprofit organization based in Northern Michigan that builds strong communities through the intersections of art, farming, ecology and economy.

Craft beer fuels Michigan hops binge

JOSH BENDER
Capital News Service

LANSING — Michigan's hop industry has exploded into the nation's fourth-largest, according to a Michigan State University study.

Renewed hop production in the state began in response to a crop shortage elsewhere between 2007 and 2008 and to the growing popularity of Michigan's craft beer, said Rob Sirrine, a MSU Extension expert.

Michigan is home to between 60 and 90 commercial hop farms, Sirrine said.

Grand Traverse County grows close to 300 acres of hops, the most in the state, according to a June 2016 survey by MSU. Leelanau County is second, growing close to 150 acres, followed by Barry and Kent counties.

The number of craft breweries in Michigan increased from 105 in 2011 to 205 in 2015, according to the Brewers Association, a national organization. Michigan has the sixth-most craft breweries and produces the 10th-most craft beer of any state.

Michigan has gone from growing roughly 10 acres of hop plants in 2008 to 900 acres in 2016, said Sean Trowbridge, a hop farmer from Atlas Township, near Flint, and secretary of Hop Growers of Michigan.

Sirrine said that while Michigan farmers planted about 900 acres, only about 650 acres will be mature enough to harvest this year.

"Michigan is leading the charge outside the Pacific Northwest," he said. Washington, Oregon and Idaho combine to grow 90 percent of American hop.

Hop adds bitterness to balance the sweetness of the malt used to make beer and is a natural preservative, said Steve Berthel, head pub brewer at the New Holland Brewery in Holland.

Michigan's geography and topography help make it a great place for hop farming, Berthel said.

It shares its location between the 42nd and 45th parallel with central Europe, England and the Czech Republic, where hop has grown for centuries.

The state's sandy soil and long stretches of daylight are also good for hop farming.

And growing it within the state is good for the state's new breweries.

"Hop from overseas or even in Yakima in Washington state are going to dry out during the shipping process," Berthel said. "Michigan hops are fresher and that makes for better tasting beer."

Michigan's climate and soil separate it from other hop hotbeds further west, he said. "Our beer isn't going to taste like West Coast IPA because we have our own coast and our own flavor in these hops."

Trowbridge, of Hop Growers of Michigan, said Chinook hop, a variety grown out west, is noted for the citrusy pine flavor it gives beer, while Michigan Chinook hop adds a bright tinge of pineapple.

Hop is grown throughout the state, but Berthel said that even among varieties grown within Michigan there are differences in flavor depending on location.

That diversity is part of what keeps Michigan brewers using hop from their own state, said Michigan Brewers Guild president Scott Graham. "In time we will see the appeal of those unique characteristics far beyond Michigan."

Venture capitalists are investing tens of millions of dollars into commercial farms in Michigan, Trowbridge said. Michigan hop farms once ranged from five to 30 acres, now some span hundreds of acres.

The state is poised for growth among larger hop farms but fewer and fewer small and mid-sized operations will pop up because of start-up costs, he said.

A financially viable farm is at least 10 acres, he said. The costs to a career farmer seeking to start an operation of that size are about $305,000 between converting farmland to grow hop and buying equipment.

While the market is good now, that growth could halt if consumers start to prefer less hoppy beer, he said. Decreased demand would result in a "race to the bottom," where small and mid-sized growers won't be able to lower their prices to compete with larger ones.

Michigan is far from the only hop producer in the Great Lakes Basin.

Ranked right after Michigan at number five is New York, with an estimated 300 acres for harvest in 2016, according to a report from USA Hops, a trade organization. And Wisconsin sits just behind New York with an estimated 297 acres for harvest in 2016.

Together the states and provinces of the Great Lakes Basin will harvest an estimated 1,698 acres of hops in 2016, according to the report. Josh Bender writes for Great Lakes Echo.

Charlevoix-Emmet ISD receives 2nd accreditation

Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District again has received accreditation by the nation's strictest accreditation agency, AdvancED.

This five-year accreditation, effective 2016-2021, is the second time the service agency has received this accreditation. In 2001, Char-Em Intermediate School District became the fifth of 56 Intermediate School Districts in Michigan and one of only 10 nationwide to be accredited.

"Accreditation provides Char-Em ISD with a nationally-recognized mark of quality for our agency," said Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District superintendent Jeff Crouse. "It demonstrates to our community our commitment to excellence, our openness to external review and feedback, and our desire to be the best we can be on behalf of the students, families, school districts, and communities that we serve in Charlevoix, Emmet and northern Antrim counties."

The AdvancED Accreditation Process provides a national protocol for education service agencies committed to systemic, systematic, and sustainable continuous improvement. The voluntary process supports, enhances, and stimulates growth and improvement throughout the agency.

The accreditation process involves three ongoing components: meeting high quality standards; implementing a continuous process of improvement; and engaging in quality assurance through internal and external review. The agency's accreditation is for a five-year term with regular monitoring of progress and reporting occurring during the term.

The path to accreditation began in mid-April when a five-person AdvancED team spent four full days visiting Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District employees, local district staff and administrators, community business leaders, parents and even students. The team met with more than 60 people and visited numerous district programs and local school districts.

During their visit, the AdvancED team examined the Intermediate School Districts systems and processes in relation to five standards: Purpose and Direction, Governance and Leadership, Teaching and Assessing for Learning, Resources and Support Systems, and Using Results for Continuous Improvement.

In the written feedback report, the Intermediate School District was recognized as having "policies and practices (that) promote effective teaching and learning throughout the local districts."

"This is a big deal to get this feedback," Crouse said. "Our mission is to serve our local schools and our vision is to be indispensable. What this tells me is that our board of education and staff are providing outstanding service in all aspects of their jobs."

Over the past decade, the unique roles of intermediate School Districts have adapted to include increased calls for educational accountability. For example, Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District is taking an active role in helping member districts understand, comply, and implement the standards required under the complex state accreditation system. The Intermediate School District is also building and sustaining local partnerships and sharing credible research on the importance of early childhood care and education. In addition, by working with work development boards, business and industry, Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District helps promote growing economies and stable communities.

DDA OKs replacing HVAC system in Bridge Park Building

CHARLEVOIX — The replacement of the southern portion of the HVAC system at the Robert Bridge Park Building has been a long time coming, as the Charlevoix Main Street/Downtown Development Authority board approved the bid during a special meeting on Aug. 29.

Several bids came before the Main Street/Downtown Development Authority facilities committee to replace the heating and air conditioning (HVAC) system known as "AC-3," which covers the portion of the building used by the Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company.

The total cost of the project is $17,400 and was awarded to Ballard's Plumbing and Heating of Petoskey.

"The current unit is inoperable," Heydiauff said. "This work will install a new unit, which will upgrade the cooling capacity."

Ballard's also is expected to test the entire HVAC system to make sure the control systems are all working properly for the building, which also houses the Beaver Island Boat Company.

The Beaver Island Boat Company and the brewing company each have made requests to the city and the Charlevoix Main Street/Downtown Development Authority board about the HVAC system not working properly.

"We hope this work will resolve the issues these two businesses have had to deal with while leasing the space from the DDA," Heydiauff said.

The funds to make the repairs are expected to come from the Charlevoix Main Street/Downtown Development Authority board repair fund, Heydiauff said.

"The DDA collects rent from the businesses and in good faith has stepped up to get this fixed," Heydiauff said.

Raffle tickets available for Charlevoix Elks fundraiser

CHARLEVOIX — The new Win-Fall Cash Party will be from 6-11 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 22, at Castle Farms, 5052 M-66, Charlevoix.

The cash party, organized by the Charlevoix Elks Lodge No. 2856, is a fundraiser for the community, said Ed Rogalla.

"The raffle raises money to provide financial support for numerous area programs and the public is invited to purchase donation tickets for the event," Rogalla said.

The Elks party will feature music, great food, refreshments and cash prizes, Rogalla said.

"Grey Gabies always does a great job with food and we will feature the Beaver Island Band and Exit 282, a favorite dance band that evening," Rogalla said.

The organization is calling the raffle a "Win-Fall" because "Win" is a way to receive more than $20,000 in cash prizes with $10,000 going to the first place ticket holder and "Fall" because the party is held in the autumn.

There also will be a second prize of $3,000, third prize of $1,000 plus many 50/50 drawings. Ticket holders need not be present to win.

Tickets are $150 each and admit two people with only 250 tickets available. Donation includes all food, entertainment and a beverage allowance.

Ticket reservations are on a first come basis and if people have a lucky ticket number and would like to reserve that number, call the Charlevoix Elks Lodge at (231) 237-0200. Ed Rogalla at (616) 915-8435 or John Fiedorek at (231) 881-3179.

Long Day Coffee 'fresh roasted'

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Just venturing out publicly for the first time, Long Day Coffee, owned by Ryan and Annie Smith of Charlevoix, has received kudos from everyone who stops by for a dollar cup of java at the Charlevoix Farmers Market.

Encouraged by friends and family to sell to the public the Smiths hope that exposure at the farmer's market might be the catalyst needed to get their product into more local stores and restaurants.

Long Day Coffee uses only certified organic and free trade beans, according to the owners.

"We've been getting a lot of positive feedback this summer at the market," said Annie Smith. "We thought the farmer's market was a good way to get our feet wet since we were just starting out."

Their coffee enterprise, which was started by Ryan experimenting with his hobby in a home roaster, has taken roots.

"Ryan started roasting on our stove top in a Whirly Pop popcorn popper when he first began," she said. "Now we have a designated room in our house for a large roaster. We are commercially licensed and there is a ventilation system in place. We only roast enough for the market or per order so that the coffee is as fresh as possible."

"I wondered if the neighbors would be lining up with their mugs when they caught wind of the roasting beans."

"One neighbor told us it just smelled like a bonfire," she said. "No lines at our door. They just have to get it at the market. Our coffee can also be found in Harwood Gold's new store as well as at Kiteley Farms."

Before the farmers market the Smiths were selling exclusively to friends, said friend Betsey Schoonover, who was manning the farmers market booth for Annie who is presently taking time off awaiting the birth of the couple's first child. Schoonover and her granddaughters were taking a turn helping out last week and are enthusiastic about the Smith's coffee.

"They sold the coffee exclusively to individuals prior to this,"

Sold by the 12oz bag Long Day Coffee is priced as follows: Columbia Fair Trade organic and Mexican Decaf, both $10; Nicaraguan, Round Lake Blend and Rwandan, $12.

Long Day Coffee can be ordered on line at www.longdaycoffee.com or by calling (231) 622-6234.

Matt and Renee Mosoryak display the varieties of home-baked granola the couple produces each week to sell at local farmers markets in the area.

Hep's Home Baked Granola started in dream on vacation

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Matt and Renee Mosoryak of Bellaire have created a business that is very granola.

The couple began Hep's Home Baked Granola about five years ago. Matt Mosoryak said the idea for the business came after the couple was on vacation.

"It all started with a dream," said Renee Mosoryak. "It was bizarre. We were on a vacation and I had this dream in which Matt was selling granola. He had never made granola, although he had been cooking since he was about 17."

So Matt made some granola just for the heck of it and then experimented with different flavors with their families as the tasters.

"I experimented on the family with different flavor combinations," he said. "We would give it as Christmas gifts, and people would want to know where they could get more."

The Mosoryaks started with cherry-honey-almond, and blueberry maple walnut then added new combinations until at present they make seven varieties.

"I work 12-18 hours on Sunday and make 150-200 pounds of granola," Matt said. "We go through almost all of it in a week."

The couple is renting a commercial kitchen in Bellaire until they have a certified kitchen of their own. The couple has a 14-year-old daughter and a 6-year-old son and an extended family that helps them out.

The couple decided to call it Hep's Home Baked Granola in honor of a childhood nickname (Hep-Cat) bestowed on Matt by his brother, he said.

The Mosoryaks believe that their granola is "sinfully good," "a wholesome snack made with health and happiness in mind," is bestowed on each package sold.

The couple is enthusiastic about their granola and shares samples at five Farmer's Markets from May to October.

"We love the market community," Matt said, who takes the summer off from his job at Charlevoix Creek to sell his snack at market. "This is our fifth year."

Hep's Home Baked Granola is made from as many local products as possible according to the couple: Dewey Grot's honey, Harwood Gold maple syrup, and Northern Michigan fruit.

Visit Hep's Home Baked Granola on Facebook, where the couple not only updates their granola products, but makes readers aware of what's coming at the various area farmers markets.

grooving and overlay along with updated electrical work for runway lighting replacement.

On Wednesday Sept. 13 and Thursday, Sept. 14, runway 4-22 will close and 9-27 will reopen, but with a shorter landing and take off distance because of the electrical and paving work within the runway 4-22 safety area, according to construction documents. From Sept. 19 through Sept. 26 runway 9-27 will be closed and runway 4-22 will be utilized by air traffic as paving and electrical work continues on runway 9-27.

Island Airways president Angel Welke said for the most part it will be as usual during the construction at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport. The company uses Britten Norman Islanders, which are designed to allow ease of access on short-haul sectors to remote locations. These aircraft offer a solution to transportation problems in some of the world's harshest and most rugged environments including operations from unprepared strips such as beaches, Island Airways president Angel Welke said for the most part it will be business as usual during the construction at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport. The company uses Britten Norman Islanders, which are designed to allow ease of access on short-haul sectors to remote locations.

jungle clearings and grass, according to Britten Norman website.

"Our planes—Britten Norman Islanders—were developed to operate from grass strips/unimproved/rough strips," Welke said. "The grass runway in Charlevoix is very comparable to the runway length of our main runway at Welke Airport. We are confident we will be able accommodate our passengers' flight, freight, and luggage needs. We do not anticipate any issues with the grass runway."

It is during the last week of September construction that the removal of the fencing and sidewalk that is located inside the runway protection zone will take place.

The removal of the sidewalk that connects Carpenter Street to the Lake to Lake trail was not welcome news to city officials, said city manager Mark Heydlauff.

"We were told by the FAA that because the sidewalk is in the runway protection zone it is considered a safety issue and that is why the sidewalk will be removed," Heydlauff said.

The city is considering options to reconnect the lake to lake trail to Carpenter Street after the sidewalk is gone.

"There has been discussion about using the sidewalk near Harbor Industries to State Street as a temporary fix, but the city is open to options," Heydlauff said.

The project is funded 90 percent through federal revenues with the remainder split evenly between the state and the city, amounting to a little more than a $70,000 local share. The runway improvements are designed to meet current FAA design standards, improve existing runway and concrete pavement areas, and ensure a minimum 20-year runway lifespan.

Following the grooving work on the runway—approximately 30 days after initial paving—the project will conclude with the completion of edge paving and final pavement markings.

"We expect to see the airport fully operational at the end of October—weather permitting," Heydlauff said.

It that will piece together to replace the current wall," Elliott said.

The low bidder for the project was Tri County Excavating, of Harbor Springs and they were $4,000 under the budgeted amount, Elliott said.

Councilman Bill Supernaw asked about the low bidder preference policy because Boss Lawn & Landscape of Charlevoix was the second lowest bidder.

But due to the difference in pricing, the local bidder preference policy did not come into effect, Elliott said.

Council members unanimously approved spending $24,000 to Tri County Excavating.

"I feel comfortable that they have the expertise, manpower and the equipment to complete this project before the deadline," Elliott said.

Completing these capital improvement projects are important to city residents, said councilwoman Shirley Gibson.

"I am pleased to see a project I have advocated for a long time come before council to be considered and approved," Gibson said. "Improving our infrastructure and keeping our city beautiful is very important to our citizens."

City council also approved city staff to apply for a $6,000 grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation to fund scholarships for local children to attend camp at Mount McSaub.

"These scholarships were able to send 92 area children to camp at Mount McSaub," said city manager Mark Heydlauff. "The funds help children learn skiing and other activities that are provided during our camps at Mount McSaub."

Charlevoix's bench celebrates an overtime victory on the road against Boyne City on Thursday.

Tough Enough: Rayders outlast Ramblers in rivalry thriller, 22-14

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

BOYNE CITY — The pass fell incomplete, and Charlevoix's sideline erupted. Players jumped into each others' arms in celebration. Rayder coach Ron Bindi got doused with Gatorade, and the cheers from Charlevoix crowd were deafening.

There's no doubt that Charlevoix's 22-14 overtime win over host Boyne City meant more than just another notch on the win column.

"All summer long, we had this game circled on the calendar," Charlevoix quarterback

Brad Klinger said. "When we were lifting weights, working out, pushing each other, Boyne City was the team on our minds."

"This is the one we wanted. This is the one we were working so hard all offseason long to get."

In one fell swoop, the Rayders ended four years of heartache at the hands of the Ramblers with a gritty, inspired performance, culminating in Klinger's 10 yard touchdown run in overtime and subsequent two-point conversion that put Charlevoix over the top.

"I made the fake to (tailback) Malcom (Williams), and looked to see if the hole was open," Klinger said. "I saw both of their linebackers flowing hard, so I cut it back, saw green grass and just went straight for the pylon."

That score was Klinger's

Double Vision: Carson, Ritter helping Rayders chase titles in two sports

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

CHARLEVOIX — Playing two varsity sports at once is a real challenge for a high schooler.

Excelling at two varsity sports is significantly harder, and yet two Charlevoix seniors are doing just that.

Charlevoix's Noah Carson and David Ritter are two of the top three runners on a Rayder cross country team that finished in the top 10 in Division 3 last year, and at the same time both Carson and Ritter are also starters and key players on a Charlevoix soccer squad that won conference and district titles last season.

As indispensable players on both squads, Carson and Ritter perform a balancing act each fall to make sure they stay healthy and in good academic standing while playing bit roles for both teams.

"To have two guys who are playing two sports at once and are at the top in both sports, that's pretty unique."

Rayders shine in early-season East Jordan Invitational

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

EAST JORDAN — The Charlevoix cross country team got a taste of what was possible at last year's MHSAA state championships.

That taste has left them hungry for more, and the results of Wednesday's East Jordan Invitational showed just how ready the Rayders are to make their presence felt statewide this year.

Charlevoix finished Wednesday's invitational far ahead of where they were last year at this time, bettering their finishes from 2015's East Jordan Invite by 30 seconds to a minute in most cases.

Given that last season ended with both teams qualifying for the Division 3 state finals, the boys finishing in the top 10 at that meet, and the girls finishing with multiple all-state honors individually, that's a good start to what could be a big year for the Rayders.

"We had big performances at the (Division 3) state meet last year, and that led into a great track season and then a great summer," Charlevoix coach Doug Drenth said.

"We talked about picking up with where we were at last year's state meet and building off of that, and these kids put in a ton of work over the summer to keep the momentum going."

CHARLEVOIX — After a disappointing loss, it's important to get back on track as quickly as possible.

That's exactly what the Charlevoix soccer team did on Tuesday, moving past an upset loss to end last week with a solid 1-0 win over visiting Gaylord.

Christian Matye scored the decisive goal on a free kick from the edge of the box 13 minutes into the game, part of a strong offensive effort by the Rayders that dominated time of possession, if not in the scoreline.

second rushing touchdown of the game, as the senior had scored from 15 yards out three minutes into the game to give Charlevoix an 8-0 lead.

The Ramblers answered immediately with a two yard touchdown run by Joseph Baugh on their next drive to cut the lead to 8-6, and then both teams' defenses took over for the next two and a half quarters, with no additional scoring.

Charlevoix looked like it had broken through at the start of the fourth quarter, as Williams scored on a 43 yard run to put the Rayders up 14-6 with 11 minutes to play, but then adversity hit Charlevoix square in the face.

The Ramblers came roaring back, scoring within a minute on a 43 yard touchdown pass from Mason Gardner to Eric Carson to tie the game, and then recovered an onside kick on the ensuing kickoff to seize control of the momentum.

How the Rayders responded defined the outcome, as instead of folding Charlevoix got a stop inside the red zone and also kept Boyne City from scoring on the Ramblers' next drive to force overtime.

Bindi attributed the Rayders' mental toughness to its commitment to getting better in the offseason.

"The foundation for this was laid in the summer, when these kids made a choice to put the work in, to be dedicated and do everything they could do get better," Bindi said. "Those workouts don't just give you strength and speed, they build trust between your players."

"When you're in the weight room at 6:30 a.m. and you see the other guys in there with you, those guys have proven to you that they're committed, and that you can trust them to have your back when things get tough. Things got tough tonight, and those bonds made the difference between breaking down and fighting through."

Boyne City had its chances, but miscommunication on both sides of the ball and a costly penalty in overtime proved to be too much to overcome.

"We're playing hard, giving great effort, but it's just too many miscues on both sides of the ball," Boyne City coach Dave Hillis said. "I give a lot of credit to Charlevoix, they clearly worked very hard this offseason and at preparing for this game, and they just outplayed us today.

"Our tackling's just not very good right now, and that's something we pride ourselves on, pursuing like crazy and making good tackles. We've got to get back to that kind of execution, not just in tackling but in all phases of the game."

Klinger finished with 91 yards on the ground on 15 carries to lead Charlevoix. Jared McLean added 80 on 11 carries, and Williams finished with 64 on nine carries.

Defensively, McLean led the Rayders with 15 tackles. Cam Alden added 10 and Caleb Hart and Oliver DeYoung each chipped in seven.

Baugh was the top performer offensively for Boyne City, finishing with 125 yards on 25 carries, and quarterback Mason Gardner went 4 of 15 for 73 yards through the air.

Jacob Ager finished with 13 tackles to lead the Ramblers defensively, including two for loss, and Tyler Hirnebaugh and Ryan Hautz each chipped in six.

Charlevoix (2-0) will look to win a third-straight road game to open the season next Friday against Mancelona, and keep the momentum rolling from this victory.

the state by the Detroit Free Press this week off of one game, and it didn't mean much to us because we knew we hadn't earned it," Bindi said. "That was our message to our players this week, go out and earn it; go out and beat somebody good."

"This was a quality win tonight against a good team and a good program, and this is how it starts. We've got to keep proving and earning that respect every week to get where we want to go."

and it comes down to their character, discipline and dedication," Charlevoix cross country coach Doug Drenth said. "Those traits allow them to take on this challenge and to excel and be leaders in both sports at the same time."

Carson decided to do both soccer and cross country entering high school to stay true to two groups of friends he'd been competing with since elementary school.

"I've been playing soccer with the same group of guys since early on, and I've been running since middle school with a group of friends, too," Carson said. "To give up one or the other, it felt like turning my back on people who mattered to me, and that was the last thing I wanted to do."

"I knew whatever I did, I wanted to find a way to be there for both teams, to live up to bond we'd built over the years of competing together."

Ritter, who transferred into Charlevoix from Ludington as a junior, was a gifted soccer player with an older brother who got a scholarship from Oakland University for distance running, and he chose to play on both teams for a different reason.

The boys cross country team was lacking enough members to field a full squad at the time, and Ritter joined to ensure the Rayders could be competitive in the sport.

A center midfielder and team captain for the Charlevoix boys soccer team, David Ritter also is one of the Rayders' top cross country runners on a team that finished in the top 10 in the state last season as a dual sport athlete.

"They weren't going to have a full team without me, and that made the choice pretty easy," Ritter said. "I thought I would do whatever I could do to make sure they had a chance to compete."

Charlevoix's detailed policies for dual-sport athletes made it easier for Carson and Ritter to pursue their goals.

The Rayders prevent uncertainty and disagreement by asking each dual-sport athlete to choose a primary sport and having them sign a contract mapping out exactly what their responsibilities to both sports are before the season starts.

Carson's primary sport is cross country, meaning cross country practices and meets take priority over soccer practices and games when there are conflicts, while Ritter's primary sport is soccer.

That road map makes the job of coaches easier, but it still requires flexibility on the part of both coaches, Drenth said.

"If you don't have coordination and communication between coaches over something like this, it can't work, and I really respect (Charlevoix soccer) coach (Jon) Boss for being flexible and fostering the kind of communication needed," Drenth said. "Ultimately, we know how important both Noah and David are to both programs, and we want to see both programs succeed. I think that makes it a lot easier."

Dual-sporting also has its challenges for the athletes, as juggling the demands of two sports, schoolwork and other commitments can be difficult when work starts piling up, but both athletes agree the rewards are worth it.

"There are weeks where it's soccer game, cross country meet, soccer game with another cross country meet on the weekend, and you've got a big essay due on Monday," Carson said. "It can get pretty crazy, but when it's something you chose, you find a way to make it work."

"I can't even imagine giving up either sport. If it means I have a night where I feel overwhelmed once in a while, that's more than worth it to share the experiences I get to share with my teammates in both sports."

Carson and Ritter are two of several athletes who pull double-duty for Charlevoix, including Michelle Bollini and Isabel Hess, who pull of a similar double with track and field and girls soccer in the spring.

Olivia Jeakle does both cross country and girls golf for the Rayders in the fall, and Brad Klinger plays both basketball and skiing in the winter, among others.

Other schools in the area also have athletes playing multiple sports in one season, including Harbor Springs freshman Cole Hoffman, who is joining Carson and Ritter in the soccer/cross country double this season.

There's no denying those athletes are bringing results on the playing field, as well. Both Carson and Ritter are aiming on lifting hardware with both the soccer and cross country teams in November.

"The dream is the state title in soccer, and to have both of us in the top 20 at the cross country state finals," Ritter said. "When we were working hard this summer, that's what was on our minds."

That would create an interesting dilemma for Carson and Ritter, as both the soccer and cross country state finals fall on the same day in different locations.

If that scenario came to pass, could the two of them be forced to choose one or the other?

"We'll do both and we'll make it happen, somehow," Ritter said. "If we have to flag down a helicopter to get us from one place to the other in time, we'll make it work."

Rayders have tough night in LMC Quad

GRAYLING — As a team, it's best to figure out your weaknesses early on so you know where to focus your attention on improvement.

The Charlevoix volleyball team will look to do just that after a Lake Michigan Conference quad in Grayling on Tuesday, Aug. 29 that exposed some flaws for the Rayders to correct.

Charlevoix lost all three of the matches it played, falling to host Grayling in four sets (17-25, 14-25, 25-14, 16-25), Kalkaska in four sets (23-25, 23-25, 25-15, 17-25) and East Jordan in four sets (21-25, 25-12, 22-25, 23-25).

In each case the Rayders were competitive throughout the match but struggled to string together points to close out sets, opening the door for comebacks by the Blazers and Red Devils that cost Charlevoix.

Finding more consistency and closing the door on opponents was a big focus for the Rayders as they hit the Labor Day break following the quad, coach Audra Randall said.

"I had hoped for a different outcome tonight, because I have faith in our team's ability and skill set," Randall said. "I know we'll continue to work hard in practice, and we'll take some time to look at the film and try to solve the issues that surfaced today.

"(With nearly two weeks before our next match) we have some time to get it figured out, and there's no doubt we will."

Senior Becca Monn led the Rayders at the quad with 14 kills, 11 aces, 37 assists and 24 digs, and freshman

Ellie Stuck was the team's top offensive performer with 30 kills and chipped in 50 digs, nine aces and eight blocks.

Kenzy O'Leary finished with 15 kills, 11 aces, 18 assists and 10 digs for Charlevoix. Beth Veenstra added 15 kills, 16 digs and three aces.

Ellie Loulselle chipped in three kills and seven blocks, and Nichole Hart added three kills and five digs.

Defensively, Julia Doskoch, All Jarema and Kelsey Crandell-Marfuta combined for 75 digs on the night to lead the team in that department, and Ralgar Novotny finished 100% at the service line and had a versatile outing at several positions across the court.

Charlevoix (6-6, 2-4 LMC) travels down to Bay City on Saturday for a big invitational to kick the post-Labor Day portion of its schedule into gear.

"Last year we had one girl under 24 minutes at this meet, and this year we had 10. The growth is staggering."

On the boys side, Noah Carson took second (17:05.5), Luke Buday third (17:36.1) and David Ritter fourth (17:43.3) to lead the Rayders to a third place finish as a team (70 points), behind Division 1 Traverse City Central (45) and Division 4 power Harbor Springs (54).

Freshman Ben Lentz finished 34th (19:46.7) and junior Ben Peterson 35th (19:47.3) to round out the Rayders' scorers.

With a strong core of three experienced runners up front to build off of, Charlevoix just needs continued improvement from the rest of its top seven to move into a contending position as a team in both the Lake Michigan Conference and in the state competition.

On the girls side, Charlevoix's Michelle Bollini had a standout performance, winning the race in a personal-best time of 19:28.0 that's more than 10 seconds faster than her state finals time of last season, one that was good enough to earn all-state honors.

Bollini started the race in a tight battle with Harbor Springs' Ellie Fleming and Boyne City's Avery Stadt before pulling away in the final mile.

"That was the strategy from the beginning: I like having someone to run with for the first part of the race and then figure out what I'm going to do as the race goes on," Bollini said. "I'm really happy with the race and excited about getting a personal best."

To have Bollini, a junior, still dropping time in a sport where year-to-year improvement for girls isn't a given is a testament to her dedication, Drenth said.

"She's just driven to keep getting better and keep dropping time, and it shows in the way she works," Drenth said. "Any little thing she can do to be better, whether it involves sleep, nutrition, or extra training, she's thinking about it and working it into her daily regimen."

"It's something she's really passionate about, and it's exciting to see the things she's doing pay off on the course."

Charlevoix put double-digit shots on net over the course of the game, but a combination of bad luck and strong play by Geylord's defense and goalie kept it a one-score contest until the whistle.

"We had a lot of great opportunities offensively, and especially in the first half we were able to work the ball around the way we want and the way we talk about doing," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "We weren't able to finish the way we liked and put the ball in the back of the net, but the opportunities were there and that was good to see."

Jacob Harrod and Colin Turkleson combined for the shutout in goal, as the Rayder defense limited Geylord's scoring opportunities to a handful in the contest.

After a couple of breakaways that led to near-misses in the first half, Charlevoix tightened up defensively in the second half and didn't give up any dangerous touches inside the box to protect the win.

"We had a couple of moments in the first half where we got a little lackadaisical, and we addressed it at the half by reminding them to keep looking around and being aware of the situation," Boss said. "I thought they did a good job in the second half."

It was a nice recovery from a rough game on Thursday night, as Kalkaska rallied from a 2-0 deficit to force penalty kicks and won the shootout for a shocking upset victory that handed the Rayders their first conference loss.

After suffering that tough defeat and having all of Labor Day weekend to dwell on it, Boss said it was nice to see his team didn't let the loss to the Blazers linger and came back with a better performance to start the week.

"It was great coming off the holiday to just get out there, get some touches, and get a win against a quality team," Boss said. "We really did a good job with possession tonight, and a few of the runs we were able to string together in the second half were exactly what we were looking for."

Next up for Charlevoix (5-2-2, 1-1 LMC) is a date with arch-rival Harbor Springs at home, the first leg of an always close rivalry series that means a lot for both squads.

The Rams got off to a slow start thanks to a host of injuries at the beginning of the year, but should be close to fully healthy in time for a conference clash with the Rayders.

"It's always a great game when we play Harbor Springs, and always a close game, too," Boss said. "It's a game that our kids get excited about and it's one that tells us a lot about where we're at as a team."

"We're glad to hear they should be healthy and looking forward to a great night of soccer for both squads."

State of Charlevoix remains strong

CHARLEVOIX — The current state of education, health care and the community of Charlevoix is strong was the message during the State of Community address this week led by local leaders.

Local government leaders met with members of the Charlevoix community on Tuesday at Castle Farms to present the year's State of the Community address, highlighting community successes and a variety of projects in the works throughout the city and county.

Charlevoix City Manager Mark Heydlauff, Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Mike Ritter, Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital CEO Lyn Jenks, and Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors chairman Joel Evans, all spoke to a large crowd.

The event was hosted by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and supported area sponsors.

Heydlauff assured those in attendance the "backbone and fiber of the community is strong," by speaking about the resilient spirit of the people of Charlevoix.

CHARLEVOIX — A group of friends are about to embark on a journey that many of us only dream about — sailing off into the sunset to see the world.

Married couple, 34-year-old Luke and Bethany Whitley, 27, of Charlevoix, and their friends Emily Kralovetz, 27, of Escanaba, and Garrett Falls, 31, of Midland have all quit their jobs, sold their homes and possessions to make this dream come true.

"We've been talking about this for a long time," Falls said. "We're all die-hard sailors. At one point Luke and I each had our own boats we stayed on for the summer and this voyage is really taking that summer one step further."

Ellie Way's tiny house, where living is big

ANNE KELLY

Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Ellie Way may be only 18, but she possesses so much determination, energy and enthusiasm that one can't help but be inspired by the spirit of this charismatic young woman.

Daughter of Ron and Jill Way of Charlevoix, Way graduated last year from Charlevoix High School with all intentions of attending Calvin College and working toward a nursing degree.

After one semester she changed her major and her mind and embarked on an alternate academic plan for her future in the area of health and nutrition. That would involve leaving Calvin, moving back home and applying for entry into a program offered at Michigan State University.

Concurrently, her mind embraced an idea that was born when she viewed a documentary titled "Tiny: a story about living small" while still attending Calvin College.

"I thought the whole idea of building a tiny house would be fun," Way said.

She thought a lot about it and mentioned it to her family.

"When I came home before Thanksgiving break, my dad had already cleared the perfect spot here in the woods behind our home," she said.

It didn't take long for Ellie's dad, Ron (Way Building Contractors, Inc.) to get on board with blueprints for the project and her sister, Madison, an interior designer in Florida to start sending decorating ideas.

"I was so excited to do this thing," she said. "When the time came it only took me three weeks to take exams and wrap up everything at Calvin."

Ellie came home at Christmas and began formulating a plan and getting materials. Her dad calculated the materials she would need and together with the advice, guidance and

Charlevoix Township

North Point Preserve invasive species report meeting topic

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Know your enemy. It's a tenet of conflict that holds true across countless battlefields — even when the enemy is a plant.

The Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees listened to a brief report on invasive plant species inside the North Point Preserve from John Campbell on Monday during the regular township meeting.

Campbell explained to the board that garlic mustard and spotted knapweed were found in the preserve and there are options to remove the plants without spending money.

The Little Traverse Conservancy has programs that work with local schools to educate children and remove the plants.

"It is a program that was used 25 years ago when the dune grass was planted in the preserve," Campbell said. "The conservancy works to remove the invasive plants with education and the community."

Invasive species are non-native plants and animals not held in check by local ecosystems and subsequently grow out of control, supplanting local life and disturbing flora and fauna alike. About 90 percent of insects have specialized diets, which only allow them to eat a few different plants, Campbell said.

"When an invasive comes in it's not only devastating to an ecosystem because the native plants have been pushed out. Invasive species push out everything above the native plants," he said.

Township Supervisor Chuck Center reported that the cement slabs for the boat launch at Lake Shore Drive near St. Marys Cement were recently poured and need to cure for another two weeks before the final repairs to the launch are completed.

"Once the permits were received the work began on repairing the launch," Center said.

Center said costs for repairs to the boat launch remain within the budget because of help from St. Marys Cement.

"They have donated the equipment and time to help place the cement forms for the launch," Center said. "We hope to have the boat launch work completed with the first week of October."

Recovery month features movie about hope and redemption

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-4558
lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — A movie about hope and redemption will be shown at the Charlevoix Cinema III at 11 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 24 as part of the continuing activities of National Recovery Month in Charlevoix.

Bay Area Substance Education Services executive director Scott Kelly said the movie has a local connection and should go well with the other recovery month activities planned for Charlevoix.

"The story is pretty relatable for people in recovery," Kelly said. "It should resonate well with the audience and there will be a Q and A after with filmmaker Cindy Joy Goggins."

"Grace" is about a young woman who must deal with the consequences of her alcoholism. The movie stars Annika Marks, Sharon Lawrence, Chase Mowen and Goggins.

Goggins, a Charlevoix resident, said the story behind "Grace" is a realistic journey of recovery, which was inspired by her own story.

In the award-winning film, newcomer Grace is guided through her struggle with alcoholism by her loving sponsor Sonia, played by Lawrence, and is encouraged by a caring 12-step program

LONNIE ALLEN/CHARLEVOIX COURIER
Cindy Joy Goggins' movie "Grace" will be shown 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 24, at the Charlevoix Cinema III as part of the planned events for National Recovery Month in Charlevoix. Goggins will host a question and answer session about making of the film and recovery following the conclusion of the movie.

community who love her until she can love herself enough to create a sober life worth living, Goggins said.

"The movie is about community of strangers that love Grace and help guide her on her journey through recovery with sponsorship and love," Goggins said.

The film takes place in New Smyrna Beach, Florida, where the beauty of the ocean and quaint seaside community cannot cover up Grace's not-so-beautiful secrets of alcoholism. "When you are in your addiction it is impossible to communicate with your higher power," Goggins said. "Everyone has their own higher power, but getting to that point of surrender is an addict's own journey. Grace's redemption begins at the water on the beaches of Florida, where she deals with the pain of watching her own mother gripped in this disease."

The movie gives people a look at alcoholism through some of Goggins' own experiences.

"I wanted the truth of how this disease affects families and entire communities to be told through Grace and the other characters in this film," Goggins said. "This disease can be devastating and destroy lives, but there is help available and recovery is possible."

Goggins and Sylvia Caminer who produced the film provide a story that families can watch together to learn about the healing found in the recovery community.

"People do recover," Goggins said. "There are pitfalls we all face, but recovery is possible when you want it. It is my goal with the film to compassionately look at the disease of addiction through Grace as she inches toward redemption."

Autographed copies of the DVD will be available for purchase at the Charlevoix Cinema III. For more information about the movie "Grace" or to purchase copies of the DVD, visit gracethemovie.us.

Michigan Notable book author to speak at local library

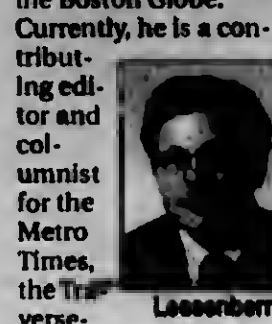

CHARLEVOIX — A conversation with author and journalist, Jack Lessenberry will take place 2-3 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 17, at the Charlevoix Public Library's community room. This program is free and open to the public.

Lessenberry co-authored the 2016 Michigan Notable book, "The People's Lawyer: The Life and Times of Frank J. Kelley, the Nation's Longest-Serving Attorney General," with Kelley. After several years as a small-town lawyer in Alpena, Frank J. Kelley was unexpectedly appointed Michigan's attorney general at the end of 1961. He never suspected that he would continue to serve until 1999, a national record. During that time, he worked with everyone from John and Bobby Kennedy to Bill Clinton and jump-started the careers of dozens of politicians and public figures, including U.S. Senator Carl Levin and governors James Blanchard and Jennifer Granholm.

Lessenberry will talk about the man behind the book and also provide some glimpses into the process of writing and literary collaboration.

Lessenberry, the head of the journalism faculty at Wayne State University, is WUOM-FM's senior news analyst and delivers daily essays and commentary on important Michigan issues. He also has been a writer for many national and regional publications, including Vanity Fair, Esquire, George, the New York Times, the Washington Post, and the Boston Globe. Charlevoix Main Street and the Summer Concert Series volunteers offer thanks

Editor:

What a season of great music. The Charlevoix community and its visitors are beyond blessed to have easy access to free, live music all summer long. The Charlevoix Summer Concert Series was one such event. Thursday nights at 7 p.m., a wide variety of musical genres entertained audiences as large as 700 people for two toe-tapping hours, none of which would have been possible without our generous sponsors.

Bickersteth, Brown and Associates Wealth Advisors, Fox Charlevoix, and Northern Michigan Review were our partner sponsors for the entire music series. If you have been putting off seeing a financial planner, are in need of a car or service, or are looking for local news, help us thank these businesses for their support.

Each of the eight shows also had a concert sponsor: Munson Charlevoix Area Hospital; Irish Boat Shop; Round Lake Book Store; East Park Tavern; The Villager Pub; Rotary Club of Charlevoix; and Castle Farms.

Interested in being a sponsor for the 2017 Summer Concert Series? We would love to talk with you. Please contact us at mainstreet@cityof-charlevoix.org.

What do you think?

Editor:
I walk with a cane or a black fold-up grocery cart.

I've asked the city manager for a bench in front of the Chamber of Commerce - there was one there a couple of years ago and was convenient to sit for a few minutes to continue downtown.

I was told, OK, he'd get one. Then, no nobody else wants one. Anyone who complained would have to be a resident. (We are a homeowner here.)

So, I do have a cigarette disposal if I need one, but no bench. "Maybe next year," he said.

I did not think I was asking for much. What do you think?

Be a tourist this fall in Charlevoix

There are so many reasons to love the fall season in Northern Michigan.

For those of us lucky enough to live here, we see the benefits of the fall season in a slower pace of life, but there are also a multitude of reasons visitors take advantage of visiting Charlevoix during this majestic season. Whether you call Charlevoix home year-round or you plan to visit for a short time, make sure to take advantage of this upcoming season to the fullest.

Probably the most notable reason people visit the Charlevoix area during the fall season is for fall color tours. Circling Lake Charlevoix via car or boat is one of the best ways to view fall colors along the clear blue waters of the lake. Don't forget to travel across the lake on the charming Ironton Ferry for a unique experience.

North of Petoskey, the famous Tunnel of Trees on M-119 is not to be missed and is the perfect day trip to enjoy fall foliage. South of Charlevoix, the Breezeway through Atwood, Ellsworth and East Jordan provide hills, fields and beautiful vistas for viewing fall foliage. South of Eastport, Torch Lake Drive also gives a unique canopy of fall foliage along the gorgeous views of Torch Lake.

Recreation is at its best during the brisk fall season.

Heading out to the trails for hiking and biking are most enjoyable this time of year, when the leaves are beginning to change. Walking along the beaches of Lake Michigan and hunting for elusive Petoskey stones can be much better with the large waves that churn up during the fall months. Kayaking and canoeing on smaller inland lakes (check out Susan Lake, Six Mile Lake, Ellsworth Lake) during the quiet months provide beautiful autumnal foliage and views of the fauna in their natural habitat. People often visit Charlevoix for the harvest season, which is celebrated through events like Apple Fest (Oct. 14-16), farm to table dinners at Castle Farms (Oct. 12) and at the many farm markets dotting the landscape. Enjoy the season at area farm markets by going to a corn maze, picking apples or pumpkins, and of course tasting fresh cider and doughnuts.

Visitors travel to Charlevoix during the fall months to enjoy the relaxing pace that is unique to the season. Deals at hotels and retailers make for a much more affordable vacation, and the fewer crowds provide for easy seating at restaurants that may be too busy to get into during the summer months.

This fall season, be a tourist (or pretend to be one) in our beautiful area and take the time to slight-see in and around Charlevoix.

Embracing autumn

Sitting at my desk, organizing the beginning of the school year paperwork and schedules, I see some gold and burgundy leaves peeking out at the tops of the trees. A bald eagle that nests down by the lake just flew to a tree across from my yard, the branch bouncing from his weight, hunting something he sees along the shore.

The ducks are quacking to each other at the end of the dock, and the water swirls around where the fish are dancing close to the surface, possibly soaking up some September sun before everything starts to cool. Grasses along the lake are thinning and yellowing, like spent wheat fields glistening in the sun.

Hummingbirds flit around the surviving petunias, reaching up from their flowerboxes, almost wild. Bees and yellow jackets are darting everywhere, dive-bombing anything and anyone who happens to be in their flight path. The apples on the three trees next to our yard are all sporting red tops, slowly spreading down through the crisp green of the skin.

Every squirrel is busy, running back and forth, gathering, digging, and preparing for the end of warm weather. Dragonflies, in every color imaginable, perch on the edge of the deck, sometimes on my children's heads, as they rest and revitalize, and zip away to explore another landscape.

Cricket songs have taken the place of the peepers' melodies as the sunset theme song, and the cicadas have stopped calling out to one another as the days end sooner and the night chill brings stars and aurora borealis to our wonderment. Birch tree trunks seem more exposed, like the veins of the forest, and they stand out, pale and white paper circulatory system of the woods.

Summer clothes switch out to warmer wear is imminent; I'll start pulling things from drawers and closets once I get it through my mind that fall is officially upon us. If I could freeze the seasons, I would be hitting pause in a few weeks at the peak of color, where flannel and hot chocolate is mandatory, apple picking and fresh doughnuts and cider filled weekends are on everyone's mind, and where the lake is too cold to swim, but still flows in tandem with the cool breezes—moving swiftly at times, and other times a huge still mirror with the twin view of scenery perfectly reflected on its surface.

Never wanting time to go by any quicker than it already does, I relish and enjoy every moment of these autumn days upon us. We never know what Mother Nature has in store—last December we were making grilled sandwiches over a bonfire and running around the snow-free yard in amazement. Two years prior, the snow drifts were so high we could not get out of our driveway.

The ever-changing weather scape of Northern Michigan—I absolutely love it. The memories we have and create in the world around us is doing at the moment are a touchstone for our family. How do the changing seasons affect you, dear neighbors? Share your experiences with me on Facebook and Instagram.

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

The old Charlevoix County courthouse stood at the northwest corner at the intersection of Antrim and State streets. It sported three towers atop a flat roof—a pyramidal tower and bell tower on the east side, and a fire hose drying tower on the west, to the right of the chimney. On the day before Christmas, 1907, the second floor caught fire and the entire upper section and roof were destroyed. A few of the charred cornice balustrades and the pyramidal tower top laying on its side can be seen in the photo. All three towers collapsed into the building. No important papers on the ground floor were lost as the county employees were able to put everything of value into safes and a vault before they evacuated. But the legal offices on the second floor were completely wiped out, the fire having destroyed decades worth of documents and files. The fire department lost several of its hoses. A couple of hoses can be seen drying in the street. The structure was rebuilt with a raised sloping roof; none of the towers were replicated. Also noticeable is the lack of snow, apparently a year without a white Christmas. This photo was taken by future builder Earl Young at age 18.

Organizers prepare for Charlevoix CROP Walk

CHARLEVOIX – Area residents are gearing up to join in the Charlevoix County CROP Walk, starting at 9 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 24. This year's event will be a 5K and will begin at three Charlevoix County locations, including Elm Pointe in East Jordan, United Methodist Church in Boyne City and St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. All churches and individuals are welcome to join the walk.

Organized locally, the Charlevoix County CROP Walk has set a goal of recruiting 100 walkers to raise $25,000, which will work to combat hunger here in the community as well as around the world. Twenty-five percent of all monies raised in Charlevoix County will come back locally to The Good Samaritan of Ellsworth, Care and Share of East Jordan, the Charlevoix Food Pantry, Seventh Day Adventist, Boyne Food Pantry in Boyne City and Boyne Falls Food Pantry, Boyne Falls.

Last year, more than 80 walkers and volunteers raised more than $23,000, of which $5,750 was divided between local food pantries. The remaining funds helped to combat hunger and poor sanitation around the world, including in the United States.

New behavioral health services offered at Munson Charlevoix

CHARLEVOIX – Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital has opened its new behavioral health department, in response to the need for mental health services in the area. Providers will see patients in both Charlevoix and Boyne City in order to make care as convenient as possible for all age groups.

Heading the department is long-time provider, Lori Katzman, MD, a graduate of the University of Michigan and Wayne State University School of Medicine. Joining her is Michael Lucido, PhD, physician's office clinical coordinator, Michalene Wright, and Heather Elzinga, office coordinator. These providers have worked together for more than 15 years.

When asked why the group chose to become part of Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital, Dr. Katzman indicated that they were very familiar with the quality of care and reputation for service that the hospital has and felt they were a good fit.

"Mental health issues are everywhere and there are very limited places in Northern Michigan to go for help, particularly in our local area," said Dr. Katzman. "I know this addition will fill a very significant need and be enormously helpful in our community."

They are able to treat a wide range of psychiatric and mental health disorders such as depression, obsessive compulsive, post-traumatic stress, autism, ADHD, personality disorders, anxiety, panic, schizophrenia, and bipolar disorder, to name a few.

"Northwestern Michigan is a shortage area for mental health service providers, according to the HRSA research, indicating a great need in our local community. We are hoping to fill some of the gaps for people who either had no services or were driving across counties to get help," said Dr. Lucido. "My hope is that we can make mental health as routine in our healthcare environment as any other medical service. Being a part of the hospital does just that."

TINY

expertise in building offered by Ellie's father and grandfather, Dick Way, she proceeded on a construction journey that began in the cold winter month of January, and has recently concluded to the point where she has moved into her tiny residence.

"My mom, my grandmother and also Brian Vollmer, who works for my dad, have also been big supporters," she said.

It took a little over two weeks last January, to frame in the 8 foot by 20 foot structure and get the roof on so that they could all work on the inside projects.

"I wanted to be part of everything, to learn to do it all every step of the way," she said. "I helped with everything from the metal roof to the bench cushions. I'm a very organized person. I made a spreadsheet to keep track of material cost with the goal of coming in under $10,000. As of April, we were at about $6,000, which was pretty much on track."

Some of the materials like windows, the cabinets and the bathroom sink have been repurposed from some of Way's discarded materials in his company's construction projects. Of course, the labor expense has thankfully been a non-issue.

Ellie is presently attending North Central Michigan College working toward an associate degree in nutrition and hopes to be accepted into Michigan State University in the spring.

"My friend Winter

Ellie Way and her father, Ron, who helped with the build and other aspects of the tiny house.

Romeyn of Providence Organic Farm in Eastport introduced me to the concept of healthy growing and eating as a life style. It fit right in to my personal plan of pursuing nutrition as a major. Everything just morphed into a plan for my life."

A deeply spiritual young woman, Ellie is moving forward with her dreams, and if her faith, family support and youthful energy and determination are any indication, one can only believe that she will achieve them all. Her house may be tiny but she has a huge future ahead if she continues on her present path.

Ellie has blogged the process of building her tiny house (www.tinydreamer.weebly.com).

"I want to be able to document the monumental moments of my life. Not only would I—no I will—build my future 8 foot by 20 foot home," she wrote in her blog, "but I also dream to teach others that food is truly a medicine, have my own family, grow my own fruits and veggies, and learn to play the guitar. I'm resting my life in the hands of God and man, am I excited to see what he has in store."

loss and we rejoice together in success and new opportunities," Heydlauff said. "We are a resilient community filled with dedicated woman and men, prospering on the shores of our beautiful waters."

Heydlauff praised the city's AA bond rating and current $3 million infrastructure improvements, while acknowledging that work still needs to be done to ensure residents received reliable city services.

"This project is sizeable, but unfortunately does not complete the needed infrastructure makeover the city requires," Heydlauff said. "Our pipes are old, shallow and in need of repair. Our infrastructure must be suitable for all Northern Michigan seasons. It is unacceptable to council and me that we cannot properly provide water service to all of our residents in all weather conditions. Our infrastructure must be improved and we will continue on this project until we are able to serve all our residents all the time."

Ritter praised the high achievement of students in the district and provided an update on the projects as the result of a $5 million bond passed by Charlevoix voters in 2015.

The new buses, technology upgrades and most facility improvements were completed, he said, and other projects were on track.

He also explained that the auxiliary gym was moving and there would be more information about that in the coming weeks.

Jenks explained that the hospital is in the middle of a capital campaign to reinvent and expand the hospital surgery area. They have raised $2.9 million of their $3.4 million goal.

"We are doing well as an operation and investment in this community," Jenks said. "We are working to be more efficient and more effective in the future."

Evans spoke about ramped-up security measures the county implemented for its buildings and employees, ongoing efforts to complete and improve the Boyne City to Charlevoix non-motorized trail and the 19 park and recreation projects made possible with recreation millage passed by voters.

He also commented on how the county remains fiscally responsible because of the people who help run the county.

"We have so many good people running Charlevoix County," Evans said. "I also want to thank the taxpayers of this county who help make our county great."

FARMERS MARKET PROFILE

Providence Organic Farm and CSA: a passion for healthy living

ANN KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Providence Farm in Central Lake was the first certified organic farm in northern Michigan that served Charlevoix, Emmet and Antrim counties, according to Andrea Romeyn.

Romeyn, her husband Ryan and their four children run the farm in Eastport and bring the fruits of their labors to the local farmers' markets each summer.

"We farm as a family," she said.

A former teacher, Romeyn helps out managing the markets and when she isn't mothering she also handles the farm's newsletter and keeps the website up to date. In addition to the seasonal farmers' markets, the farm supplies 275 families with produce in their CSA program (Community Supported Agriculture) and offers investor shares which allow clients to shop a la carte at any of their markets.

The farm hires 35 employees seasonally and offers an intern program. Providence, under her direction, hosts tours for school and other groups and features events, classes and potlucks.

Their faith-filled life finds them all actively working on the farm and the Romeyns grateful that their children are exposed to a life style which includes healthy eating and living and learning the responsibility of raising and caring for animals.

"Our 9- and 11-year-old sons have their own chicken and egg business. The kids learn to work and have fun doing it too," Romeyn said.

Providence farm is comprised of 160 acres, only 18 of which are planted with vegetables, the rest being dedicated to hay and grazing to accommodate the animals which supply their customers with fresh pork, beef, and lamb. The vegetables, however, account for 90 percent of the farm's business.

"This is the first year we have sold produce all year-round," she said. "We collaborate with other farmers and think of ourselves as a collective. We have hoop houses, not greenhouses, in order to extend the growing season but depend on neighbors like Berg's Farm to supply us with starters for our crops."

The Romeyns have recently built a new barn that is in keeping with sustainability issues and Food Safety Laws.

"It has helped us grow as a business and makes it so much easier to keep all the produce clean and safe," she said.

Ryan Romeyn has been farming for 20 years and the Romeyns together have become passionate supporters of the organic movement. Twenty years ago she and Ryan experienced organic gardening during a Habitat for Humanity trip where they fell in love with each other and the promise of rich soil and growing healthy food.

"I knew this is what I wanted to do for the rest of my life," she said. "It is truly gratifying to see what healthy food can do for people."

Charlevoix Camel Cup to race through Bridge Park

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Convention and Visitor's Bureau announced Charlevoix's newest event. The Charlevoix Camel Cup will gallop into town from 4-8 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 24, in Bridge Park.

win.

All proceeds from the Charlevoix Camel Cup will go toward the fireworks for the popular Bridge Drop event on New Year's Eve.

SAILING

The group recently sailed the old 47-foot Sea Scout vessel that Falls purchased late last year to Charlevoix from Pier 7 Marina in Bay City where they have been working on it since January.

"We have spent most the year restoring this boat," Bethany said. "We still have about three more weeks of work to do before we take off."

What once housed 19 bunks for an organization that taught young men and women various aspects of maritime heritage including boating safety and other skills is now a spacious sailboat with a galley (kitchen) alcove, private sleeping spaces, shelves, storage and more.

They named their sailing vessel Further because each of their conversations about the trip centered on the theme of "going further," Bethany said.

"Further was a reoccurring theme whenever we talked about the trip, our finances and destinations," she said.

To prepare for their journey to circumnavigate the world, they all worked to become debt free, saved money and sold off any thing that they could not take with them on the boat.

"Everything has fallen into place at the right time," Kralovetz said. "Money wise, job wise and me leaving California to return to Michigan all just fell into place."

While they are gone from their Northern Michigan home the group has set themselves a strict budget of about $2,000 a month for the boat and about $500 per person for the month.

"We wanted to do it our way while we were young where we could explore, travel and really get out there and have an awesome adventure,"

Kralovetz said. "We know we have limited resources but we also know our plans are to fulfill this dream together."

As of now, they have no other sources of income, but they have discussed the option of picking up odd jobs at different destinations to help supplement their income on the voyage. The group plans to set sail from Charlevoix in early October with their first stop being Chicago before heading south to the Gulf of Mexico.

The group is hesitant to commit to a strict route because of weather and safety, Bethany said.

"It's very hard to set strict dates with our course because weather is the deciding factor," she said. "We do have a loose plan on what we want to do in the Caribbean and when we need to be through the Panama Canal."

From there they hope to head toward the South Pacific and from there it is up to the wind and their will.

"You have got to dream the dream before it ever becomes a reality," Luke said.

The group says they're aware of the possible obstacles, but that isn't stopping them from going.

"We are all putting everything we have on the line to do what we are passionate about," Falls said.

Each of them agree that this journey would not be possible without the support they have received from the early days of random people helping with the boat renovations in Bay City to family and friends giving them encouragement and the advice from the Northern Michigan sailing community.

"We have a lot of gratitude for everybody who helped us along the way," Luke said. "We owe lots of thanks with the people at Pier 7 Marina in Bay City and everyone else who has helped us.

"I just don't see how we would have made it this far without the support of our families, friends and the people who have helped us on our journey to get our boat ready to sail," he added.

To give people a chance to say goodbye and celebrate the official renaming of their vessel the group will have a going away party from 5-9 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 17, at Northwest Marina in Charlevoix for anyone who would like to attend.

"Having an early date for our going away party is a good way to bring our family and friends together to say our goodbyes," Kralovetz said.

"We want people to follow us and share the adventure with us," Falls said.

"It's not just sailing around the world for us. It is about sharing that anybody can follow their dreams."

10 safety strategies for senior care

Have you done everything you can to make sure you and your home are safe and sound? Use the following checklist to see if there's more you can do.

01

Don't leave your home looking unoccupied. Don't announce trips away from home on social media. Arrange to have newspaper deliveries stopped while you're away, and have someone pick up the mail and mow the lawn (or shovel the snow).

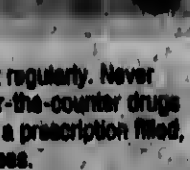

02

Prevent falls. Make sure all your rooms and stairways are well lit and that things aren't left lying around on the floor. Remove area rugs and use assistive devices (a cane and grab bars in the bathroom).

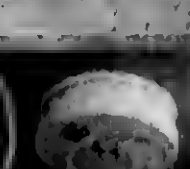

03

Manage your medications appropriately. Clean out your medicine cabinet regularly. Never take more than the prescribed dose of a medication, and don't take any over-the-counter drugs or natural products before talking to your doctor or pharmacist. When having a prescription filled, ask about possible side effects. Use a pill organizer to stay on track with doses.

04

Think "fire safety." Install a smoke detector on each floor and near all the bedrooms. Don't leave a hot stove unattended. Don't smoke in bed, and avoid using candles.

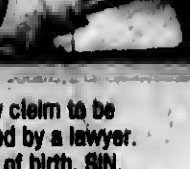

05

Be prudent when driving. Lock car doors even when you're in the car. Park in well-lit parking lots, and take out your keys in advance so you can get into the house or car quickly. Avoid driving for long periods of time or when visibility is poor.

06

Prevent fraud. Check that the person calling you on the phone is who they claim to be before sending them money. Don't sign a contract without having it checked by a lawyer. Never lend your credit card or give out personal information (address, date of birth, SIN, credit card number, etc.) over the Internet or phone, unless it was you who initiated the call to a confirmed number at your financial institution.

07

Protect your property and your assets. Sign a proxy giving a person you trust the power to make decisions on your behalf regarding your assets and your healthcare when necessary. Have a will drawn up, and don't keep large sums of cash in your home.

08

Secure your home. Have an alarm system and good locks installed, and always lock your doors. Install a peephole so you can see your visitors without being seen before opening the door.

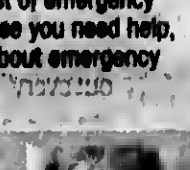

09

Be prepared for emergencies such as a fall or an illness. Keep a list of emergency numbers in a conspicuous place. Make a list of people to contact in case you need help, especially people who are close by or are readily available. Find out about emergency response systems such as wearable alert buttons.

Use all necessary assistive devices. Look into getting a walker, a large-keypad phone, a doorbell indicator light, and a cell phone that you can keep with you at all times. Use a calendar and checklists to help you remember important things and appointments.

Lastly, let family members know where you are going whenever you travel, and leave a key to your home with someone you trust. This person's help could turn out to be invaluable one day.

MANCELONA — Coming off just their second win over Boyne City in the previous 10 seasons, it would have been easy for Charlevoix to head into Friday's matchup with Mancelona overconfident.

It happens all the time. A team comes off a big win and ends up with a surprise in the next week.

This has proved to be a different Rayder football team this season, one that treated Friday's league matchup with the Ironmen as another business trip and came away with another win.

Senior quarterback Brad Klinger passed for a career-high 242 yards on 8-of-9 passing and four touchdown throws en route to a 37-22 win in Mancelona.

For the first time since 2005, the Rayders have begun the season 3-0 overall and 1-0 in the Leaders Division of the Northern Michigan Football League and, just like that, they're 4-0.

With Suttons Bay forfeiting the remainder of their season last week — the Rayders' next opponent — Charlevoix

Bindi wins Detroit Lions High School Coach of the Week

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix football coach Ron Bindi had an inkling something was up when Detroit Free Press writer Mick McCabe called him on Sunday looking for information on his career.

But when Bindi found out earlier last week from Charlevoix athletic director Travis Garrett that the Detroit Lions and Farm Bureau Insurance had named him the High School Football Coach of the Week for the state of Michigan, he thought it was a prank.

"There's so many great coaches and deserving coaches across the state, that I didn't believe it at first," Bindi said. "It's a big honor for me and especially for this program to have someone else recognize the work that we're doing here like this."

The award is given out every week during the high school football regular season to a coach that "best develops his players' character, discipline, and football skill in addition to emphasizing player health and safety in their program," according to the press release put out by the Detroit Lions and Farm Bureau Insurance. The winner receives a certificate signed by Detroit Lions head coach Jim Caldwell and NFL commissioner Roger Goodell, a personalized game ball and will be announced as the award recipient at an upcoming Lions home

Rayder soccer team ends slump, claims tournament title

CHARLEVOIX — For a team with gifted offensive attackers, goals have been in short supply for the Charlevoix boys soccer squad in its last three games, a stretch where Charlevoix went 1-2.

It's something the Rayders spent Friday's practice working feverishly to improve, and the result of Saturday's Traverse City Christian Invite is an encouraging sign that that work is paying off.

Charlevoix beat three larger schools, including two Class A squads, to claim its first tournament title of the season, scoring seven goals on the day to more than double its production in its previous three games.

"We had a tough week and a half before this, and we really went back to work focusing on our last touch and on finishing goals," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "Converting on scoring chances and controlling possession were our focus today, and I'm pretty happy with the job we did.

"We still had some good chances we didn't turn into goals, and we have a lot of other things to work on, but today was a step in the right direction."

Charlevoix opened the tournament with a 3-1 win over Gaylord, beating the Blue Devils for the second time this week after a 1-0 win on Tuesday.

Christian Matye scored all three of the Rayders' goals, with assists on two of them from defenders Cameron Clark and Kevin Pearl.

In the semifinal, Charlevoix downed Marquette with a perfect performance in an overtime shootout, after finishing the game tied at 1 with the Redmen.

Goalkeeper Collin Turkleson made a diving save in penalties to clinch the Rayder victory, while Nick Brad-

Annual Charlevoix Mud Run about perseverance, not personal bests

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

CHARLEVOIX — In cross country, most races aim for a simple goal: to prove who's the fastest.

But the sport still has room for races that pay homage to a different mindset present in cross country: that of overcoming obstacles and challenges while getting a little dirty in the process.

Held every year by the Rayder cross country team, the Charlevoix Mud Run is one of those events, and it's a favorite of every team that competes there.

With multiple knee-deep mud pits, logs and other obstacles strewn throughout, overcoming the course is at least as important as racing your opponents when it comes to achieving a good finish.

"We tell our runners every year that this is the toughest meet they're going to compete in, because of how early they are in their training and all the different obstacles they face on the course," Harbor Springs coach Emily Kloss said. "If you can do well here, it gives you a lot of confidence for every meet to come."

Dealing with the course's treacherous mud pits, where runners can lose time, their footing, and sometimes even their shoes, brings out additional teamwork from squads looking to have a strong finish, Petoskey coach Jim Harrington said.

"The challenges are good to deal with, because we're going to have some bad weather days and the mud helps get us ready for that," Harrington said. "You don't know until you actually go through (the mud pits) what it's going to be like, and so we've got TRAVERSE CITY — The Rayders fell to Class C No. 4 Traverse City St. Francis in straight sets on the road on Tuesday, but put a scare into the Gladiators in the match, especially in a tight 27-29 third set.

Charlevoix showed an improved performance at the service line, and had a great night up front defensively as Elise Stuck and Ellie Louiselle combined for seven blocks against TCSF's stellar front line.

Those factors came into play in the third set, where Charlevoix raced out to a 16-8 lead before the Gladiators rallied and eventually pulled out the victory.

"I thought the girls did a nice job on blocking assignments at the net, and I felt like we kept their two bigs in check for most of the night," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "The third set is where (our players) turned it on with better serve-receiving and pickups behind the blocks."

Stuck also led the squad offensively with eight kills and also had seven digs, Kenzy O'Leary chipped in seven kills and 11 digs, and Becca Moon added six kills and 10 digs on the night.

Beth Veenstra chipped in four kills for the Rayders, Julia Doskoch and Nichole Hart each added four digs and Ali Jarema chipped in five.

The result against one of the best teams in the state is an encouraging one despite the loss, and the Rayders will look to close the gap between themselves and the Gladiators by continuing to improve, especially on offense.

"I still believe we could be more aggressive at the net," Randall said. "We did not get shut down at the net at any time but I think we still need to push harder and look to hit some big balls through the blocks."

"When we did that, we had success."

Charlevoix (6-11, 2-5 LMC) will have an opportunity to get back on the winning track on Thursday when it hosts rival Harbor Springs, and the Rayders also have their home invitational coming up on Saturday.

Rayders at Bay City Invite

BAY CITY — It's not often a team goes winless at a tournament and comes away feeling they've turned a corner.

But against some of the best competition the Charlevoix volleyball team is going to see this year, the Rayders held their own at the Bay City Central Invitational on Saturday.

Playing against Class A Saginaw Heritage and two big Class B schools in Carleton Airport and Essexville Garber, the Rayders only won a single set in pool play but were competitive in all three matches, falling to Airport in three (25-21, 13-25, 13-15) and playing competitive sets against Heritage (13-25, 23-25) and Garber (18-25, 21-25).

Placed in the silver bracket after pool play, Charlevoix ran into Airport again, suffering another close loss, 18-25, 21-25, that brought their day to a close.

The Rayders came to Bay City to improve against tough competition, not necessarily to win, and coach Audra Randall felt their mission was accomplished.

"(Even with the losses), the girls still felt like they were getting somewhere," Randall said. "They were communicating more and doing a better job of mixing it up at the net."

"At the end of the day, you wouldn't have thought we lost looking at us. The girls really thought it was a good productive step for our team and that was our objective."

Elise Stuck led the Rayders offensively with 21 kills, three aces, 20 digs and five blocks, and Kenzy O'Leary added 11 kills, three aces, 22 assists, 14 digs and two blocks as well.

Becca Moon had a strong day as a setter, assisting on 31 kills and adding seven kills, nine aces and 21 digs of her own, and Beth Veenstra and Raligan Novotny each chipped in four kills.

Julia Doskoch finished with 20 digs, Ali Jarema 17 and Kelsey Crandell-Marfuta and Nichole Hart 11 as well for the Rayders.

automatically moves to 4-0 overall on the year for the first time since 1991.

That start has earned the Rayders statewide attention, as the season's first Associated Press poll pegged them as the third-ranked team in Division 6 behind Millington and Negaunee.

Klinger's big night, which included 31 yards rushing, a pair of extra points made kicking, a pair of two-point conversions and an interception on defense, came matched by Colin Smith as a receiver.

Smith brought in touchdown catches of 52 and 65 yards, totaling 130 yards on three catches.

Cam Alden and Malcolm Williams also added touchdown catches, while Williams led with 71 yards rushing and a score.

Defensively, Alden, Caleb Hart and Garrett Seese each made 10 tackles.

Now with a week off, the Rayders will have two weeks to prepare for another league and tough test, when they travel to Glen Lake on Saturday, Sept. 23.

With the Suttons Bay matchup originally scheduled as the Rayders home opener, Charlevoix now won't play in front of a home crowd until Friday, Sept. 30, when they host East Jordan.

Suttons Bay cancels season, giving Rayders forfeit win

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix football team's home opener will be two weeks later than planned as the Rayders' week 4 opponent, Suttons Bay, has chosen to cancel its season due to a lack of healthy players.

Suttons Bay started the season with 16 varsity players, but a player quitting and three injuries in the first two weeks left the Norsemen with just 12 healthy players, five of them sophomores, for the team's week 3 game against Frankfort.

Unable to attract new players and fearing for the safety of underclassmen playing both ways without rest, Suttons Bay chose to call off the season rather than keep playing.

That decision leaves Charlevoix without a Week 4 opponent, and unable to find a suitable replacement in time, the Rayders are instead taking the forfeit win, improving to 4-0 and turning their focus to their next game against Glen Lake on Sept. 23.

The Rayders did have a couple of options for a Week 4 opponent, but all of them came with serious logistical problems.

T.C. St. Francis was the closest squad to Charlevoix with a Week 4 open date, but Rayder A.D. Travis Garrett and Gladiator A.D. Tom Hardy came to a mutual agreement that a game between the two programs was in neither team's best interest.

That left the Rayders with a couple of Detroit charter schools as options, but the lack of time to put together a contest and the over eight hour round-trip for the away team in a hypothetical game meant that those were not realistic opportunities either.

Instead, Charlevoix will get a functional bye week to rest up and prepare for a top 10 showdown with the Lakers, ranked 8th in Division 6, on the road on Sept. 23.

Pop Warner squads open season in Petoskey

PETOSKEY — Football is back, and that doesn't just mean college and NFL teams.

The local Pop Warner season also got underway this weekend, with two Charlevoix squads traveling to Petoskey's brand-new Northmen Stadium for their season openers.

The Junior Peeewe squad took the field first and came up just short in a hard-fought contest against the Petoskey Bulldogs, falling by a score of 6-0 despite a strong defensive effort.

Landon Swanson, Troy Nickel and John Paul Culver led a Rayder defense that held Petoskey to only one score, and Brady Jess and A.J. Spligl also made big contributions.

Offensively, Nickel, Culver and Swanson got the lion's share of production as Charlevoix moved the ball well but couldn't find the end zone before time expired.

The Junior Varsity squad also came up short in a tight slugfest against Boyne City, 13-0, as two big plays for the Ramblers offensively proved to be the difference in a game otherwise controlled by both teams' defenses.

Dmitri Bell, Max Ostrum, Jacob Claffin, Isaac Moor and Jack Herzog all had strong games for the Rayder defense in the loss, and quarterback Ostrum and backs Bell, Moor and Jacob Sauer helped Charlevoix move the ball well throughout the contest, with Claffin and Herzog leading the offensive line.

Both teams travel to Harbor Springs this Saturday for their next game, with the Peeewe Rayders playing Central Lake at 10:30 a.m. and the JV Rayders taking on the Traverse City Titans at noon.

On top of the personal honor, the winner also earns a $2,000 donation from the award's sponsor to his school's football program. Now in its 20th year of existence, the Coach of the Week program has awarded $367,000 to high school football programs across the state of Michigan.

Bindi said the honor was a program one in his mind, not a personal one.

"I told our players that this award wouldn't be possible without the hard work they've put in over the past three years to build this program up," Bindi said. "This coaching staff, the community, the team, it takes everyone to have the kind of success we're having right now and in my opinion their effort has earned this award as much as anything I've done since I got here."

Bindi has been coaching football for 37 years, with the last four years coming in Charlevoix. Prior to returning to his alma mater to coach, Bindi was a head coach at Belaire, reaching the 8-man state championship game in 2012, coached at U of D Jesuit in Detroit, and had numerous assistant coaching positions across the state, including a stint on the staff of an Arena League squad.

"I feel very fortunate to have been able to do the things I've done in my career, and I think back to all the coaches who've helped me out and inspired me along the way," Bindi said. "There's a multitude of guys who I've looked up to, who I learned the game from and who even today I'm learning things from at camps and clinics that make me a better coach, and I'm grateful to all of them."

Charlevoix is off to a 4-0 start this season after a 37-22 win over Mancelona on Friday and a forfeit win over Suttons Bay this week, and is currently ranked second in the state in Division 6 in the Detroit Free Press poll and third in the Associated Press poll.

The Rayders also adhere to USA Football's Heads Up Football curriculum of player safety measures, engage in baseline concussion testing for all high school student athletes, and also employ a full-time athletic trainer to attend all practices and games.

For more information on the Coach of the Week Program, contact Chris Fritsching, Lions' Director of Football Education, at 313-288-2248.

CHARLEVOIX — After capturing their first trophy to start the season, the Charlevoix girls golf team has stayed on track as the season nears its half-way point.

On Monday, the Rayders hosted a three team match at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Club, finishing nine strokes behind Harbor Springs with a 183 but ahead of Petoskey in a nine hole event.

Abbey Scholten led Charlevoix with a 42, followed by Emily Sabsook, who carded a 43, and Annie Joy, who shot a 47.

Maddie Lee shot a 51 to round out the Rayders' scoring golfers, and Rylynn Sladek and Olivia Jeakle each carded a 53 as well.

That event came on the heels of a third place finish at the Petoskey Bay View Invite last Thursday, where the Rayders finished behind champion Traverse City West and Harbor Springs with a 396 in the 18 hole event.

Abbey Scholten was once again Charlevoix's top golfer with a round of 93, followed once again by Emily Sabsook, 98 and Annie Joy, 101.

Jane Kelly shot a 104, Rylynn Sladek a 113 and Olivia Jeakle a 122, as well for the Rayders.

With Charlevoix consistently shooting under 400 strokes in meets for the first time in its history as a program, next the Rayders will look to improve its score as it aims for the school's first ever state finals berth at the Division 4 regional on Oct. 7 in Manistee.

Last year a 393 was good enough to earn a spot as a team, and Charlevoix will be looking to get below the 380 threshold that would have ensured a state final berth in four out of the five regionals contested last year.

ley scored the first half goal, assisted by Blaise Snabes that helped Charlevoix get to overtime in the first place.

In the final, the Rayders cruised by Manistee 3-0 to claim the tournament crown. Snabes scored twice for Charlevoix in the win, once on a penalty kick and once assisted by Matye, and Bradley added another goal assisted by Graham Kroon.

Boss said that the Rayders got excellent defensive play throughout the day from their defense, led by Pearl and Danny Nesburg, and that the Charlevoix midfield did a great job of controlling the tempo of all three games and tilting it in the Rayders' favor.

Charlevoix (8-3-2, 1-2 LMC) faces a crucial match on Thursday as it travels to Elk Rapids to face another LMC title contender.

The Rayders can't afford another conference loss as it sits two games behind the Elks and Harbor Springs in the standings, but the game also represents an opportunity to hand Elk Rapids a loss and make up ground in the title race.

day's rivalry clash in Charlevoix, the Harbor Springs soccer team was under siege.

Down 1-0, the opposing Rayders were relentless in their attack, putting shot after shot on frame to try and break through for the equalizer.

But the Rams stood strong over the final 30 minutes, turning back every assault to clinch a huge 1-0 win over their biggest rival.

Harbor Springs goalkeeper Parker Fairbairn had several big stops on what looked like sure goals, and the team defensive effort led by center backs Sam Bailey and Joe Claramunt was on point throughout the contest.

The Rams jumped out to a lead just three minutes into the game on a goal by Bolivian exchange student Santiago Martinez, who crashed the net on a shot attempt by teammate Lampton Kamalil and tapped in the rebound for what would end up being the game-winning score.

That goal was the start of a strong first half for the Rams, who came out with energy and intensity and looked in solid form heading to the halftime locker room.

But in the second half, Charlevoix put together one of its best halves of the season right as Harbor Springs' lack of depth caught up with it, forcing the Rams to play defensive to try and protect its lead.

The Rayders strung together several good scoring opportunities, including a beautiful volley from freshman Blaise Snabes that went off the post and a game-tying goal by Kevin Pearl off a corner kick with 16 minutes to play that was waived off due to a foul committed in the box.

Ultimately, Charlevoix couldn't turn any of those opportunities into the goal it needed.

"I was very happy with the way we played overall; we had a lot of great runs, and guys had great opportunities and great scoring chances, but we just didn't finish," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "Credit to Harbor Springs, they did a great job defensively of keeping us out and they played really solid, especially in the first half."

Jacob Harrod was in net for Charlevoix, making several saves of his own after giving up the early goal to keep the Rayders in the game and give them a chance at victory.

However much planning you do, however, the real key to success comes from a strong mentality.

"It's all about perseverance, because you know it's going to slow you down, you know it's going to make your legs heavy, and you've just got to keep going through it," Charlevoix coach Doug Drenth said. "Just keep going through, get past it and keep running, and you'll be fine."

As host, Drenth has had a front row seat to what makes the Mud Run so beloved.

"I think sometimes, we get so caught up in personal bests and medals in this sport, that we forget that cross country's really about the feeling of taking on a challenge, of doing something hard and overcoming it," Drenth said. "When I first moved back up north and Charlevoix was still hosting the Mud Run at the (former coaches Ken and Mary) Pludes' house, I'd go over and marvel at the joy on runners' faces as they went through the mud pit."

FAMILY PET

faithful friend

Would you like to have a pet hedgehog?

More and more people own hedgehogs — those charming little creatures with pointed snouts and bodies covered in quills — as pets. However, even though they are easy to keep in captivity, hedgehogs require care that not everyone is prepared to give. So keep reading before you decide that this kind of pet is right for you.

Hedgehogs are nocturnal. In the wild, they can walk all night for several kilometers in search of the insects they normally eat, and they maintain the same behavior when they live in captivity. For those who dream of playing with their hedgehog during the day, beware of its grumpy character. However, you don't have to worry about having to include insects in its diet: hedgehogs are quite happy with dry cat food. Like all exotic animals, hedgehogs require a warm environment, between 23°C and 25°C all year, otherwise they may catch cold or go into hibernation. Air conditioning fans, take note!

When they feel safe, hedgehogs will allow themselves to be picked up and petted. However, they still need to be handled carefully and gently. Far from being devoid of intelligence, these mammals can learn to answer to a call and will even use a litter box. If you want to have a hedgehog as a pet, be sure to deal with a professional breeder who will tell you everything you need to know in order to develop a good relationship with your pet. With time and patience, your prickly little pet will turn into a real friend.

Why does your dog bark so much?

Do you feel that your dog spends its entire life barking? You need to understand that it's natural for dogs to bark, the same way as it's natural for humans to talk. Indeed, some people — and dogs — love the sound of their own voices. However, if you've noticed that your pet's barking is excessive and that you're unable to silence it, or if it barks incessantly when alone, there are ways of remedying the situation.

- Always use the same word to silence your dog. For example, you could say "be quiet" in a low voice. Above all, do not shout, because your pet may bark even louder.
- Immediately after saying "be quiet," give your pup a treat. Your dog should stop barking if it wants to have the treat, and this way it will associate obeying you with getting a reward.
- Teach your pet to be quiet when it stays home alone. Leave the house without speaking to it or petting it, and then come back in a few minutes, continuing to ignore it. Wait for your pet to calm down before giving it any attention so that it does not think that its barking made you come back.
- If you have to go out for a few hours, allow your pet to burn off some energy before leaving. Take it for a walk, play with it or go through some obedience training exercises. A tired dog will spend more time sleeping than barking. Before resorting to an anti-barking device, it is preferable to talk with a canine behaviour consultant. Above all, remember that your dog always barks for a reason: your pet is stressed, excited, anxious, or maybe just happy.

Charlevoix couple to teach optometry in Vietnam

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — A Charlevoix couple is taking their optometry knowledge to Vietnam for 10 months.

Bob and Kim Molter are going to teach optometry in Ho Chi Minh City at the Pham Ngoc Thach University of Medicine. They leave Oct. 1 and will return in July.

"We're excited to be teaching students in another country, the profession of optometry," Kim said.

The couple had two optometry offices in Charlevoix and Kalkaska until selling the practices a few years ago. In their semi-retirement the Molters took part-time teaching jobs in Big Rapids at Ferris State University's College of Optometry. "We've been part-time clinical professors at the college of optometry in Big Rapids for the last year and now we are ready to do more," Bob said. Charlevoix native Shirley Gibson said she has the knowledge and understanding of city government to be the next Charlevoix mayor.

Gibson, 69, has served on the Charlevoix City Council from 2001-07 and was elected again in 2013 and 2015. She continues to serve the residents of Charlevoix's 3rd Ward.

"The people know I'm there for them," she said. "I find listening to and serving the public as a city councilwoman to be a meaningful experience. I value being involved with city government and being able to work with differing ideas to solve some of our city's pressing issues. As mayor, I will continue to make a difference for Charlevoix."

Kurtz vies for mayoral seat, seeks to lead city to more positive culture

LONNIE ALLEN

Come Nov. 21, there will be a new person sitting at the center of the table in Charlevoix City Council Chambers and Luther Kurtz hopes it will be him.

Kurtz, 39, is vying to be the next mayor of Charlevoix. He was born in Petoskey and said he moved to Charlevoix in 1981 at age 4.

Kurtz started attending Charlevoix Public Schools at age 10 and is a 1995 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

After graduating high school, Kurtz moved to California where he attended community college before transferring to the University of California-San Diego. During college Kurtz split his time between the west coast and Northern Michigan until moving back to Charlevoix in 2012.

"Charlevoix has always been my home," Kurtz said. For several years, Kurtz worked construction and

Townhouse development receives approval with conditions

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix City Council approved the site plan for a seven-unit townhouse development on Pine River Lane Monday.

The council unanimously approved the Charlevoix Pointe project with a condition requiring exterior landscaping to be completed within 12 months of the groundbreaking.

Council members chose to add this after hearing from Kristin Jones, who owns the single-family home immediately to the east of the property.

"I question whether the $30,000 is sufficient," Jones said. "If the city chooses to approve this project I urge you to protect the interest of this community with a larger surety bond to make sure it gets done. I urge you to ask for more green space. In conclusion I know this is a done deal, but I really appreciate you listening to me and I do not oppose development."

Councilwoman Shirley Gibson said the 12-month landscaping requirement is good development practices.

"It makes the site more appealing for the neighbors during the development process," Gibson said. "Nothing is perfect, but it shows we can work together to improve our com-

Questions continue to surround conservation easement plan

SEAN MILLER
(231) 547-6558
smiller@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Members of the Little Traverse Conservancy were at the Charlevoix Public Library on Sept. 15, to go over the upcoming Charlevoix Conservation Easement ballot measure that Charlevoix city residents will see on the Nov. 8 ballot.

"The reason we are holding this meeting is because over 400 people signed a petition to put this on the ballot this year. With that came donors to hire an attorney to help put the petition language together," said John Campbell, who started the proposal for this easement 25 years ago.

Campbell and Little Traverse Conservancy members gave a presentation about what the easement would mean to Charlevoix if passed by voters.

According to Kieran Fleming, director of land protection and stewardship at the Little Traverse Conservancy, if this easement is approved, the land at Lake Michigan Beach and Mount McSaubia will still be owned by the city. However, outside of the current and development on each of the properties, some new some restrictions will be placed to keep the parks natural beauty protected.

People attended the first meeting discussing the Charlevoix Conservation Easement at the Charlevoix Public Library on Sept. 15. The public meeting was hosted to help explain the ballot measure city residents see on the November ballot.

"In other words, things like the vision of the property or development of the property outside of what it is located there today would not be allowed under a conservation easement," Fleming said. "If this is approved, the land will still be owned by the city, but will have (conservancy) restrictions. So, in other words, the restrictions would be enforced by the conservancy so things like the development of the property outside of what it is there today would not be allowed."

According to paperwork provided at the meeting to people in attendance, the purposes of the easement are to assure that property will be perpetually preserved in its predominately nature, scenic, forested, and open space condition. The purposes of this easement are to protect the property's public recreation, natural resource and watershed values; to maintain and enhance biodiversity; to retain quality habitat for native plant and animals, and to maintain and enhance the natural features of the properties. Any use of the properties which may impair or interfere with the conservation values are expressly prohibited.

The major differences between an easement and what the city charter does now would be that the division of property, which is currently up to the vote of the people under the charter would end. The easement would prohibit any division of the park lands and limit construction on each property. Passing the conservation easement also would prohibit altering the park land, off road vehicles, and the installation of new signs and billboards.

Even though the majority of people in attendance were not residents of the city of Charlevoix (they were either Charlevoix Township or summer residents) a lot of questions were asked regarding what passing this easement would do for Charlevoix.

"Why would someone even vote against this?" asked Linda Foy, a Charlevoix summer resident.

Conservancy officials did not want to tell people how to vote on the issue. They assured people in attendance this would remain city property.

"We are objective enforcers of this easement. We are not here to advocate for it or tell people how to vote. We will get some subjective oversight but the nuts and bolts are all visible. The city will still own the land," Fleming answered.

A Charlevoix Township resident asked what would be done about the current erosion caused by the disc golf course put in at Mount McSaubia and what would be done to prevent or fix future erosion if the easement was passed.

"This city would still be in control of restoration. However, if this is passed and damage occurs then the Little Traverse Conservancy would require the city to fix it," Fleming answered.

In attendance at the meeting also was Bob Boss, the director of Mount McSaubia, who asked Fleming what the Little Traverse Conservancy gets out of the passing of the easement.

Fleming responded saying the Little Traverse Conservancy is interested in helping with conservation easement rights and if the public values conservation that is where the organization will focus its energy. Fleming continued to say the what the conservancy really gets if the easement is passed is the conservation of a property with the will of the people of Charlevoix.

A second meeting further discussing the easement will take place at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 27, at the Charlevoix Public Library and anyone is invited to come listen, learn, and ask questions about the easement prior to the November vote.

CHARLEVOIX — Both water and traffic were flowing normally again on the north side of Charlevoix on Sept. 15, after a water main break near U.S. 31 late Wednesday caused water service and traffic issues.

"Water service is fully operational and we don't expect any more problems with the water main," Charlevoix Department of Public Works Superintendent Pat Elliott said Thursday. "We do have a little more work to do on our connections to the main, but that should not interrupt water service."

The break happened around 6:30 p.m. when construction crews for the new Krist Food Mart were digging on Mercer Street near the main and it suddenly burst, said Krist Atanasoff, owner of Krist Oil Company.

"Our crews were working in this intersection and I don't know if it was because we removed a lot of the dirt or the pressure in the water line that caused the break," Atanasoff said. "Whatever caused the break I just hope we did not inconvenience the residents too much while it was being fixed."

Krist crews working on Mercer Street were removing soil about 10-feet from the water main that broke. The break most likely happened after soil shifted causing a coupling to separate from the water main. The water line that was installed prior to 1969 had different connection standards than what are used today, Heydlauff said.

"Krist crews followed all MISS DIG protocols while working in the area," Heydlauff said. "We believe that the removal of soil, which helped keep the line connected, combined with older materials and water pressure contributed to break of the 40-year-old line."

The water main break impacted traffic and affected local business in the area while crews worked to repair the line.

Brett Cuper, Roadhouse 757 owner, said they were open and fully operational on Thursday, but were forced to close Wednesday because of the break.

"We ended up shutting down around 7:20 p.m.," Cuper said. "It's unfortunate, but without running water there was nothing we could do."

Charles Kelly, son of Laura and Brian Kelly of Charlevoix, happened to be golfing with his grandmother at the municipal golf course at the time of the water main break.

"It looked like a flood," Kelly said. "There was water everywhere and we had a hard time finding a place where we could cross over to the seventh hole."

The highway was completely flooded in front of Roadhouse 757 so they had to go down from the usual cross walk, jumping over and dragging their carts through a 4-foot stream by the curb.

Kelly thought it was fun watching the cars as they splashed through and was disappointed when a motorcycle slowed down so he didn't get drenched.

Heather Basey, who was working at Charlevoix Inn and Suites during then water main break, said the biggest inconvenience was to the guests trying to find the business.

"The majority of calls were coming from people who were rerouted from the multiple detours onto side streets," Basey said. "They wanted to know how to find us."

Basey was thankful

Crews for the Charlevoix Department of Public Works work to fix a broken water main on Mercer Road near U.S. 31 Wednesday. The water main break rerouted traffic in the area and closed U.S. 31 during the repairs.

the hotel did not lose water and understood the reasoning behind the detours. Basey also was rerouted once she left work at 11 p.m.

"I only live a mile a way, but I could understand the feeling our guests had not knowing where to go," Basey said. "It's dark out, there are not a lot of street lights and if you not from the area it can be confusing."

City of Charlevoix crews worked through the night and were able to finish repairing the broken water main at approximately 1:30 a.m. Crews then performed routine flushing of the system per protocol for this type of repair, Heydlauff said.

"I appreciate our men and women of the Charlevoix DPW and water plant who worked through the evening and long into the night to take care of this issue," Heydlauff said. They are dedicated and we couldn't address issues like this without them."

Traffic on U.S. 31 returned to normal patterns shortly after 2 a.m. and motorists are expected to have no further delays, barring any unexpected issues with the water main repair on Mercer Street, Heydlauff said.

This break was more of an issue for the city because its location being very close to the city's water tower, which caused a significant amount of water to be lost quickly, Heydlauff said.

"Our DPW crews led by Pat Elliott responded very quickly to the incident," Heydlauff said. "This incident did show the great deal of cooperation we have in (Northern) Michigan. Fire and police from Charlevoix assisted with traffic control. The City of Petoskey, East Jordan and MDC contracting aided by sharing parts with us quickly.

Also, our neighbors in Charlevoix Township aided by exercising the joint water connections we have for emergencies like this and provided water to our system while we fixed this issue," Heydlauff added.

LETTER to the editor

Thank you Hospice of Northwest
Michigan

Editor:

The family of Joan Way want to extend our deepest appreciation to Hospice of Northwest Michigan for the care they gave our mother in her final days here on earth.

Joan was diagnosed with stage four colon cancer in March of this year while she was in Florida. Upon bringing her home in April, we had our initial consultation with the doctors in Michigan, and they recommended that we not wait too long to call on Hospice. They indicated that the average stay with Hospice care is only one or two weeks and that for most situations that's not nearly long enough.

Even though Hospice is known for end of life care, they offer so much more than simply being there the last week of one's life. So, we listened and encouraged mom to sign up with Hospice in June and thus began a very positive and helpful relationship as we journeyed together on her final road of life.

Mom passed on Aug. 28. We are so appreciative of all the effort and care given by the numerous Hospice caregivers as they developed a trusted relationship with our mom and with the five siblings, spouses and grandchildren.

We really cannot thank them enough for their gracious and very respectful care. They were there on a regular weekly basis to help with medical care and questions, bathing, and overall support in every way possible. In addition, they provided phone consultation for a variety of questions we had.

Not being caregivers ourselves yet wanting to give mom the best care we could at home, Hospice was vital in our effort to provide her with dignity, love and comfort up until and including her final day. So, thank you Hospice of Northwest Michigan for being there for us when we needed you most and for caring for our mom like she was your own.

Reading, writing, arithmetic and 'code red'

Over dinner, we talk about his day. It's the third day of the new school year and Mom and Dad have a lot of questions. Of course, getting information out of children, especially my 7-year-old, is often as difficult as herding cats.

"Who did you sit with at lunch?" "Fernando."

"What do you think of your teacher?" "She's nice."

"Did you have music or art class today?" "Music."

"Anything fun in music class?" "Not really."

Not really — it's his response to a lot of things these days.

"Well, we did do stuff, but it wasn't really music stuff," he says.

"Like what," I ask.

"We talked about what to do in a fire drill and what to do during a 'code red.'"

A heavy silence blankets the dinner table. I don't want to ask about code red, but I know we can't ignore it.

"What's a code red?" "It's when a bad person comes in the school and you have to be really quiet and hide."

More silence.

I discretely give a glance to his dad, his dad to me. In 2016, this isn't a foreign concept, but then again, when we were his age, we only had fire and tornado drills.

"So... what do you do during a code red?"

"Well, the smaller kids hide in a spot. We lock the door. We push the piano up against it. But I'm a taller kid so I don't hide with them."

He takes a pause before continuing. We've all since stopped eating.

"After we lock the door, I go out the window to a certain part in the school yard and stay there."

My child — all our children — preparing for "code red." Learning to lock doors, hide, sit in silence, escape — beyond the reading, the math, the science, history and the arts — this is part of their curriculum now. Learning to prepare for the worst, hope for the best.

After a few moments more of silence, he asks, "What did you have to do during a code red?"

"Well, we just had fire and tornado drills," I tell him.

"You didn't have bad guys that came into schools?"

"There were bad guys, but I suppose we have to be better prepared these days," I tell him. "I hope you never have to do any of that."

"Do you think I'll have to do that?"

"I don't know, buddy." And that's all I could say, that's all any parent can say. Because what else is there?

CHARLEVOIX
HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

Just over a decade ago, a group of Charlevoixites realized that our public library, located then where the Circle of Arts building is now on Clinton Street, was bursting at the seams. Around that time, the high school moved from its location on East Garfield and May Streets out onto Marion Center Road in 2002, and the middle school on Grant Street moved into the vacated high school. The downtown school, built 1927-28, stood vacant, and developers had gleams in their eyes. It was prime property. So the determined, never-take-no-for-an-answer group went to work with the idea that the old school would be a perfect place for an expanded new library. The building's external walls were structurally sound, it was centrally located, and just the right size. A library here would also keep an important Demolition of upper floor school classrooms in 2005 to make way for new library.

focus on the downtown area. The group spread the word as far as it would go, sometimes to an audience of two. Their endless efforts met with success. An increased millage bond issue vote came up, and the voters approved. In 2005, the entire structure was gutted to the walls and rebuilt to specifications that resulted in what to many eyes is one of the finest state-of-the-art library structures in Michigan. No one expected we would be getting the masterpiece that is now the Charlevoix Public Library. This coming Sunday afternoon, Sept. 25, the CPL will be marking its tenth anniversary with a big open house. The Charlevoix Historical Society hopes that everyone in town will turn out to celebrate our good fortune in possessing this remarkable achievement.

Esperance owner is garden club speaker

CHARLEVOIX — Suzanne Archarya, owner of Esperance, was the featured speaker at the Charlevoix Area Garden Club on Tuesday, Sept. 13.

A woman with Italian origins, and with 40 years of experience in fine dining, she quoted from "What's Cooking America," saying, "We eat with all of our senses — the first one is sight." Archarya showed many ways to use flowers in food presentation as well as preparation.

The edible floral details add color and phyto-nutrients. Most often used as colorful sprinkles atop other dishes, a surprising number of flowers are edible and tasty. Snapdragons, geranium petals and mums, she said, are edible, and she highly recommended slivered rose petals atop a scoop of vanilla ice cream as an colorful, delicious dessert treat. The flowers expand a cook's possibilities of special additives.

Archarya stressed the importance of using morning-picked home-grown, chemically-untreated, flowers. She also stressed careful washing and clean, safe preparation. Attendees were invited to sample the bright orange nasturtiums, each made with a small chevre cheeseball-center, topped with black sesame seeds.

Esperance is located at 12853 U.S. 31 North, and is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Camp Sea-Gull improvement efforts continue

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County's Hayes Township is moving forward with its efforts to provide a fishing pier and restrooms at the Camp Sea-Gull township park on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix.

In 2015, Hayes Township applied for a grant from the Great Lakes Fishery Trust to construct a fishing pier and restrooms at the park. The fishing pier would be constructed in conjunction with the proposed boat launch on the west side of the park.

As a requirement to receive the grant for the fishing pier, the Great Lakes Fishery Trust awarded Hayes Township $23,000 for the engineering of the pier and to conduct ice flow studies to ensure the safety of the fishing pier.

Performance Engineering in Charlevoix completed the required studies and the township re-submitted the grant request for $234,000 to Great Lakes Fishery Trust for the construction of the fishing pier and restrooms. The pier and restrooms would be constructed at the same time as the boat launch to save money on both projects, township officials said.

In preparation for construction in 2017 of the new access road, fishing pier, restrooms and boat launch, Hayes Township officials sold five of the cabins located within the planned construction area on the beach. Three of the cabins have been dismantled and recycled and two more are scheduled for removal and recycling this fall.

The Hayes Township board is very proud of its ability to recycle most of the construction materials from the cabins. The township also pumped, dismantled and filled in the three dilapidated septic tanks serving those cabins. To help protect the water of Lake Charlevoix and its watershed the septic tanks — located within 50 feet of Lake Charlevoix — will be removed.

The township has been awarded $486,400 in grants from Michigan Department of Natural Resources Waterways for the new access road and the boat launch. The Charlevoix County Millage Appropriations has also awarded $10,000 for the boat launch.

The Hayes Township board has set up a special project fund with the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. The Hayes Township Camp Sea-Gull Improvement Fund will receive donations toward the matching funds required for the grants.

Individuals wishing to make a donation to the Hayes Township Camp Sea-Gull Improvement Fund should contact the foundation at (231) 536-2440 or make a tax deductible donation at www.c3f.org.

Charlevoix Main Street to host historic building preservation presentation Sept. 29

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix Main Street will host a Main Street Building Basics presentation at 6:30 p.m. on Sept. 29, in the community room of the Charlevoix Public Library. The public, especially downtown property owners and individuals interested in historic preservation, are invited to attend.

The presentation will be conducted by Debra Ball Johnson, design specialist for the Michigan Main Street program and historic architect in the State Historic Preservation Office. The presentation will focus on the history of downtown and the evolution of older buildings over time. Also discussed will be good historic preservation principles and practices to maintain the unique qualities of historic buildings while also making them functional for today's needs.

The presentation is a kick-off point for the Charlevoix Main Street Design Committee to select up to three downtown buildings over the next year to receive no-cost design services intended to facilitate the rehabilitation of a building's facade.

Any building located within the Main Street district is eligible to receive the services that includes a schematic drawing of the proposed facade improvement and paint samples. The design services are provided by the State Historic Preservation Office and Michigan Main Street Center at the Michigan State Housing Development Authority.

"We've really been working hard as a committee to look at ways to preserve our historic downtown and we've been collaborating with the Historic District Study Commission," said Design Committee chair John Campbell. "Charlevoix has a unique downtown character and our hope is to preserve it for years to come."

Any property owner interested in receiving the services must first attend a Main Street Building Basics presentation. An application, available at the presentation and at the Main Street office, can then be submitted to the Design Committee for review and approval.

"I'm really excited to see the progress in our Main Street program," said city manager Mark Heydlauff. "Our volunteers have been working hard and enhancing the building design downtown is a great step we can take toward encouraging downtown housing and historic preservation."

In addition to Ball Johnson's presentation, there will be a general update about Charlevoix Main Street. For more information, visit www.charlevoix-mainstreet.com.

Farmers market director promotes project with enthusiasm

Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Chris Leese, Charlevoix Farmer's Market director, has been managing the Charlevoix Farmers' Market for three years and her enthusiasm for the project is gaining momentum all the time. She has created an interesting and enjoyable atmosphere downtown, with special events book-marking the Thursday morning shopper's experience.

The season kicked off in May when "The Dog's Days of Spring" featured wiener dog races and special pet treats. On June 16 there was a "Green Market Day" when community associations were free to share information about energy saving methods. July 7, marked "Healthy Fit Market Day" with its free classes and a health fair. Also in July were a "Kids Day" with entertainer Papa Crow and "Art in the Market" with its Plein air artists.

"We are working on building around themes and enhancing the list of events each year," Leese said.

Many market days saw Twister Joe and his balloon creations and/or Paul Gelderbloom on the hammered dulcimer providing added attractions. A participation contest involving 200 or more kids culminated Charlevoix market manager Chris Leese has created multiple theme filled events to go along with the farmers market on Thursdays in East Park in downtown Charlevoix. This year the farmers market will move the Charlevoix Public Library beginning on Oct. 13 and will be open from 3-6 p.m. to allow people to pick up fresh produce after work and school each week, Leese said.

in awarding junior marketeer T-shirts to 85 kids who attended four market days during the season.

"The farmer's market is a place for families," Leese said. "It's a holistic experience for them; they can meet the farmers, buy fruits and veggies, then go home and turn them into a delicious, nutritious dinner. It is truly a place for parents to bring their kids."

Leese arranged for hundreds of school children to visit and shop during field trips last spring where farmers and bakers provided special discounts and samples for the children.

There will be two more farmers' markets on Bridge Street: Thursdays on Sept. 29 and Oct. 6 and that will conclude a successful summer season downtown in East Park after which at least 15 of the 35 local vendors will move their booths to the Charlevoix Public Library.

"The participants will be selling outdoors at the library, weather permitting beginning Oct. 13," Leese said. "When the weather isn't favorable, we will move indoors to the library's community room."

The new market location at the library will be open from 3-6 p.m. each Thursday.

"We think the afternoon works out better for working people and parents driving children after school who want to come and pick up fresh produce on their way home," Leese said.

The market runs until Nov. 22, the Tuesday before Thanksgiving, providing an opportunity to order fresh turkey, pies, breads and wreaths for the holidays.

"The farmers' market is the life of a community," Leese said, "and we need to be proud of it. It is a network of shoppers and vendors and family fun that often works as an incubator for businesses which later open storefronts like Harwood Gold and That French Place. We manage what is sold and insist that everything is locally created or grown. The Charlevoix Farmers' Market is not a craft fair."

Leese who formerly, along with her husband, ran a national magazine out of their home for 18 years (www.pleasurehorse.com), decided to sell the magazine and utilize her marketing experience in her local community. She is a self-proclaimed manager, promotor and dreamer. If you were to witness her in East Park on farmer's market days, you would conclude that she is also one of Charlevoix's most enthusiastic ambassadors.

Charlevoix Public Schools to host meeting about school facilities

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education, superintendent Mike Ritter and Charlevoix Public Schools Facility Study Team announced two upcoming meetings to explain the findings of a recent facility study.

Findings will be explained at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 5, at Charlevoix Elementary School in the library. The will be another meeting at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 12, in the Rayder Room at the Round Lake Educational Center. Tours of the schools are scheduled at 6 p.m. at each school on its respective date.

In February, a Charlevoix Public Schools Facility Study Team was created. The objective was to research, study, and ultimately recommend a plan of action for both short-term and long-term facility planning to Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education. Organizers will be offering these two community forum opportunities along with a community survey in November. The groups hope that with the public's help, they can determine the best plan for the future.

secretary for one of the city's largest law firms. Upon returning to her hometown in 1980, Gibson continued as a legal secretary before becoming a Charlevoix downtown business owner.

In 1990, she joined the Petoskey News-Review as the classified advertising manager and was employed in that position for 18 years until her retirement in 2008.

"I value my roots as a native — it's why I came home," Gibson said. "We live in one of the most beautiful areas with the best people and that's why I love Charlevoix and it is an honor to serve this community."

Besides serving on the city council, Gibson also serves as a member of the Airport Advisory Committee and the Main Street Design Committee. She is on the Conservation Easement Executive Committee and is a member of the Charlevoix Elks Lodge and before her City Council career Gibson was a member of the Planning Commission from 1994-2000.

"I have over 20 years of city participation that gives me solid hometown experience in city government," Gibson said.

She chose to run for mayor because she understands the role the mayor plays in Charlevoix and it is a natural progression as a public servant with multiple years of governing experience, she said. Gibson also wants to build on the relationships she has developed with city staff and the residents of Charlevoix to keep the city moving forward.

"I am prepared for this next step in governing our city — especially as I have no conflict of interest or special personal agenda when it comes to overseeing city business," she said. "The mayor's job is limited, but very important for Charlevoix. As mayor I know I can be an ambassador to visitors; I will attend and represent Charlevoix at special events and will further a solid working relationship with council and staff."

"Over the years I have built those relationships and consider myself lucky to have an open dialogue with the team of people running our day-to-day affairs," Gibson added. "Charlevoix is very fortunate to have a forward thinking, professional and accessible city manager. I consider this is our most valuable relationship and I look forward to continuing to support and work with Mark Heydlauff, and the City Council, in a new role."

As mayor, Gibson said she would not support a revisit of the dock expansion project at the city-owned marina because it would be fiscally irresponsible and a majority of residents are satisfied with the current marina.

"I want to emphasize we still owe roughly $4.5 million with payments on this very large debt for another 10 years," she said. "It isn't fiscally responsible. When the expansion idea was before City Council two years ago, we seriously looked at trying to expand the marina. I understand the reasoning behind the idea of expansion, but there was no viable public support from the vast majority of my constituency in the 3rd Ward. In addition, there are ongoing safety concerns cited by a former commander of the U.S. Coast Guard, the DNR and the Army Corps of Engineers. They agree an expansion would have a negative safety impact on our existing commercial marine activity."

Gibson supports protecting Lake Michigan Beach Park and Mount McSaubia Recreation Area with a conservation easement.

"These two properties are invaluable city assets. The easement will guarantee that these properties will not be subdivided, developed for commercial, industrial, residential and other purposes," Gibson said. "We can still enhance the current usage, and/or improve upon the area. The proposed easement has very popular public support and, if approved, will amend the insufficient protections in the City Charter. If the ballot proposal is adopted the city will continue to own these properties and there will be an amendment to Article II, Section 2.16(h) of the Charlevoix City Charter. Then there will be the protection of these fragile areas in their current natural, scenic, forested and open space condition for future generations. Our current City Charter does not protect these areas. A conservation easement does."

Gibson said the city council's top priorities after the election should be: creating lasting partnerships with neighboring townships, continue infrastructure projects throughout the city, supporting the Main Street Program for a vibrant downtown, maximizing taxpayer dollars with good, honest and efficient government, continuing to protect the public land/resources and assets of the city, smart growth, which she said is an urban planning and transportation theory that concentrates growth in compact, walkable areas. It also advocates walkable, bicycle-friendly land use, complete streets, and mixed-use development with a range of housing choices, and hiring a professional, economic/business development director.

"A vote for me is a vote for the people, businesses and a fiscally responsible and vibrant Charlevoix," Gibson said.

HOUSING

munity when we listen and find solutions that move the city forward."

The development would include seven single-family, 3,190-square-foot units each with three bedrooms, three bathrooms and a two-car garage. The units are proposed to be wood frame construction, 2.5 stories with gable roofs, 30 feet tall (measured from the finished grade to the ridge and the eaves) and have a stone veneer and shingle lapboard-style siding.

Councilman Bill Supernaw questioned if the city has had any experience dealing with the developers. Panoff said they have a good reputation and Gibson said she has viewed some completed projects by this company.

"These developers are really into the smart growth concepts. I am an advocate for that," Gibson said. "I have seen some of their developments in Traverse City and they are really nice."

Conditions of approval

The planning commission unanimously voted to recommend approval of the project to the council with 11 conditions, some of which include:

— The developers must pay in advance for their portion of water main upgrades needed for Pine River Lane. To accommodate the development, the old 4-inch main would be replaced with a new 8-inch main. The developers' estimated cost for the work is $22,000-$30,000.

— The developer must design and install a state- and city-approved water and sewer system on the site.

— The developer must grant a permanent utility easement to the city on the property.

— The developers must provide a performance bond in the amount of $30,000. The bond would cover expenses the city could incur should the developers start the work and then fail to complete it as planned.

— The steepest grade on the site may be no more than 13 percent, as recommended by national standards, to facilitate emergency vehicle access.

This is the first time they have participated in this type of work overseas, though they have done mission trips the last three years with the organization VOSH — Volunteer Optometric Services to Humanity

"This is going to be totally different than what we have done on our mission trips," Bob said. "We are going to be regular professors at an optometry college as opposed to associated doctors on a mission trip."

The classes are all taught in English, but the Molters are expecting to learn some Vietnamese as they immerse themselves in the culture and take up residence in the city.

"It will take some time getting used to the language barrier, but we expect to learn basics pretty quickly," Kim said. "Instead of being gone a few weeks it will be 10 months. This is a new experience for us."

Charlevoix artist accepted into ArtPrize exhibit

SEAN MILLER
(231) 439-9378 smiller4@pettodaynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Edith Pair, a Charlevoix native, was recently accepted into ArtPrize in Grand Rapids.

ArtPrize is an open and independently organized international art competition that, according to The Art Newspaper, is the most-attended public art event in the world.

For 19 days every fall, three square miles of downtown Grand Rapids is filled with art from artists all over the world in more than 160 different venues including museums, galleries, bars, restaurants, bridges, walls, and more and is free and open to the public.

This is the first year Pair entered and was accepted into the competition for her piece titled "Crazy B - - - h" which she explains is an acrylic painting on wood with mixed media.

"My piece is basically acrylic on wood and is a multimedia piece with a very rock and roll approach. It is a tortured soul and an abstract face," Pair said.

"My inspiration for it comes just from women having a bad day every once in a while. It's basically for women who are having a bad day and are going crazy," she added.

Pair continued saying that she is excited about being entered and where her painting will be during ArtPrize.

"It's in a perfect location. It will be at the B.O.B. right in downtown and we just went down to hang it up. This is my first go at ArtPrize and I'm really excited," she said.

From Charlevoix, Pair graduated from the Charlevoix High School in 1992 and continued school at the Art Institute in Chicago where she received her bachelors in fine arts in 1996 and lived for 15 years.

"I lived in Chicago for about 15 years and then came back to Charlevoix. I came back because I missed being in a small town and it felt more comfortable to open my gallery at that time in a place I was familiar with," she said.

Pair owned and operated her gallery in Charlevoix in 2006 which she continued with for about five years. Now, Pair just exhibits her work in galleries and does custom work for clients.

Having never entered ArtPrize before and getting accepted on her first time, Pair plans on entering every year now and has already thinking about what she will do for next year.

"I took a chance and entered and I was so thrilled to be accepted. I plan on entering next year as well and have ideas for a huge installation. Now that I at least have my feet wet with getting in I know a little bit more about how it works and I want to go really big next year and keep trying to get bigger and bolder every year," she said.

ArtPrize runs Sept. 21 through Oct. 9 in downtown Grand Rapids and any one visiting will be able to see "Crazy B - - - h" in the B.O.B. on its first floor at 20 Monroe Ave. NW. If you would like to vote for Pair's artwork, her code is 63762.

"If you are looking at my artwork I encourage people to look for a little pear that I hide. I put it in each piece that I do. That way you know it's an original piece if you can find the pear," Pair said.

For more information about ArtPrize or Pair visit www.artprize.org or www.artprize.org/63762.

KURTZ

eventually became a licensed journeyman electrician in Michigan. As an electrician he began to save his money to start his first skydiving company and from there went on to be a successful businessman, he said.

"Today, my wife Mary and I are the owner/operators of several skydiving schools across the country, including a school at the Charlevoix Airport," he said. "We own and operate a phone center in downtown Charlevoix that makes reservations for our own skydiving schools and for other schools across the country. We also own and operate the Charlevoix Cinema III."

Kurtz is a former member of the Downtown Development Authority and is currently finishing his first term serving the residents of Charlevoix's 1st Ward.

He also serves the community as president of the Top of Michigan Trails Council, chairman of the Charlevoix Trail Ambassador Committee, Charlevoix Alano Club Board of Directors, member of the Main Street Economic Restructuring Committee, co-leader of Live from Charlevoix Concert Series, coordinator of the Charlevoix Fourth of July Flag Jump, chairman of the outdoor dining committee, and co-leader of the Charlevoix to Harbor Springs Marathon Committee.

Kurtz chose to seek the Charlevoix mayoral seat because he believes he can "bring a fresh, positive and cooperative approach to how the City of Charlevoix interacts with itself, the Charlevoix residents, and its neighboring communities."

"As a city, I think we are moving in the right direction with our positive attitude toward economic development, historical preservation, positive community interaction, protecting our parks, and promoting our city," Kurtz said. "I want to help continue this positive approach in Charlevoix."

Kurtz said the mayor sets the tone of the meetings and drives the "spirit of the city."

"I see myself leading a movement toward a more positive Charlevoix culture," Kurtz said. "I believe I can guide our council toward a more, 'How can we make this work?' attitude," he said. "It is true that council will not be able to approve every idea. But as long as we look at each idea with this attitude first, we will be moving toward our goal of a more positive Charlevoix."

Kurtz said he doesn't have plans to revisit the dock expansion project at the city's marina and said this discussion only comes up during election years.

"I don't have any plans to revisit the dock expansion," he said. "As mayor, I would support looking into any idea that could potentially benefit our city. We should look at all ideas through the lens of 'How can we make this work and how can this benefit the city?' But the marina idea has caused some controversy recently and my understanding is the Army Corps of Engineers virtually told us we couldn't do it anyway. I don't foresee this coming up anytime in the near future, except during election time."

Kurtz supports allowing the people to decide if a conservation easement should be set up at Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach Park, but also believes the city should look at other options first.

"If the people vote yes to granting a permanent easement to the conservancy then I would be supportive of the process moving forward," he said. "This summer, council discussed multiple options for providing additional protection for our park areas. I personally would like to see us explore some of these other options further before moving forward with the easement. After discussions with the Little Traverse Conservancy, I believe the easement has some positives and negatives. One positive is that it restricts division and development of the parks forever. One possible negative is that it permanently restricts our ability to introduce new recreation ideas to the park in the future. If the people decide that granting a permanent easement to the conservancy means losing too much control of our property, and vote "no," then I will continue to look into other, less burdensome ways to protect our parks from development into the future."

Kurtz said Charlevoix City Council's top priorities after the election should be to work to develop more year-round jobs, continue to build a community environment that young people want to raise their families in, improve the economic vitality of our shoulder seasons, increase low- to medium-income housing availability, continue improving the downtown atmosphere, considering input from differing community groups, increase activities and community connectivity for our senior citizens, create a better walking and bike friendly atmosphere in Charlevoix and the surrounding areas, continue to improve our relationships with our neighboring townships, Charlevoix County, Charlevoix school board, Charlevoix hospital, and the many other nonprofit and for-profit entities in the community.

truly "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

"I want to be a great mayor for you and for Charlevoix," Kurtz said. "Please contact me with any questions or comments on what I can do to make that happen."

CHARLEVOIX — It took longer than expected, but the Harbor Springs girls golf team brought home another trophy on Monday, capturing the Lady Rayder Classic title at the Belvedere Golf Club.

The Rams shot a 373, their best score to date this season, to win the title by 41 strokes over host Charlevoix.

That score came in spite of some adversity, as two lightning delays midway through the round pushed the event's length to nearly eight hours and forced all seven participating teams to race sunset to finish the tournament.

Despite that, the Rams put on a strong performance. All four Harbor Springs scorers shot under 100 for the round and the Rams took four of the top six spots, led by Cara Smith's round of 89 and runner-up finish.

Harbor Springs' Madi Bezilla continued her recent stretch of strong play with a 91, good for a tie for third overall, Calli O'Neill shot a 96 to take fifth and Serena Luplow carded a 97 to take sixth overall.

Jackie LaFaive and Evie Garver each shot a 108 as well for Harbor Springs.

"We were very happy to come up with a win after two lightning delays," Harbor

Springs coach Pete Kelbel said. "Having four girls medal in the top six was outstanding as well."

Shorthanded Rayders beat Elks to get back in LMC hunt

ELK RAPIDS — The Charlevoix boys soccer team spent most of Thursday's road showdown with LMC rival Elk Rapids a man down due to an early red card that forced them to play 10 on 11.

But you wouldn't have known it watching the play on the field, as the Rayders put together one of their best games of the season to win 2-0 and keep their conference title hopes alive.

Charlevoix took an early lead on a goal by Noah Carson, assisted by Christian Matye that was set up by strong passing, with four players touching the ball before Carson scored.

Then came the red card, which gave the host Elks an 11 on 10 advantage to try and take advantage of.

But the Rayders adapted quickly, getting a strong defensive outing from Cam Clark, Kevin Pearl, Danny Nesburg and Matt Good with an assist from mid-fielder David Ritter to keep the Elks off the board.

Up top, freshman Blaise Snabes had the best game of his young career to help create space for Charlevoix, which helped lead to Carson's second goal on a penalty kick to help put the game away in the second half.

Jacob Harrod protected the shutout for Charlevoix (9-4-2, 2-2 LMC) in net as the Rayders kept their composure and pulled out a critical conference win.

"It's always a good game against Elk Rapids and a real test whenever you're playing here," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "I'm just really proud of our team for responding to adversity by coming together and stepping up as a unit."

"Everyone raised their games tonight, and that's what allowed us to finish off a huge win on the road."

Charlevoix was also shorthanded also dropped a tough nonconference test on Saturday traveling down to Division 2 Ludington for an afternoon contest and falling 5-3 in a close match.

EAST LANSING — The Charlevoix cross country team took a trip downstate to run in one of the nation's biggest meets on Friday, participating in the always tough Spartan Invite hosted by Michigan State University.

The Rayder girls finished 23rd out of 43 teams in a race that included almost all the top contenders in Division 2 and 3, doing so despite missing several key pieces from their lineup.

Michelle Bollini took 14th overall (19:55), acquitting herself well and earning a medal against some of the state's best.

Local Favorite Tom Rex Jr. Wins GAM Senior Championship at Belvedere

JAMES CHRISTENSEN
(231) 439-9343
jchristens@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — An emotional local favorite, Tom Rex Jr. of Charlevoix, emerged the champion of the 30th GAM Senior Championship presented by Omni Kinetics Tuesday at what he calls his home course, Belvedere Golf Club.

"Words can't describe what this means to me," the soon-to-be 64-year-old said after shooting a 1-under 35 and winning by three shots. The field of age 55-and-over golfers played a modified nine-hole set-up for the final round in the rain-shortened championship hampered by heavy rains in the morning that made part of the course unplayable.

"I've tried so hard to win another GAM championship," Rex said. "My only one was a GAM junior tournament in 1970, so I've been trying to do this for a long, long time. This is very special to me."

Rex was tied for the lead with a 2-over 74 through Monday's wind-whipped round in sunshine, and emerged with a 1-over 109 total after a lengthy rain delay and the final round being shortened to play on the upland holes (holes 1, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 17 and 18) of the storied course.

He beat Ken Chlicka of Shelby Township, who carded a final 37 to go with his first-round 75 for 112.

Five golfers tied for third at 113, including Pete Walz and Steve Maddalena of Jackson, Ed Vomastek of Traverse City, Mark Ochsankhi of Grand Rapids and defending champion Mike Tungate of East Lansing.

Tom Strand of Traverse City emerged the Super Senior Division champion among the golfers over age 65 in the field. Strand shot a 70 in the first round and closed with a 41 for 111.

Ben Benson of Pontiac was second with a 40 for 113.

Rex, known in the Charlevoix community for his work with youth in golf and other sports, said he played well with three birdies against two bogeys in the final nine, and said a little luck helped him win.

"So many people talked to me about winning this thing because it was at the home course, but you know, you have got to get a little lucky. There are so many good players in Michigan. I probably played in 20 (Michigan Amateurs) over the years here. I grew up in Birmingham, was in the steel business in Detroit and then in Chicago and retired and moved up here."

Rex said a little oil was leaking from his game he finished up on the No. 18.

"I rolled a little grounder with a 7-iron," he said. "I thought that bogey might do me in because I had no idea what anybody else outside our group was doing."

Strand, 65, thought he might be in trouble with his 41, but his 70 from the first round gave him enough cushion. The Detroit native who lives in Traverse City six months and Austin, Texas, for six months, was playing in his first GAM event ever, and played Belvedere for the first time in the first round.

"I played well this first round and enjoyed the course and tournament tremendously," said the retired mechanical contractor. "I have to thank my friend Chuck Edwards. He got me to play in this. He plays in GAM tournaments all the time. I'm going to play more."

Belvedere hosted the GAM Senior for the fourth time since 2004, and has also hosted the Michigan Amateur Championship 40 times, most recently 2014 and 2003. From 1963-88 it was the annual host.

gan Conference sweep on Thursday and ended with a second place finish in their hosted tournament on Saturday.

"I am proud of the girls and their accomplishment today taking second place at their home tournament," Charlevoix varsity volleyball coach Audra Randall said afterward.

The Rayders began with Harbor Light in pool play, earning wins of 25-16 and 25-15, getting strong serving in both sets from Kenzy O'Leary and Becca Moon.

In their second match, the Rayders met Inland Lakes, earning wins of 25-11 and 25-20, then in their third pool play match, met a tough Roscommon team.

"We started off well in the first set, but around 10-11 we lost our rhythm and stayed a point or two behind them," added Randall.

The Rayders fell in both sets, 25-21 and 25-16, giving them the No. 2 seed in bracket play.

St. Ignace was the first team Charlevoix met in bracket play, a match in which the Rayders earned wins of 25-22 and 25-23.

In their second match of brackets, the Rayders met No. 1 seed Brimley, who they again earned a win against, 25-15 and 25-21.

Matched up with Roscommon once again in the overall tournament finals, the Rayders again picked up a big test.

"The first set we started out strong taking an early lead of 8-4, and 11-8, but with some front row communication errors and determined play by Roscommon, they shot ahead of us 19-11, finishing the set 25-12," said Randall.

Roscommon then also took the second set and the overall invite win.

O'Leary and Elise Stuck each earned All-Tournament team honors for the Rayders, picking up votes from the coaches in attendance.

O'Leary finished with 35 assists, 22 kills, 11 aces and 28 digs, while Stuck had 24 kills, 60 digs and eight blocks.

Also for Charlevoix, Becca Moon had 38 assists, 22 kills, 49 digs and four blocks, Julia Doskoch had nine aces, 27 digs and went 35-for-39 on serve receive and Kelsey Crandall-Marfuta had 24 digs and five aces.

Beth Veenstra added 11 kills and 12 digs and Nichole Hart had nine kills, 10 digs and three blocks for the Rayders, who move to 10-12 overall.

Charlevoix 3, Harbor Springs 0

CHARLEVOIX — Not one single player led the Charlevoix volleyball team to a 3-0 win over Harbor Springs on Thursday. Not two players. Not even three.

Head coach Audra Randall said the Rayders' victory was a complete team effort. She added it was the best her team has played together all season.

"That is a good feeling when you get everybody in (the match), and when they do get in, they contribute," Randall said.

Charlevoix defeated the Rams in straight sets, 25-11, 25-12 and 25-21 to keep pace in the Lake Michigan Conference.

In set one, the Rams jumped out to 2-0 lead, but the Rayders came back to take a 6-2 lead before the first break. It didn't take long for the Rayders to make a big push, jumping out to a 20-10 lead.

Becca Moon then recorded three straight aces to push the Charlevoix lead to 23-10. She had six aces in the first set and 10 on the night.

"There's a time where you've got to be really explosive and attack," Randall said. "(Moon) stepped up and was aggressive at the serving line, and it paid off for us."

Charlevoix switched sides for set two, yet continued to dominate the net. Although the Rams cut the lead to 12-8, Charlevoix went on a run which gave them a 20-10 lead, and eventually the 2-0 match advantage.

In set three, Harbor Springs cut the lead to two, 23-21. However, Charlevoix notched a kill from Beth Veenstra to go up by three. An ace from Kenzy O'Leary sealed the match win for the Rayders.

Moon added 15 assists, nine kills and nine digs in addition to her 10 aces. Elise Stuck totaled five blocks, 11 kills and eight digs. Ali Jarema tallied 10 digs, while O'Leary recorded three blocks, 14 assists and eight kills.

While some Rayders stood out individually, Randall called the performance a team effort. She did add her team needs to do a better job at playing at their own pace, as opposed to dropping down to their competition.

Charlevoix Pop Warner teams go undefeated at Harbor Springs

HARBOR SPRINGS — Two big wins on Saturday at Harbor Springs helped the Charlevoix Pop Warner football teams bounce back from a tough opening week.

The Peeewe Rayders shut out opposing Central Lake in a 21-0 victory to improve to 1-1 on the season, led by touchdown runs from Troy Nickel, Alden Spiegel and John Paul Culver.

Avery Kita added a two point conversion for the Rayders, who used an outstanding defensive effort to hold the Trojans to negative yards offensively.

In the JV contest, the Rayders (1-1) won a defensive slugfest against the Traverse City Titans, 6-0.

Max Ostrum scored the game's lone touchdown and combined with Dmitri Bell to help the Rayders control the clock on the ground behind solid blocking from Jake Clafin, Will Glass and Jack Herzog.

Like the Peeewe Rayders, the JV squad held the Titans to negative yardage offensively with standout performances from Bell, Clafin, John Sauer and Cole Diss on the defensive side of the ball.

The two squads will split up next week, with the Peeewe squad heading to Boyne City to play Kingsley at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, and the JV squad taking on Central Lake at 4 p.m. in Harbor Springs.

The Rayders shot a 414, not their best score but an acceptable one given challenging, windy conditions, and brought home another second place.

Abbey Scholten once again paced Charlevoix with a 99, taking seventh overall, Emily Sabesook carded a 101 to place eighth and Rylenn Sladek shot a 105 to finish 10th, giving the Rayders three golfers in the top 10.

Maddie Lee shot a 109 as well for Charlevoix, Annie Joy a 116 and Olivia Jenks a 117.

Petoskey finished third, with a total score of 428, but senior Grace Kelbel brought home the individual medal for the Northerners, shooting an 88 to edge Smith by a stroke. Ashley Lamb also placed in the top three for Petoskey, carding a 91 to tie with Bezilla for third place.

Bryn Werner shot a 122 for Petoskey, Katie Kurburski a 127 and Abby Birchfield a 133 to round out the Northerners' scorers.

East Jordan finished sixth, with a score of 503, led by Tapanga Loviska, whose round of 111 placed her 15th overall and close to a top 10 spot.

Gracie Hernandez carded a 119 for the Red Devils, Tia Spence a 132, Hailey Podakalny a 141, Kendall Raymond a 148, and Kaylee Cochran a 161.

With regionals just over two weeks away, the schedule is heating up for all four squads. The teams will head to Harbor Pointe on Thursday for Harbor Springs' annual invite, and then hit the course again on Friday at Boyne Highlands for the annual Tip of the Mitt Invitational.
